Ferocious Bees May Soon Arrive In United States

WASHINGTON (AP) — Swarms of ferocious honey bees that have been known to kill both humans and animals are moving toward the United States from Brazil at the rate of 200 miles a year.

There seems to be no natural barrier to block the bees and they could be in North America within four to six years, says a study financed by the Agriculture Department.

"The most alarming and best-known characteristic of Brazilian bees is their aggressiveness," according to the report. "Hundreds of bees become airborne and pursue and sting any animals or people within 100 meters of the apiary."

"There are many reports of animals and even people being killed by stings of Brazilian bees," it continued.

The report issued Wednesday by the National Research Council and the National Academy of Sciences is the result of a trip by scientists last November and December to the bee area just north of the Amazon River in Brazil.

The study calls the bees "objectionable and dangerous" and says it is essential "to do whatever can be done" to keep the bees out of North America.

Commercial honey bees in the United States are of European descent. The Brazilian bee, though smaller, flies faster and farther, works harder at making honey, but becomes angrier much sooner than its northern relatives, the report states.

The Brazilian swarms began in 1956 when some queen bees from Africa were introduced in the state of Sao Paulo, with the intention of improving European types there. Care was taken to use sieves called "double queen excluders" for keeping the vicious African queens in place.

"Unfortunately, however, a visiting beekeeper, not understanding the situation, removed

Beef And Pork Lead Parade Of Price Hikes

Farmers, Retail Outlets Gain Most Of Rise

WASHINGTON (AP) — Beef and pork cost more than ever before in July while overall supermarket food prices rose 1.8 per cent, the Agriculture Department said today.

Supermarket prices for the year are running 4.5 per cent more than in 1971, the department said.

Most of the gain was attributed to higher prices paid farmers and mark-ups by retailers.

The overall retail-food-price increase was slightly more than the 1.2 per cent reported Tuesday by the Bureau of Labor Statistics. The department explained its meat index was for the entire month while BLS covered prices only in the first week of July, meaning prices rose through July.

In all, a "market basket" list of farm-produced food, theoretically enough to feed an average family for an entire year, cost $23 more than in June—a record of $1,322.

Average beef prices for all cuts soared to more than $1.17 per pound in July, compared with $1.13½ in June and the previous record of slightly less than $1.16 last February and March. A year ago beef was about $1.05 per pound.

Pork averaged a record $5.6 cents per pound, compared with $2.0 in June. The previous high was $2.1 cents in January 1970.

The July report showed the price spread for beef rose the most between wholesalers and retailers. Farmers received the same as in June, and wholesalers who sell carcass beef actually received a little less.

Prices of live beef cattle have dropped from recent high marks and the wholesale beef price also has edged down. Much of that reduction, however, was not included in the July figures.

Red China To Block Bangladesh

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP) — Communist China was ready to cast its first U.N. veto today, to bar the admission of Bangladesh to the United Nations.

Diplomatic sources said the Chinese were adamant in their stand as the Security Council scheduled an afternoon meeting to take up Bangladesh's bid after three weeks of backstage maneuvering.

The session was viewed as another chapter in the Chinese-Soviet jousting for influence on the Indian subcontinent.

Bagladesh, expecting defeat, was prepared to carry its campaign for membership before the General Assembly which convenes Sept. 18. It hopes to get the assembly to tell the Security Council to try again.

China sought postponement of council consideration of the bid today. But if that failed, a Chinese veto was considered certain.

The Nationalist Chinese regime used the veto once in the 26 years it occupied the Chinese seat on the council.

Bagladesh, formerly East Pakistan, was born of the India-Pakistan war in December that Pakistan lost. The Soviet Union supported India in the war while China backed Pakistan.

President Wants 'New American Majority'

Nixon, Agnew Open Drive

CHICAGO (AP) — In the first appearance of his campaign for a second White House term, President Nixon today pictured critics of his defense spending plans as gambling with world peace.

Nixon, in a speech prepared for the annual American Legion Convention, made no direct mention of his Democratic opponent, Sen. George McGovern, who spoke from the same platform Wednesday.

However, the President cited military programs that McGovern would curb or scrap and described defense policy as "one of the major issues of this election year."

He said that if some of these economics were adopted

"America would become the second-strongest power in the world."

He said: "We have economized and will continue to economize on military spending whenever and wherever it is safe to do so. But I never have gambled — and I never will gamble — with the safety of the American people under a false banner of economy. Lasting peace is built only on strength."

For Nixon, it was the first stop on a cross-country tour taking him into Illinois, Michigan and California on the day after accepting the Republican nomination for another four years in the presidency.

The President told jubilantly cheering Republicans at the closing session of their national convention Wednesday night that he seeks "a new American majority" that will win the election and build peace "the world can enjoy for generations to come."

Much of the President's speech was devoted to direct and indirect assaults on the statements, views and actions of McGovern.

Nixon said the South Dakota senator's plan to replace welfare with a flat $1,000 grant per person, a proposal now undergoing revision, "insulted the intelligence of the American voters."

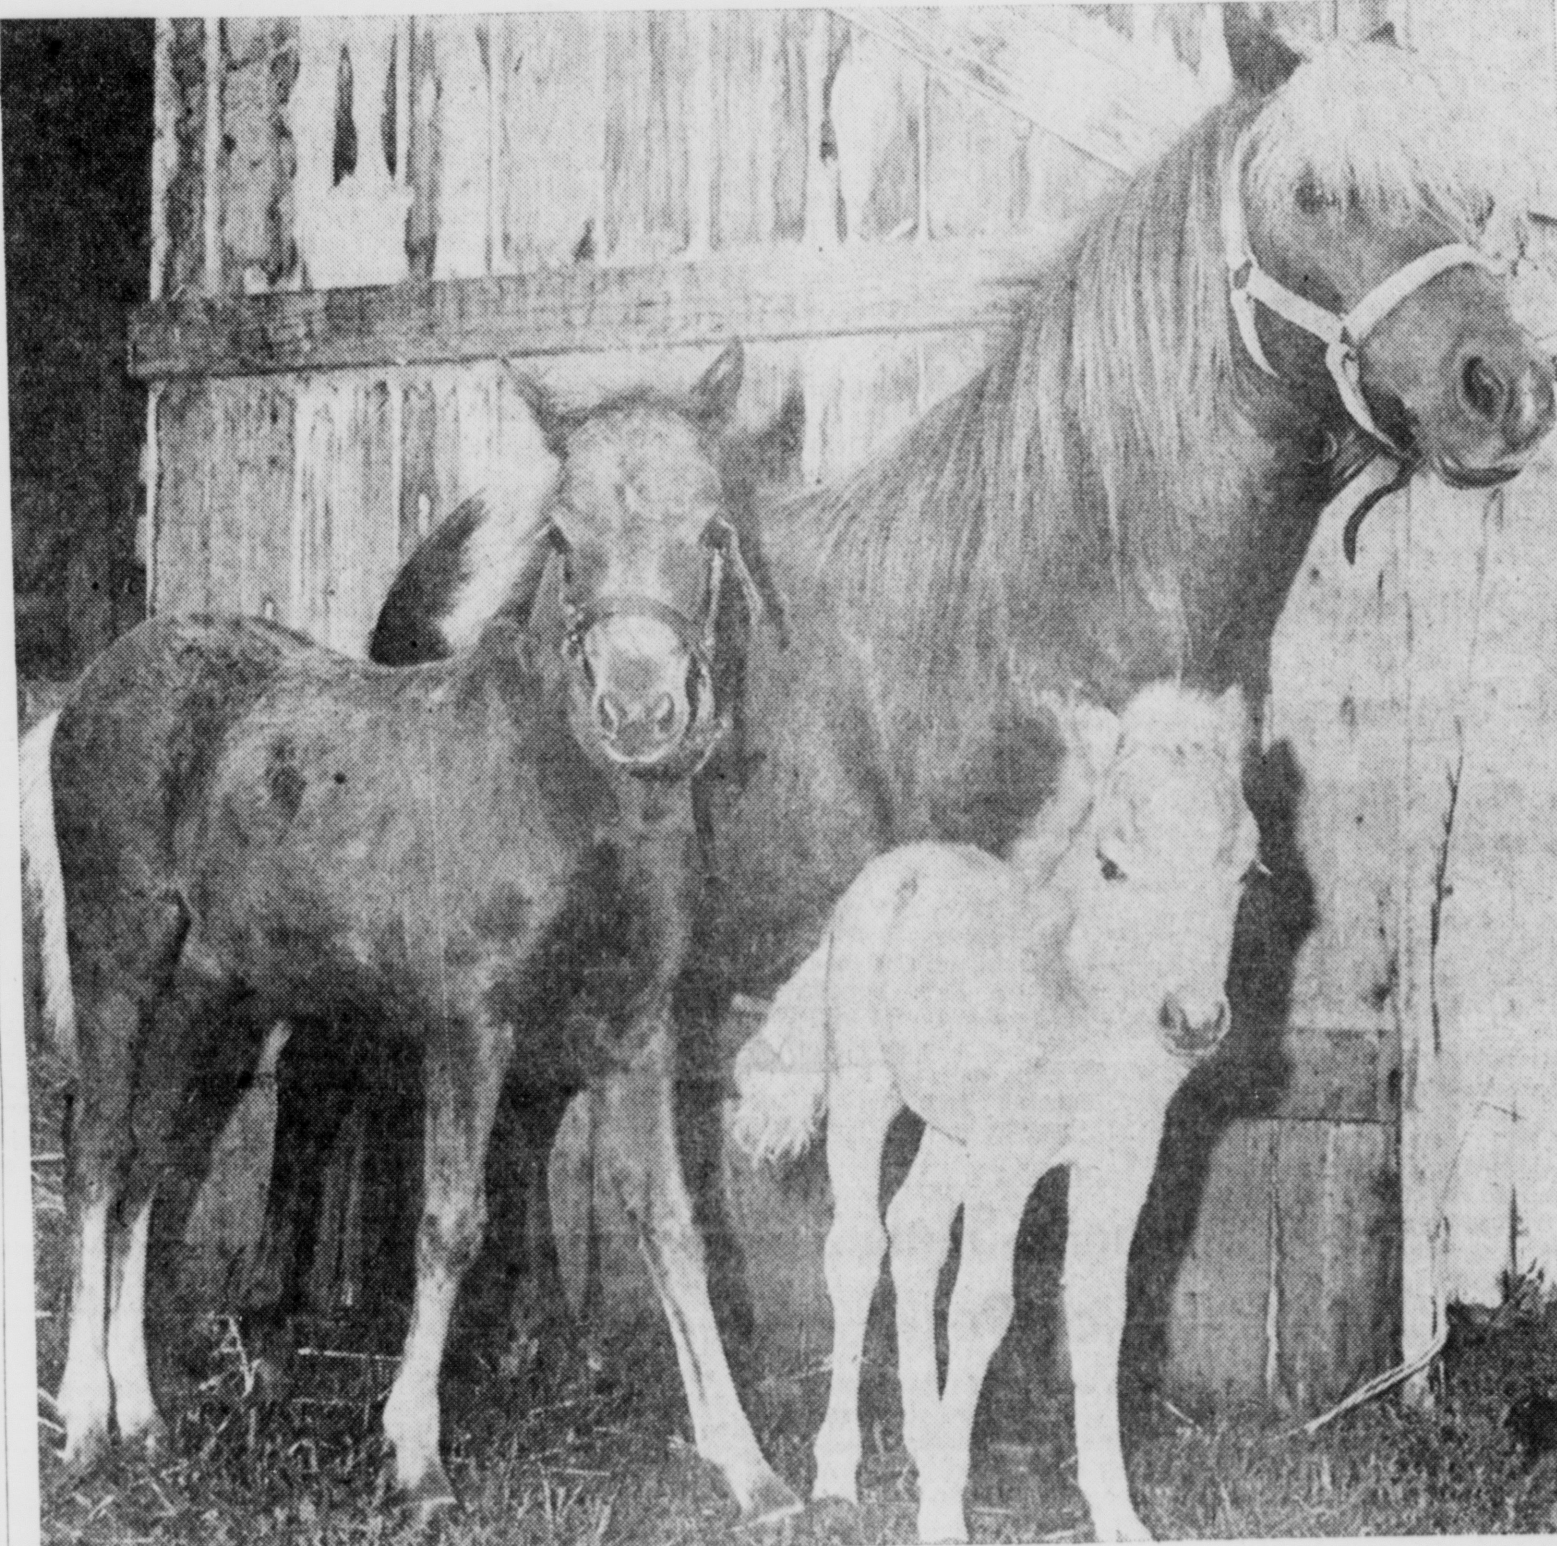

Nixon hailed his own foreign policy initiatives to China and the Soviet Union, vowed he would never abandon U.S. prisoners in Vietnam and urged voters to "reject the policies of those who whine and whimper about our frustrations and call on us to turn inward."

"Let us not turn away from greatness," he declared.

At one point in his speech, amidst the cheers and chants of praise, a barely audible note of discord sounded as four members of the militant Vietnam

Skyjack Ransom Being Returned

PARIS (AP) — The $1-million hijack ransom returned to Delta Airlines by the Algerian government left Paris today in the care of two Delta executives returning it to the United States.

Airport officials said the money was being carried on a TWA flight to Washington.

The money was kept in a safe deposit box and the airline executives stayed in a secret location overnight after arriving from Algiers Wednesday.

The ransom was received by a group of blacks who hijacked a Delta DC8 over Florida Aug. 1 and took it to Algiers, where they sought political asylum.

The Algerian authorities immediately seized the ransom and have not yet acted on the asylum request.

"The chances of this happening in a mare or cow are about one in 10 million," according to Dr. Teegardin, who titled the phenomena "Superfecundation," or a superfetation of the mare, where she becomes bred a second time while carrying a foal.

Brown, who owns a pony farm on the Circleville-Groveport Road, said the six-year-old Chestnut mare gave birth to a colt in late June and then again Aug. 10.

Dr. Teegardin said the young fillies could be called sibling twins, though they are actually the product of a double birth.

The local veterinarian said the condition is not as uncommon in hogs or dogs. Mares, according to the doctor, usually give birth to young once per year as their gestation period is about 11 months or 336 days.

Child Service Funds Disbursed

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Funds totaling $354,421 have been sent to five county children services boards for aid to welfare recipients, Gov. John J. Gilligan said today.

Gilligan said the services include preventing child abuse, day care for children of working mothers and counseling services to unmarried parents.

Distributions were: Franklin County $169,248; Mahoning $66,462; Montgomery $2,856.13; Union $2,581, and Ashtabula $26,431.

The subcommittee also recommended: providing for competition among market makers including specialists; assessing tougher penalties for violating securities laws; setting standards for entry into the securities business, and other key reforms such as strengthening the independence of the Securities and Exchange Commission.

The subcommittee described the U.S. system as the world's finest, and said: "In the economic areas affecting the securities industry, competition, rather than regulation, should be the guiding force."

New Park Land Designation Set

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — The Ohio Recreation and Resources Commission is expected Friday to designate four tracts involving 32,600 acres as new park land.

The tracts are 14,000 acres at Caesar's Creek near Wilmington, 12,000 acres at Paint Creek near Rocky Fork State Park, 6,000 acres at Buck Creek near Springfield, and 600 acres at Thicker's Creek near Aurora.

California Forces Motorists To Boost Smog Equipment

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Nearly all pre-1971 cars in California are being placed under strict smog control laws despite predictions that many will suffer harmful overheating problems.

The state Air Resources Board voted Wednesday to require additional antismog equipment on 1966-1970 model cars within two years although its engineering staff warned of overheating, possible valve damage and poorer gas mile age.

Temple Named Vice Chairman Of OPOTC

Chief of Police Robert Temple was elected vice chairman of the Ohio Peace Officers Training Council at a meeting Wednesday in Columbus.

John Burns, agent in charge of the Cleveland FBI office, was elected chairman.

Sept. 15 Temple will be a moderator on a panel discussion at the Ohio Police Chiefs Convention in Dayton. The discussion will be on police training.

The main order of business at yesterday's business was election of chairman and vice chairman and authorizing the attorney general to go ahead with a new police training academy to be built at London adjacent to BCL.

Jewish Vote At Issue

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Phantom jets, the 6th Fleet and moving the American embassy in Israel have become issues in the 1972 presidential campaign in California.

They are symbols of a battle for Jewish campaign money and Jewish votes.

President Nixon already has won important blocks of Jewish campaign money in California, including support from Louis Boyar, retired Los Angeles contractor, and Eugene Klein, board chairman of National General Corp.

Both have been major Democratic fund raisers.

That alone is a major setback for Democratic candidate George McGovern. It seals off sources of funds that always have gone to Democrats.

McGovern Supports Strikes By Teachers

ST. PAUL, Minn. (AP) — Sen. George McGovern, seeking a presidential endorsement from the American Federation of Teachers and a much needed $250,000 campaign contribution, said today that teachers should have the right to strike.

"Teachers belong in school — or on a picket line, if necessary — but not in jail," McGovern said in a speech prepared for delivery to the national convention of the 300,000-member organization.

The Democratic presidential nominee said teachers should have the right to strike, "not only for your own interests but to lift the quality of education for our children."

Under law in most states, teachers are not allowed to strike and face jail sentences if they walk out.

"You should never have to face the choice between a jail term if you strike and educational deterioration if you don't," added McGovern, a former teacher and still a dues paying member of the AFT.

The AFT is an affiliate of the AFL-CIO whose president, George Meany, has urged member unions to remain neutral in this year's election.

But the teacher federation planned to hand McGovern an endorsement and accompanying campaign donation. It would be the first time the organization has endorsed a presidential candidate in its 56-year history.

McGovern brought his campaign to Minnesota Wednesday night for today's planned speeches to the AFT and the Veterans of Foreign Wars, which is holding its national convention in Minneapolis.

Several hundred people singing "Come Home America"

Love America," greeted McGovern on his arrival at the airport from Chicago where he addressed the American Legion's national convention and held a fence mending visit with Mayor Richard J. Daley.

His reception here was in marked contrast to the polite greeting he received from the Legion, Daley, and a group of Jewish leaders concerned over his position on Israel.

His most delicate undertaking Wednesday was a luncheon with Daley.

While Daley continued to refrain from specific public promises to McGovern in their first meeting since he was barred from last month's McGovern-dominated Democratic National Convention, the mayor did appear to go farther than previously.

With McGovern at this side, Daley told a news conference it has been a tradition for his organization to work for all Democratic candidates and this year will be no different.

Daley, who introduced McGovern as "the next president," pledged a strong effort for the national ticket. "We will carry Illinois in November," the mayor said.

Securities Changes Urged

More Competition In Market Pushed

WASHINGTON (AP) — A congressional panel's 95,000-word analysis of stresses on America's securities industry, "backbone of our economic system," calls for major new steps toward more market competition.

Climaxing 26 days of hearings and testimony by 87 witnesses, the House commerce and finance subcommittee Wednesday night concluded there is need for a central market system, and said "fixed minimum commission rates are not in the public interest."

The four Democrats and three Republicans on the panel headed by Rep. John E. Moss, D-Calif., were unanimous in their recommendations which included open membership on "registered national securities exchanges to all registered broker-dealers who meet applicable capital and competency requirements."

The subcommittee also recommended: providing for competition among market makers including specialists; assessing tougher penalties for violating securities laws; setting standards for entry into the securities business, and other key reforms such as strengthening the independence of the Securities and Exchange Commission.

California Forces Motorists To Boost Smog Equipment

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Nearly all pre-1971 cars in California are being placed under strict smog control laws despite predictions that many will suffer harmful overheating problems.

The state Air Resources Board voted Wednesday to require additional antismog equipment on 1966-1970 model cars within two years although its engineering staff warned of overheating, possible valve damage and poorer gas mile age.

Board members noted that the devices would reduce oxides of nitrogen 40 to 50 per cent and said motorists would have to put up with overheating as part of the cost of fighting smog.

The newly required equipment must be installed before vehicles may be registered for 1974. State law limits the cost, including installation, to $35.

California earlier thought it was equipping post-1965 cars with strict smog controls when it required that they be equipped with devices to limit emissions of hydrocarbons and carbon monoxide — two of the three major components of smog.

That effort backfired, however, when the antismog adjustments limiting those two components caused the third component, oxides of nitrogen — to soar.

Oxides of nitrogen are a group of gases which give the air a reddish-brown color and are harmful to humans and plants.

The result of the 1966 controls was a severe smog crisis in Southern California even though hydrocarbons and carbon monoxide levels dropped sharply.

Earlier this year, the board ordered strict controls over 1955-1965 models, and federal regulations have been in effect since the 1971 model year.

Unlike antismog devices aimed at controlling hydrocarbons and carbon monoxide, the devices approved Wednesday do not work by making combustion more efficient. In fact, they reduce efficiency slightly in an effort to reduce combustion temperatures.

As a result, the board was told by its engineering staff that the devices would cause overheating and in some cases valve damage.

2nd Annual Jaycee Rodeo Is Successful

Director Jim Roese has announced the successful wrap-up of the recently held Second Annual Circleville Jaycee Western Rodeo.

Nearly 2,000 spectators attended the two day event that drew professional rodeo contestants from several states. Brahma bull riding, steer wrestling, calf roping, bronc riding and many other contest events provided much entertainment and excitement.

Several local riders entered the competition including Jaycee members Dan Hall and John Swift who made courageous but brief attempts at riding Highlander, a popular bull on the rodeo circuit.

Three hundred and seventy-five pounds of fish were prepared by the Jaycees and served by the Jaycee Wives as part of the concessions sold in the grandstand.

Steve Cherrington rodeo chairman, reported that the financial success of the project would enable the Jaycee Chapter to engage in several new projects this year involving community betterment in the Circleville area. He offered his thanks to those who supported this valuable project and a special thanks to the many local merchants and industry sponsors who purchased advertising space in the rodeo program.

Jaycee President Larry Eveland said, "This western rodeo project is an excellent example of the working and purpose of a Jaycee Chapter."

Debbie Young Attends Fair Awards Tea

Miss Debbie Young attended the 1972 Ohio State Fair Awards Tea and Reception held at the James M. Cox Building along with Bill Chandler for the formal opening of the 1972 Ohio State Fair Fine Arts Show.

Debbie was honored by having three pieces of her art work accepted to be on exhibit in the amateur division at the Fine Arts Exhibition at the Ohio State Fair.

Two of her entries chosen were oil paintings that have been exhibited at special painting exhibitions at Ohio University. Another is a piece of sculpture in the form of ceramic shoes.

The juror for the amateur art division was Ned Moor of the Byer and Bowman Advertising Agency in Columbus.

Blacks Seek Police Posts

CINCINNATI (AP)—Among the 500 applicants for police recruits will be 135 blacks taking the civil service test Saturday, climaxing a six-month-long drive to recruit black policemen.

But acting city personnel director Stephen Shutt said he was not overly happy with the results. He noted, in a similar drive earlier to recruit police cadets, 43 per cent of the applicants were black.

"I'm disappointed for there was twice as much effort put into this examination as there was for the cadet program," said Shutt.

He said the city advertised solely through the black media and through posters in black areas, spending $3,500.

Trade Deficit Declines In July

WASHINGTON (AP) — The nation's trade deficit declined to a six-month low of $42.2 million in July, the Commerce Department reported today.

The July figure pushed the trade deficit for the first seven months of the year to $3.88 billion.

"The prospects are for an improving trend in the trade balance in the months ahead, although every month may not show an improvement," said Harold C. Passer, assistant secretary of Commerce for economic affairs.

Claim U.S. Role In Vietnam Could Last Several Years

WASHINGTON (AP) — High Air Force officials believe North Vietnam still is importing considerable amounts of vital military supplies despite the U.S. bombing, and say American involvement in the war could last several more years.

These officials estimate that anywhere from 25 to 50 per cent of North's petroleum, ammunition and other war goods—as compared with pre-bombing amounts—are getting past the American bombing and mine blockade.

They said it is enough to sustain, on a limited basis at least, Hanoi's war effort.

And, they say, it is conceivable that if efforts to negotiate a settlement to the war fails, American bombing from bases in Thailand and Navy aircraft carriers could last for some time possibly for three or more years.

This assessment, given to a small group of newsmen

Wednesday night, was perhaps one of the more sobering reports on the situation since the North Vietnamese Eastern offensive began.

Although the Pentagon never has asserted that the bombing would shut off the flow of war goods to North Vietnam, administration and military officials have claimed that the flow had been reduced to a trickle.

It was stated in Wednesday night's assessment that the amount of supplies reaching communist forces in the South has been drastically curtailed.

Senior Air Force officials say the North Vietnamese, by using truck shuttles and railroad by-passes, still are able to bring in substantial amounts of supplies from China.

Also, the communists have built one petroleum pipeline from the Chinese border and are working on a second.

Supplies are also coming in by sea from Chinese ships anchored offshore which are safe from U.S. air attacks. The goods are then transferred to small North Vietnamese lighters or barges able to avoid the American minefields and difficult to spot from the air.

Nevertheless, they say the bombing has put heavy pressure on the North and believe that this, coupled with Saigon's ability to hold its ground, will force Hanoi into following one of three options:

—Continue the attack until losses of manpower and supplies become too severe forcing a return to guerrilla warfare.

—Push the attack even harder in the coming weeks until shortly before the U.S. presidential election in November and then press for a negotiated settlement.

Landmark Detroit School Bus Case Arguments Heard

CINCINNATI, Ohio (AP)—The 6th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals was prepared to hear arguments today on a massive bus plan intended to desegregate public schools in Detroit and 52 suburban school districts.

At issue is a controversial desegregation plan issued by Judge Stephen J. Roth of the U.S. District Court in Flint, Mich.

Also scheduled to appear were attorneys for the NAACP, which brought the suit which led to Judge Roth's desegregation plan; the Detroit Board of Education, the Justice Department and the suburban school districts involved.

Judge Roth laid the groundwork for his desegregation plan in September 1971 when he ruled that the Detroit school system was guilty of de jure segregation.

A series of hearings followed that finding, and last June 14 Roth issued a plan for desegregation involving 780,000 students in Detroit and 52 surrounding school districts.

Saying full desegregation could not be achieved before September 1973, he filed a temporary plan which required the purchase of 295 buses for transporting about 40,000 students this fall.

That purchase order was stayed by the appellate court July 20, three hours before the deadline Roth had set for buying the buses.

The court said the stay would remain in effect pending hearing of a full appeal of the desegregation plan.

The Justice Department filed an intervening brief Aug. 14, citing a law signed by President Nixon July 1 and asking a postponement of the Detroit plan.

The new law requires postponement pending full appeal of district court orders which demand busing of students across school zone lines for the purpose of achieving a balance in race, religion, sex or economic status.

The NAACP already has challenged the new law in the appeals court, claiming the statute, in effect, delays the granting of constitutional rights.

The Justice Department countered in its brief, however, that the antibusing law is "a modest exercise of congressional power over judicial procedures."

The department also argued that Roth never determined whether the 52 suburban districts were guilty of perpetuating segregation.

It said the district court should not have included those school districts in the Detroit metropolitan plan without first making such a determination.

Jobless Pay Shows Dip

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — The level of unemployment compensation being paid in Ohio dropped in August and is expected to even lower in the next two months.

William Papier, director of research and statistics in the Ohio Bureau of Employment Services, said this month's level was 1.6 per cent of Ohio's work force out of employment for a week or more and claiming benefit under the state's compensation law.

Papier said the August level was the lowest in nearly three years. A low rate of .6 per cent was set in October 1969.

He said he expects the August trend to continue in September and October before surging upward because of seasonal factors in November and December.

Papier attributed the decrease in August to "improved economic conditions."

the double queen excluders and 26 swarms headed by the queens from Africa escaped in 1957," the report said.

Brazilian beekeepers tried to dilute the strain of African bees by introducing thousands of more agreeable Italian queens in 1963-64. Queens are fully mature females which mate with drones and lay thousands of eggs.

But keepers killed the Italian queens "because they produced less honey than Brazilian bees," the report says.

As a result, the African bees survived and now are moving steadily northward.

The committee warned against alarming the public about Brazilian bees.

"The problem is likely to be magnified all out of proportion if the Brazilian bees get wide adverse press coverage," the report said.

Nixon

Veterans Against the War chanted "Stop the bombing! Stop the war!" from the back of the hall.

Security guards hustled them out. Few delegates noticed.

In sharp contrast to four years ago, when party moderates staged an abortive effort to stop his nomination, the vice president's was the only name presented to the convention. He received 1,345 of the 1,348 votes.

Oregon delegate Wayne W. Whitehead, news director of NBC affiliate KZLV-TV of Eugene, voted for NBC correspondent David Brinkley, noting that CBS' Roger Mudd had gotten two votes for vice president at the Democratic convention.

Clay Myers, the Oregon secretary of state, abstained to protest the method in which vice presidents are picked. Odie Richmond, a blank delegate from Pine Bluff, Ark., withheld his vote, calling Agnew "a racist bigot."

One Michigan delegate, 21-year-old party third vice chairman Richard Posthumus, wanted to abstain, too. But Gov. William Milliken cast all 48 Michigan votes for Agnew.

Agnew got an unexpected boost for a possible 1976 race. Asked how she felt about him as a contender to succeed her husband, Mrs. Nixon replied: "I'm for him."

In his acceptance speech, the vice president stayed away from the hard-line political attacks that have brought him a mixture of partisan approval and fears that he is too controversial and divisive to be considered for the presidency.

He gave another hint that his current course is towards a presidential race, noting his service "in the crucible of the vice presidency" and adding that the main purpose of the office is "to serve the president and learn from the president."

The vice president was nominated, as he had been four years ago, by fellow Marylander Rogers C. B. Morton, now secretary of the interior and the man who said just last week that neither Agnew nor anyone else has a lock on the 1976 nomination.

OU-L Plans Registration

Registration for fall quarter classes at the Lancaster-OU campus will be held Sept. 5 for all pre-registered freshmen and Sept. 13 and 14 for all other students.

Fall quarter freshmen have been pre-registered for their classes and must only complete registration and pay fees to be enrolled. They will complete this part of the registration Sept. 5 between 3 and 6 p.m.

All other students will register Sept. 13 and 14 between 1:30 and 7:30 p.m. Part-time students should register on the Thursday date and full-time students on Sept. 13, in the following order: 1:30 to 2:30 p.m., D through G; 2:30 to 3:30 p.m., M through R; 3:30 to 4:30 p.m., S through V; 4:30 to 5:30 p.m., A through C; 5:30 to 6:30 p.m., H through L; 6:30 to 7:30 p.m., W through Z.

Students who do not have I.D.'s will have to furnish proper identification. Students who cannot register on their appointed hour may register during the last hour of the assigned day.

Those who find it impossible to register on their assigned day, or who cannot have someone else register for them, will have to register on the first day of classes, Sept. 27, between 9 and 11 a.m. or 4:30 and 7:30 p.m. Students registering after Sept. 27 will be subject to a $10 late fee. Last day for registration and schedule adjustments is Oct. 6.

Anyone planning to take credit courses at Ohio University here are reminded that they must be formally admitted and that the application should be completed before registering. These forms are available at the local campus.

Bost Hurt In Scrimmage

Dale Bost, 17-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Milford Roy Bost, Reynoldsburg, is in stable condition of Mt. Carmel Hospital's intensive care ward following a football injury Wednesday.

Bost, who played football with the Circleville squad two years ago, suffered a possible fractured skull and broken nose as his Reynoldsburg team scrimmaged Grove City.

He was unconscious for over nine hours.

GAO Report On Republican Campaign Funds Delayed

WASHINGTON (AP) — The General Accounting Office has decided to delay its report on alleged Republican misuse of campaign funds after a talk with a top Nixon re-election official produced "new facts."

The announcement of the delay came after a GAO auditor met in Miami Beach, Fla., with Maurice H. Stans, Nixon's chief fund raiser.

However, a spokesman for the office Wednesday denied the report was being delayed because of the Republican National Convention.

Earlier, Paul Barrick, treasurer of the Committee for the Re-election of the President, denied reports of any law violations and said the finance leaders of the committee had sought to comply with requirements in the Federal Election Campaign Act of 1971.

Meanwhile, Rep. Wright Patman, D-Tex., chairman of the House Banking and Currency Committee, accused the GAO of blocking committee investigators probing a connection between the possible violations and the June 17 Democratic National Committee headquarters break-in.

The Washington Post reported Tuesday that GAO found $25,000 which had been deposited in the bank account of a break-in suspect came from a $100,000 campaign security fund of the Committee for the Re-election of the President.

"I have received no adequate answer for the GAO's failure to live up to its promises and at this point I can only conclude that it is allowing its investigators to give the Republican party time to put a good face on this sordid affair," Patman said.

A spokesman for the GAO said its auditors were not trying to block the committee's investigators.

The GAO spokesman said a scheduled conference with Patman's investigators was broken off because the report is not finished. It is expected to be ready in a few days, the spokesman said.

Steve Cherrington, rodeo chairman, reported that the financial success of the project would enable the Jaycee Chapter to engage in several new projects this year involving community betterment in the Circleville area. He offered his thanks to those who supported this valuable project and a special thanks to the many local merchants and industry sponsors who purchased advertising space in the rodeo program.

Jaycee President Larry Eveland said, "This western rodeo project is an excellent example of the working and purpose of a Jaycee Chapter."

2nd Annual Jaycee Rodeo Is Successful

Director Jim Reese has announced the successful wrap-up of the recently held Second Annual Circleville Jaycee Western Rodeo.

Nearly 2,000 spectators attended the two day event that drew professional rodeo contestants from several states. Brahma bull riding, steer wrestling, calf roping, bronc riding and many other contest events provided much entertainment and excitement.

Several local riders entered the competition including Jaycee members Dan Hall and John Swift who made courageous but brief attempts at riding Highlander, a popular bull on the rodeo circuit.

Three hundred and seventy-five pounds of fish were prepared by the Jaycees and served by the Jaycee Wives as part of the concessions sold in the grandstand.

Steve Cherrington, rodeo chairman, reported that the financial success of the project would enable the Jaycee Chapter to engage in several new projects this year involving community betterment in the Circleville area. He offered his thanks to those who supported this valuable project and a special thanks to the many local merchants and industry sponsors who purchased advertising space in the rodeo program.

demand busing of students across school zone lines for the purpose of achieving a balance in race, religion, sex or economic status.

The NAACP already has challenged the new law in the appeals court, claiming the statute, in effect, delays the granting of constitutional rights.

The Justice Department countered in its brief, however, that the antibusing law is "a modest exercise of congressional power over judicial procedures."

The department also argued that Roth never determined whether the 52 suburban districts were guilty of perpetuating segregation.

It said the district court should not have included those school districts in the Detroit metropolitan plan without first making such a determination.

Jobless Pay Shows Dip

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — The level of unemployment compensation being paid in Ohio dropped in August and is expected to even lower in the next two months.

William Papier, director of research and statistics in the Ohio Bureau of Employment Services, said this month's level was 1.6 per cent of Ohio's work force out of employment for a week or more and claiming benefit under the state's compensation law.

Papier said the August level was the lowest in nearly three years. A low rate of .6 per cent was set in October 1969.

He said he expects the August trend to continue in September and October before surging upward because of seasonal factors in November and December.

Papier attributed the decrease in August to "improved economic conditions."

the double queen excluders and 26 swarms headed by the queens from Africa escaped in 1957," the report said.

Brazilian beekeepers tried to dilute the strain of African bees by introducing thousands of more agreeable Italian queens in 1963-64. Queens are fully mature females which mate with drones and lay thousands of eggs.

But keepers killed the Italian queens "because they produced less honey than Brazilian bees," the report says.

As a result, the African bees survived and now are moving steadily northward.

The committee warned against alarming the public about Brazilian bees.

"The problem is likely to be magnified all out of proportion if the Brazilian bees get wide adverse press coverage," the report said.

Veterans Against the War chanted "Stop the bombing! Stop the war!" from the back of the hall.

Security guards hustled them out. Few delegates noticed.

In sharp contrast to four years ago, when party moderates staged an abortive effort to stop his nomination, the vice president's was the only name presented to the convention. He received 1,345 of the 1,348 votes.

Oregon delegate Wayne W. Whitehead, news director of NBC affiliate KZAL-TV of Eugene, voted for NBC correspondent David Brinkley, noting that CBS' Roger Mudd had gotten two votes for vice president at the Democratic convention.

Clay Myers, the Oregon secretary of state, abstained to protest the method in which vice presidents are picked. Odie Richmond, a blank delegate from Pine Bluff, Ark., withheld his vote, calling Agnew "a racist bigot."

One Michigan delegate, 21-year-old party third vice chairman Richard Posthumus, wanted to abstain, too. But Gov. William Milliken cast all 48 Michigan votes for Agnew.

Agnew got an unexpected boost for a possible 1976 race. Asked how she felt about him as a contender to succeed her husband, Mrs. Nixon replied: "I'm for him."

In his acceptance speech, the vice president stayed away from the hard-line political attacks that have brought him a mixture of partisan approval and fears that he is too controversial and divisive to be considered for the presidency.

He gave another hint that his current course is towards a presidential race, noting his service "in the crucible of the vice presidency" and adding that the main purpose of the office is "to serve the president and learn from the president."

The vice president was nominated, as he had been four years ago, by fellow Marylander Rogers C. B. Morton, now secretary of the interior and the man who said just last week that neither Agnew nor anyone else has a lock on the 1976 nomination.

OU-L Plans Registration

Registration for fall quarter classes at the Lancaster-OU campus will be held Sept. 5 for all pre-registered freshmen and Sept. 13 and 14 for all other students.

Fall quarter freshmen have been pre-registered for their classes and must only complete registration and pay fees to be enrolled. They will complete this part of the registration Sept. 5 between 3 and 6 p.m.

All other students will register Sept. 13 and 14 between 1:30 and 7:30 p.m. Part-time students should register on the Thursday date and full-time students on Sept. 13, in the following order: 1:30 to 2:30 p.m., D through G; 2:30 to 3:30 p.m., M through R; 3:30 to 4:30 p.m., S through V; 4:30 to 5:30 p.m., A through C; 5:30 to 6:30 p.m., H through L; 6:30 to 7:30 p.m., W through Z.

Students who do not have I.D.'s will have to furnish proper identification. Students who cannot register on their appointed hour may register during the last hour of the assigned day.

Those who find it impossible to register on their assigned day, or who cannot have someone else register for them will have to register on the first day of classes, Sept. 27, between 9 and 11 a.m. or 4:30 and 7:30 p.m. Students registering after Sept. 27 will be subject to a $10 late fee. Last day for registration and schedule adjustments is Oct. 6.

Anyone planning to take credit courses at Ohio University here are reminded that they must be formally admitted and that the application should be completed before registering. These forms are available at the local campus.

Bost Hurt In Scrimmage

Dale Bost, 17-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Mildred Roy Bost, Reynoldsburg, is in stable condition of Mt. Carmel Hospital's intensive care ward following a football injury Wednesday.

Bost, who played football with the Circleville squad two years ago, suffered a possible fractured skull and broken nose as his Reynoldsburg team scrimmaged Grove City.

He was unconscious for over nine hours.

Don Gibson Adds New Dimensions To Songs

By ALAN WILSON
Associated Press Writer
NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — Don Gibson has been plucking a guitar and grinding out country music for 30 years. But don't look for that good ole homegrown country boy image, it just isn't there.

As one experienced Nashville folk artist recently remarked, "Gibson's not like the hardcore country music pickers around here. When a guy gets a chance to play with him, a lot of them usually do it for nothing. He's a soulful dude, man."

The comment was more of a build-up for Gibson than a disparaging remark toward country music old timers.

Earning the wide respect of young and old music fans hasn't been exactly easy for Gibson. He waged—and won—an embittered battle with drugs for eight years.

And he has a lingering habit of putting himself in the background while others attain massive popularity off his songs. Example: "I Can't Stop Loving You," which has been recorded by 150 artists, including Ray Charles and Elvis Presley, and sold about 15 million copies.

Now, life has taken on new dimensions for Gibson, 44. The impression is that he's not changing directions...just shifting gears.

"In the past year, I think my life in music has just begun," he said while lounging in a plush chair and sipping a drink in the swank Nashville office of Buddy Lee, a booking agent.

It was about a year ago that Gibson signed a long term contract with Lee. An intensely private man, Gibson has seldom performed frequently—content to live in the East Tennessee resort town of Gatlinburg and write several well received songs yearly.

But since the contract, he has moved to Nashville and is singing to 10 to 15 times monthly. And, in the planning stages, is an idea for Gibson to tour with his own troupe, which is still 4 or 5 months off.

In his first interview since coming to Nashville, Gibson reflected on his long career, begun at 14 years old in Shelby, N. C. He said he would do it all over again, if he had to, but:

"I feel like my better writing is yet to come," he added, glancing toward his lovely wife as if to summon some moral support. She smiled in a reassuring way.

"All my big songs were written when I was on pills. That's kinda hard to figure. I'd just walk off into the woods and be perfectly content to sit alone by a tree with my guitar."

His wife, sitting beside him, look somewhat dazed by the remark. She quickly reminded him that "I Can't Stop Loving You" and "Lonesome Me," were written by Gibson when he was off pills. He smiled and nodded approvingly.

"My wife has helped me more than anything," he said.

"I lived in hell for eight years. After taking drugs that long you begin to think that all of life is like that... you know, taking tranquilizers to bring you down and other pills to offset the tranquilizers."

He paused, lipped the rim of his glass, and smiled: "It feels pretty damn good to breathe air and have a good life."

Gibson maintains that he doesn't need to change his style of singing. But there's little doubt that his last song, "Sensuous Woman," is a different genre for him.

"A friend told me that 'Sensuous Woman' was a hit but that the country music crowd doesn't understand the word 'sensuous,'" he said. "I don't think they care about the word either. It's the feeling and the emotion that get across to the people."

Something is getting across because the song is near the top of all country music charts. The title is indicative enough of the song's content, as is one line in it: "Release my body and let me live again."

Gibson readily admits that the guitar is his first love and that lyrics aren't his bag.

"That's where I find my biggest problem, is in lyrics," he said.

"I had a guy in this business say that I wrote too simple. Well, it's pretty hard to be simple. You can't create simplicity," he reasoned.

But simple lyrics, blended with a flashy guitar, have brought immeasurable success to Gibson. In all, he has written about 400 songs, almost half of which have been recorded, like "Legend In My Time," and "Sweet Dreams."

"I'm portraying what I feel," he says of his songs. "If that comes out commercial... that's good, and if it doesn't, that's good too because I do what I feel." By commercial he meant something that sounds like it's written only to sell records.

"I did what I felt on this last number Sensuous Woman especially. It's a song I was kinda skeptical about. But I think it's good."

Despite his drive to do what he feels, Gibsons image obviously is important to him. "I'd like to be known as something other than just a country music artist alone," he said. "An artist is either an artist or he's not. You can't do only one thing and be a real artist."

Arab Merger Doubts

If the Mideast balance of power changes in the next year, it will be because the Egyptians and Libyans have managed to pull off their announced merger. A number of observers are betting it won't happen. That the effective date of the merger was put off until September, 1973, is pointed to as evidence of the uncertainty.

It may turn out to be little more than another futile effort to form an Arab union, but this time at least Egypt is going about the attempt in a more businesslike manner. It looks from here as if Egypt's President Sadat asked for the delay to give serious thought to the proposal.

The proposed merger will not be easy to bring about, at least in any meaningful form. The two countries differ in many ways. Both are headed by men with strong egos, neither of whom at this stage in their careers would feel at home in a subordinate role.

Egypt is a better educated country, more progressive than Libya. But Libya's oil wealth is considerable, although it is ill-distributed among its 1.8 million people. A year may not be long enough to fit these two mismatched gears together.

Youth's Role

Population growth and change play vital roles in the performance of the economy. They can move it upward or downward, depending on the economic characteristics which each population segment displays.

For the first time in U.S. history, the average age of the population has been moving toward youth. Between 1820 and 1950, the median age of the U.S. moved up from less than 17 to more than 30 years. But for two decades it has been dropping despite a growing life expectancy. Demographers predict it will continue to drop for many years.

This has a decided impact on the volume and nature of goods and services that must be produced. The market place for young people has been one of the remarkable aspects of the current economy. And most conservative forecasts are for a population growth of 10 million by 1980.

Perhaps the most significant aspect of the population change to youth has been psychological. It has created an aura of optimism. Psychological roles play a vital part in business decisions, especially those which involve expenditures for expanded and new productive facilities.

Misleading Statistics

That old saw about "figures don't lie but liars figure" is just another way of warning against accepting all statistics as genuine. Nor is it always deliberate lying that makes statistics misleading. Sometimes the system of collection is invalid.

Some economists have come up with a new reminder of this. They challenge the official figures on unemployment.

The U.S. Bureau of Labor Statistics reports are made up by sample surveys of 35,000 households in which men and women are asked whether they are working and, if not, if they are job-hunting. Some economists say a more accurate picture could be obtained by examining the payroll reports made each month by employers.

Evidence that government figures are off-base — that they no longer reflect the state of the economy — should do two things: act as a powerful reminder that the U.S. economy is on a solid base, not with a rotting foundation of unemployment; and suggest that other government figures such as those on alleged "poverty" be well salted before swallowing.

The Business World

By JOHN CUNIFF

NEW YORK (AP) — In 1969 the Internal Revenue Service eliminated the 1040A short form tax return, supposedly to save the taxpayer money. Now it is being bought back, purportedly for the same reason.

The about face exemplifies more than the dilemma of the IRS in devising a satisfactory reporting method for the small taxpayer. It also symbolizes the growing dispute between the IRS and the nation's tax services.

More specifically, it involves the services and IRS Commissioner Johnnie M. Walters, who believes that most small taxpayers can work out their own returns and should be encouraged to do so. Thus the return of the short form.

The tax preparers claim that while small taxpayers might save the fee involved in obtaining aid, which runs from $5 up, they are likely to lose many times that amount in over payments.

They claim that the short form, on which deductions are not itemized, will encourage overpayment, especially as a result of recent changes in the law.

Understandably, the position of the tax preparers is influenced by self-interest. Mass acceptance of the short form would cost the larger preparer millions of dollars and drive out of business thousands of smaller ones. But they claim their concern goes beyond themselves.

Richard Bloch, chairman of H & R Block, insists that return of the 1040A is an injustice to millions of taxpayers, an injustice he says is compounded by a more complex set of tax requirements.

The short form, he says, will encourage taxpayers to ignore itemizing their returns for, among others, "the new child care provision which offers a potential deduction of $4,800, sick pay, retirement income credit and more."

Walters believes it is necessary to make tax filing easier. While the long form is felt to get only slightly more complicated than the short, here is an indecipherable psychological barrier involved.

This barrier often motivates the 30 million or more taxpayers with income mainly from wages, dividends and interest to seek out the services of private tax preparer, to whom they pay a fee that Walters sees as wasteful.

The preparers disagree. Says Bloch: "We have seven million clients and in general they save far more in taxes than they pay us for our services." The preparers maintain that the IRS' own studies fail to support the contention that the short form is a money saver.

Social Gospel

By JEFFERY HARL

Among the more piquant assertions being made about George McGovern is that he embodies the spirit of the so-called Social Gospel that flourished in Protestant circles earlier in the century. William V. Shannon made the point recently in a widely noted article, and Shannon, indeed, seems to like the idea.

Which is odd, because a) though much about Sen. McGovern does recall the old Social Gospelers, b) the intellectual premises of that movement have long since been completely exploded by such theologians as the late Reinhold Niebuhr and Prof. Paul Ramsey of Princeton.

As articulated by Walter Rauschenbusch and his followers, the Social Gospel may be summarized briefly as follows. The Kingdom of God is not an ultimate hope but something realizable right here, in history; human beings are essentially mild and loving, and will respond to reason and to the Christian appeal; human egoism and self interest will be overcome by love in human relations, non-violence in political relations, and pacifism in international relations; and Christian principles provide not only general guidance but specific answers on such matters as wages-and-hours legislation, Prohibition, the closed shop, tariffs and so on.

Rauschenbusch and his followers closely identified God's will with the "progressive" tendency in politics.

To all of which Niebuhr in effect replied sentimental claptrap. Rauschenbusch had not looked at human nature as it really is. Moral piety, argued Niebuhr, could not abolish social conflict, and those who would stake everything on moralistic appeals ignored the limitations in human nature that would finally frustrate their efforts. A realistic theory of politics must take into account not only men's virtues but their weaknesses, especially the weaknesses exhibited in collective behavior. The realm of love was one thing, but Rauschenbusch ignored the realm of power. And in the real world what we see is not a smooth advance toward the Kingdom of God, but, again and again, a tragic choice between evils. "We use evil in every moment of our existence to hold evil in check."

There was no simple way to bring the absolutes of religion to bear on the complex choices of the statesman: "nor is there any reason to believe that Abraham Lincoln, the statesman and opportunist, was morally inferior to William Lloyd Garrison, the prophet. The moral achievement of the statesmen must be judged in terms which take account of the limitations of human society which the statesman must, and the prophet need not, consider."

The effect of Niebuhr's writing was to emphasize the distance between history and the absolute, rather than, as in Rauschenbusch, to see one as moving rapidly toward the other. "The Kingdom of God is not of this world; yet its light illuminates our tasks in this world and its hope saves us from despair."

The contrast between Richard Nixon and George McGovern can indeed be framed in terms of Rauschenbusch's idealism and Niebuhr's realism. As a statesman, Nixon works with the materials of history, and seeks to build stable structures by appealing to the concrete interests of the Soviets or the Chinese. McGovern sermonizes, and seems to think our rivals will be impressed by unilateral arms cuts.

A passage Niebuhr wrote in 1942 could be applied with perfect appropriateness to George McGovern: "In waging the war and in building the peace we need the idealism of the Christian gospel to save us from cynicism and complacency. But we also need the realism of the Christian faith to save us from sentimentality. In America at least the danger of a perverse sentimentality of have been greater than the perils of cynicism."

According To Boyle

By HAL BOYLE

NEW YORK (AP) — Remember when Robert Mitchum was one of the bad boys of Hollywood?

There was a time when the big handsome actor seemed to be involved in more romantic and fistic misadventures off the screen than on it. Some of his critics predicted he was too boisterous to last as a star.

But time has calmed him and now that he has made some 61 pictures in nearly 30 years—his latest is "Wrath of God"—he has become one of the most durable box-office names in the industry.

Directors rate him as one of the best and most dependable actors in films. But Bob himself, who once worked in an aircraft factory, still talks as if he regarded acting as a temporary source of livelihood.

"This business has robbed me of my initiative," he said, smiling. "It's so easy to do. There are only two hard things about it—wiping off the makeup at the end of the day and putting on and pulling off your boot while you're making a Western."

But Mitchum, despite a life-long skepticism of people and their professed motives, is no goldbrick. On the set he is known as a hard and conscientious worker.

"I take life myself pretty much as it does. I've never been bored. I could sit in a closet and be pleased. I like the day as it comes."

Mitchum has pretty well lived down the public's image of him as a heavy-drinking, tough playboy.

"I don't know what my public image is—there have been so many versions," he remarked. "Worrying about that could drive you into schizophrenia. But I think the most dangerous thing for an actor to do is to try to live up to any public image of him."

"My friends say I've changed over the last 25 years. I haven't. I have kept the same values. The best value, I think, is honesty. You always have to keep searching yourself to see whether your motives are clear—or whether you're kidding yourself."

Here are the things Mitchum likes: "Any excellence in any field—early morning, because it stands for another chance—autumn—soft moans—true self-possession—ham hocks, steak and kidney pie—milk—leather and stable smells—feminine scents—good relations with women, and I've always had them."

And here are his dislikes: "Poseurs (half the people in the world are faking it)—the roar of the city with everyone talking at once—overpowering perfumes—joiners (if you have to be 50 people to be one man, better back up and try again)—self-prerense in women—creamed foods—and exotic drinks that make you blow your nose in a canoe."

What would Bob Mitchum like to be on his 75th birthday? "Quietly forgotten," he answered. "I don't think I can hack it that long. No way. I'm still in a state of shock that I even made 30."

Hawaii's military population has reached almost 119,000, the highest since January 1965, when the total was about 136,000 and just before the 25th Infantry Division and the 1st Marine Brigade left for Vietnam.

A further increase is certain within the next year when combat units are brought to near full strength.

Arab Merger Doubts

If the Mideast balance of power changes in the next year, it will be because the Egyptians and Libyans have managed to pull off their announced merger. A number of observers are betting it won't happen. That the effective date of the merger was put off until September, 1973, is pointed to as evidence of the uncertainty.

It may turn out to be little more than another futile effort to form an Arab union, but this time at least Egypt is going about the attempt in a more businesslike manner. It looks from here as if Egypt's President Sadat asked for the delay to give serious thought to the proposal.

The proposed merger will not be easy to bring about, at least in any meaningful form. The two countries differ in many ways. Both are headed by men with strong egos, neither of whom at this stage in their careers would feel at home in a subordinate role.

Egypt is a better educated country, more progressive than Libya. But Libya's oil wealth is considerable, although it is ill-distributed among its 1.8 million people. A year may not be long enough to fit these two mismatched gears together.

Youth's Role

Population growth and change play vital roles in the performance of the economy. They can move it upward or downward, depending on the economic characteristics which each population segment displays.

For the first time in U.S. history, the average age of the population has been moving toward youth. Between 1820 and 1950, the median age of the U.S. moved up from less than 17 to more than 30 years. But for two decades it has been dropping despite a growing life expectancy. Demographers predict it will continue to drop for many years.

This has a decided impact on the volume and nature of goods and services that must be produced. The market place for young people has been one of the remarkable aspects of the current economy. And most conservative forecasts are for a population growth of 10 million by 1980.

Perhaps the most significant aspect of the population change to youth has been psychological. It has created an aura of optimism. Psychological roles play a vital part in business decisions, especially those which involve expenditures for expanded and new productive facilities.

Misleading Statistics

That old saw about "figures don't lie but liars figure" is just another way of warning against accepting all statistics as genuine. Nor is it always deliberate lying that makes statistics misleading. Sometimes the system of collection is invalid.

Some economists have come up with a new reminder of this. They challenge the official figures on unemployment.

The U.S. Bureau of Labor Statistics reports are made up by sample surveys of 35,000 households in which men and women are asked whether they are working and, if not, if they are job-hunting. Some economists say a more accurate picture could be obtained by examining the payroll reports made each month by employers.

Evidence that government figures are off-base — that they no longer reflect the state of the economy — should do two things: act as a powerful reminder that the U.S. economy is on a solid base, not with a rotting foundation of unemployment; and suggest that other government figures such as those on alleged "poverty" be well salted before swallowing.

The Business World

By JOHN CUNIFF

NEW YORK (AP) — In 1969 the Internal Revenue Service eliminated the 1040A short form tax return, supposedly to save the taxpayer money. Now it is being bought back, purportedly for the same reason.

The about face exemplifies more than the dilemma of the IRS in devising a satisfactory reporting method for the small taxpayer. It also symbolizes the growing dispute between the IRS and the nation's tax services.

More specifically, it involves the services and IRS Commissioner Johnnie M. Walters, who believes that most small taxpayers can work out their own returns and should be encouraged to do so. Thus the return of the short form.

The tax preparers claim that while small taxpayers might save the fee involved in obtaining aid, which runs from $5 up, they are likely to lose many times that amount in over payments.

They claim that the short form, on which deductions are not itemized, will encourage overpayment, especially as a result of recent changes in the law.

Understandably, the position of the tax preparers is influenced by self-interest. Mass acceptance of the short form would cost the larger preparer millions of dollars and drive out of business thousands of smaller ones. But they claim their concern goes beyond themselves.

Richard Bloch, chairman of H & R Block, insists that return of the 1040A is an injustice to millions of taxpayers, an injustice he says is compounded by a more complex set of tax requirements.

The short form, he says, will encourage taxpayers to ignore itemizing their returns for, among others, "the new child care provision which offers a potential deduction of $4,800, sick pay, retirement income credit and more."

Walters believes it is necessary to make tax filing easier. While the long form is felt to get only slightly more complicated than the short, here is an in-deputable psychological barrier involved.

This barrier often motivates the 30 million or more taxpayers with income mainly from wages, dividends and interest to seek out the services of private tax preparer, to whom they pay a fee that Walters sees as wasteful.

The preparers disagree. Says Bloch: "We have seven million clients and in general they save far more in taxes than they pay for our services." The preparers maintain that the IRS' own studies fail to support the contention that the short form is a money saver.

As a statesman, Nixon works with the materials of history, and seeks to build stable structures by appealing to the concrete interests of the Soviets or the Chinese. McGovern sermonizes, and seems to think our rivals will be impressed by unilateral arms cuts.

A passage Niebuhr wrote in 1942 could be applied with perfect appropriateness to George McGovern: "In waging the war and in building the peace we need the idealism of the Christian gospel, to save us from cynicism and complacency. But we also need the realism of the Christian faith to save us from sentimentality. In America at least the danger of a perverse sentimentality have been greater than the perils of cynicism."

According To Boyle

By HAL BOYLE

NEW YORK (AP) — Remember when Robert Mitchum was one of the bad boys of Hollywood?

There was a time when the big handsome actor seemed to be involved in more romantic and fistic misadventures off the screen than on it. Some of his critics predicted he was too boisterous to last as a star.

But time has calmed him and now that he has made some 61 pictures in nearly 30 years—his latest is "Wrath of God"—he has become one of the most durable box-office names in the industry.

Directors rate him as one of the best and most dependable actors in films. But Bob himself, who once worked in an aircraft factory, still talks as if he regarded acting as a temporary source of livelihood.

"This business has robbed me of my initiative," he said, smiling. "It's so easy to do. There are only two hard things about it—wiping off the makeup at the end of the day and putting on and pulling off your boot while you're making a Western."

But Mitchum, despite a lifelong skepticism of people and their professed motives, is no goldbrick. On the set he is known as a hard and conscientious worker.

"I take life myself pretty much as it does. I've never been bored. I could sit in a closet and be pleased. I like the day as it comes."

Mitchum has pretty well lived down the public's image of him as a heavy-drinking, tough playboy.

"I don't know what my public image is—there have been so many versions," he remarked. "Worrying about that could drive you into schizophrenia. But I think the most dangerous thing for an actor to do is to try to live up to any public image of him."

"My friends say I've changed over the last 25 years. I haven't. I have kept the same values. The best value, I think, is honesty. You always have to keep searching yourself to see whether your motives are clear—or whether you're kidding yourself."

Here are the things Mitchum likes:

"Any excellence in any field—early morning, because it stands for another chance—autumn—soft moans—true self-possession—ham hocks, steak and kidney pie—milk—leather and stable smells—feminine scents—good relations with women, and I've always had them."

And here are his dislikes:

"Poseurs (half the people in the world are faking it)—the roar of the city with everyone talking at once—overpowering perfumes—joiners (if you have to be 50 people to be one man, better back up and try again)—self-pretense in women—creamed foods—and exotic drinks that make you blow your nose in a canoe."

Hawaii Again U.S. Military Bastion In Pacific Areas

HONOLULU (AP) — Military activity in Hawaii is moving into high gear again as the Vietnam war winds down.

Army and Marine combat units are being reformed and beefed up as the 50th state again becomes the base of primary reserve fighting forces in the Pacific.

Hawaii's military population has reached almost 119,000, the highest since January 1965, when the total was about 136,000 and just before the 25th Infantry Division and the 1st Marine Brigade left for Vietnam. A further increase is certain within the next year when combat units are brought to near full strength.

The Army recently added a second brigade to the 25th Division at Schofield Barracks, which will add 4,000 men to the present 6,000-man force by mid-1973. The Marine Corps plans to add some 1,000 troops to the First Brigade at the Kaneohe Marine Corps Air Station by the middle of next year.

The influx of troops will bring related problems, including the need for housing. The Army said it will need 6,000 units at Schofield Barracks by mid-1973, but will have only 3,600. The Marine Corps says it will be in housing at Kaneohe by next year.

Maj. Gen. Thomas W. Mellen, on the eve of his recent departure as commander of the U.S. Army, Hawaii, and the 25th Division, warned that "troops will be getting tighter and tighter as far as living accommodations are concerned."

He also noted the impact on the civilian community, saying thousands of automobiles will add to Oahu's traffic problems. The increase in dependents, he said, will mean a need for expansion in the schools.

The buildup also has brought on problems of another nature. "We have a lot more helicopters and we've been getting all kinds of grovels about the noise they make," Mellen said. "We've had meetings with aviation commanders to cut down on the noise."

Mellen said the military is spending several million dollars in the community, but he said the civilian population forgets this very quickly.

"They remember the increased traffic, increased noise, increased everything which is influencing their lives in a way they often don't like," he said.

More elk reside in Yellowstone and Grand Teton national parks than in any other area in the world.

People, Industry Ohio Pollution Sources

And PERRY SMITH
Associated Press Writers
COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Industry is Ohio's No. 1 air polluter but it competes with people, mining, and agriculture for that distinction in the dumping of dirty water.

Ohio's new environmental protection chief, Ira Whitman, made that evaluation during an interview in which he listed other environmental problems and outlined his new agency's goals.

The 32-year-old New York native was named by Gov. John J. Gilligan to head the newly-created Environmental Protection Agency. The cabinet-level department will be created officially Oct. 23.

Following is a condensed text of the exclusive Associated Press interview:

Q. Could you summarize for us your evaluation of Ohio's environmental problems?

A. Ohio is well endowed with environmental problems, because it's a state which has a large population — fifth or sixth in the country. It's got a proportionately heavier than average industrial concentration. It's got a large agricultural sector, particularly in one part of the state which is the source of additional environmental problems. And, it's got its coal mine-related environmental problems, and finally, we're bordered on two sides by bodies of water which have been the subject of an assault by polluters for a long time — namely, Lake Erie and the Ohio River.

In short, we have severe, in some locations, and generally serious, pollution problems almost throughout the entire state.

Q. How do you plan to coordinate the existing pollution agencies for air and water under your new environmental Protection Agency umbrella?

A. The existing agencies are divided according to their kind of problem, so to speak — we have an air pollution unit, a sewage and industrial waste unit, a water supply unit, a water planning unit, and a solid waste unit. These units with all go into the Environmental Protection Agency.

First of all, that will give us the opportunity of working between these areas a little better so that if a community has both an air pollution problem and a water pollution problem, we'll be in a position to look at them both at the same time — perhaps make some trade offs with the seriousness of one compared to the other and perhaps set some new priorities. Secondly, the agency will let us organize in a way in which we can consider some of these things across the board. For instance, we'll have a division in the new EPA called Inter-governmental Relations which means we'll have people within that division assigned fulltime with various sectors of local government so that in dealing with the city of Cleveland or Lucas County, or some other facet of local government, they will be able to deal across the board in some of these problems rather than piecemeal fashion.

Q. Will you still retain, the air and water enforcement agencies as separate units?

A. No, we will not retain them as separate groups. However, we will retain the current programs in water and air, which are the heart of the enforcement program. So, there will be a continuation of the water pollution permit idea, and a permit is not a permit to pollute. It's a permit to discharge, and the requirements of the permit are that each polluter take the necessary treatment action to bring its discharge up to the level of the water quality standards.

Q. A short time ago, there was a backlog of about 1,800 water permit cases pending, and you just recently had your air standards approved. What machinery will you have to bring these things current and to keep them that way?

A. Well, the machinery we have is better handling, and more automation in the handling. In the air permit program, we are just starting. We are receiving at the present time applications for thousands of discharge permits in air pollution. These will be handled, first of all, by local agencies around the state doing some of the work for us. We'll be using automatic data processing to assist us in handling these. And then, decisions will be made on a class basis so that we do not have to make an individual decision about 20,000 polluters.

In water, we are cutting into the backlog very substantially by increasing our efforts in the district offices and investigating these polluters whose permits have expired. And secondly, we've set up a fulltime, permanent review group. By using this group and the district offices, we basically put a higher priority on the processing of these programs, and we are cutting into the backlog.

Q. During the debate on the legislation that created the EPA, wasn't there a lot of discussion about citizen involvement and citizen complaints?

A. Well, the law does, as it was passed, allow aggrieved citizens to enter the legal process and file a complaint. So in that respect, I think the law is sufficient. The citizen suit provision, though, would have made it much easier and would not have required that a citizen demonstrate that he was aggrieved prior to the issuing of a complaint. Of course, that has been wiped out. We supported the stronger stand; we supported the citizen suits.

The agency itself will have an ombudsman-type complaint office. We will also have by law a subscription list in which anyone in the state who desires can receive regularly information about any of the decisions made by the director of the agency.

So that—plus the degree in which the law does allow citizens to get in—may be enough. We don't really know. If not, we'll push for the inclusion of that kind of measure in further legislation.

Q. How large of an agency do you envision in personnel?

A. We'll be starting in October with about 180 people on board in the Departments of Health and Natural Resources. Last December, in December of '71, the Controlling Board provided funds to bring the total staff to about 300 by the end of this fiscal year.

Q. How much of a budget will you have at the outset, and will there be more federal funds than Ohio has been getting in the past?

A. Well contrary to popular belief, Ohio presently receives all of the federal funding we are entitled to in this area based on matching requirements. In other words, the state puts up enough money right now to get the maximum level of federal funding.

Our total budget for this coming year will be in the vicinity of $5 million to $6 million. Of that, the level of federal funding is somewhere over a million dollars, but not much.

Q. How much revenue comes into the department through fees and the like?

A. Very little. At present, we don't get our hands on any sig-

Solon Denies Tax Repeal Hurts GOP

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP)—Rep. Richard Reichel disagrees with contentions that Republican candidates would be hurt if the income tax proposal is on the November ballot.

"Those candidates who go out and campaign on an anti-tax platform will be swept into office," the Massillon Republican said Tuesday.

The GOP state organization has taken the position that the tax repeal issue would bring out Democratic votes against repeal and against Republicans.

Meanwhile, the signature invalidation rate on repeal petitions being returned to the secretary of state's office by local elections boards was holding at slightly above 14 per cent Tuesday.

That prompted Reichel to predict the movement would fall about 17,000 short of the number of signatures needed to put the proposal on the ballot. But he was confident repeal forces would be able to make up for the deleted names.

"We have thousands of volunteers standing by, and I would confidently predict that in the 10-day period we could obtain over 100,000 signatures," Reichel said.

Under Ohio law, Secretary of State Ted Brown must give repeal forces 10 days to file supplemental petitions should they fall short of the 318,414 valid signatures needed to put the issue on the November ballot.

nificant independent sources of funding — like the game protectors over the Department of Natural Resources. We are starting a new program; there's a hearing coming up to set up a system of fees for permits in air pollution. We will make the argument that this agency should be entitled to the revenues from those fees so that we can maintain that program at a level which is necessary to make it effective.

Q. Where would the fines go?

A. The fines go into the General Revenue Fund.

Q. Do you plan to actually go out and shut down polluters if you have to?

A. Well, that's a common myth that is perpetuated in Ohio. We can't go out and shut down any polluters just like that. In fact, we may not be able to do it at all.

We will be aggressive in trying to achieve our goals—enforcement in its fullest sense, meaning, you know, taking people to court if necessary, as one aspect, but not the only aspect of what we're going to do.

Q. Dr. Whitman, you were with (National EPA Director) Ruckelshaus about a week ago for that ride along the Cuyahoga River. What were his and your reactions to the river, and do you think it can be cleaned up in four years as someone suggested?

A. Well, Mr. Ruckelshaus seemed, quote, "shocked," unquote, but he has seen similar rivers. The main purpose of his visit was to give a political slap on the back to the mayor of Cleveland. In fact, at first we were not even invited to accompany him.

The suit asks $23,000 in punitive and other damage, and that Endry and the other be enjoined from violating the students' constitutional rights.

Counsel for the American Civil Liberties Union of Ohio Foundation said "suppression" of the students' articles resulted from a November, 1971, edition critical of Columbus police, school coaches, and Endry, himself.

My reaction is that this is not going to be one of the easier problems to solve in the state of Ohio because you have the heavy shipping on the Cuyahoga River. It's going to be tough to make that river look good, even if you were to stop polluting it from the banks. . . . I'm not going to commit my career to the fact that that river is going to be cleaned up in four years. But there has been improvement. There's much less oil on the river than there was before.

Q. Are industries the biggest polluters in the state or is it people?

A. I would say that of air—if you compare the contribution from industry and the contribution from automobiles, for instance, which each of us as individuals operate—industry is the greater offender in air pollution in Ohio. That's not nationwide. But in Ohio, you've got a disproportionate share of the generation of electric power using high sulphur Ohio coal. And you've got heavy industry. With the exception of one or two cities, industry is the principal culprit in air. In water, it depends on he part of the state you're in. If you are in northwest Ohio, agricultural is the principal culprit. In southeast Ohio, mine drainage is the principal culprit. In northeast or southwest Ohio, it's probably 50-50 between industry and municipalities.

Q. What can your agency do about people polluters—specifically the ones who drive automobiles?

A. Right now, we are involved in a transportation control plan for the city of Dayton, which is principally being done by the federal EPA but which is a state responsibility. We're not sure the kinds of measures that might result from that but it could result in some staggered traffic patterns, greater use of rapid transit. That is one concrete area where we are involved.

Right now, our programs and powers either for regulating the use of automobiles fall back to the federal government, the federal standards and so on.

Q. Will you coordinate your activities with any mass transit plan prepared by the Ohio Department of Transportation?

A. Yes, we definitely would. That is something, I think, with both departments being new, and both departments being progressive kinds of creations in their fields, they have an interest in going down the road together.

Q. Is noise pollution a problem in Ohio?

A. It's a problem. I think we all have that problem. We will have a section in the agency on environmental planning. This is something more progressive in concept in the state, in which we'll start to look at the ways in which noise and air and water and solid waste and these other things inter-relate, and try to learn a little more about whether we should push for legislation in the noise pollution area.

MRS. THOMAS ROUSH McDONALD

Miss Nancy May Is Bride Of Dr. Thomas McDonald

Selecting Saturday, Aug. 19th as the date for their wedding, Miss Nancy May and Dr. Thomas Roush McDonald exchanged wedding vows in Trinity Lutheran Church, Circleville, with the Rev. Carl Zehner officiating at 2:30 p.m.

The bride, who was given in marriage by her parents, is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Roger H. May, Route 1, Circleville, and Dr. McDonald is the son of Mr. and Mrs. David E. McDonald, Dunkle Road, Circleville.

The altar was decorated with candles, arrangements of white snapdragons, gladioli, daisy mums and babies breath, and urns of woodward fern. White satin bows holding boxwood and babies breath lined the pews down the center aisle of the church.

Mrs. Tom Downing, organist and Mr. and Mrs. Don Frank, vocalists of Columbus, provided a program of nuptial selections preceding the ceremony.

The bride wore a white peau de soie gown and coat ensemble. The neckline, empire waist and wrists were encrusted with pearls and crystal beading. Tiny buttons filed down the front of the empire waist of the cutaway coat which flowed into a cathedral train. A veil of Brussels lace framed her face and floated over her train. She carried a cascade bouquet of white daisy mums and cymbidium orchids into which was tucked an heirloom handkerchief carried by her mother and paternal grandmother on their wedding day.

Maid of honor was Miss Valerie May, sister of the bride. Bridesmaids were Miss Shelley May and Miss Laura May, sisters of the bride; Mrs. James Archer of Columbus, sister of the bridegroom; Mrs. John Chew, Chillicothe and Miss Gayle Bainbridge, Miami, Fla.

The attendants wore identical gowns of multicolored Hawaiian floral print styled with scoop necklines, tiny cap sleeves and full skirts falling from empire waistlines. They carried white William daisies with ribbon streamers.

Flower girl was Miss Jennifer Moore, a cousin of the bride. Dr. David L. McDonald of Wadsworth, served his brother as best man. Ushers were Dr. Geoffrey Gold, Columbus; Mr. Douglas Dunkle, Columbus; Mr. Roy Roush, Mt. Sterling, a cousin of the groom; Mr. James Archer, Columbus, brother-in-law of the groom and Dr. Richard Luzar, North Canton.

The bride's mother was attired in a deep pink silk dress with pale pink cymbidium orchids pinned to her purse. The bridegroom's mother selected a pale green silk dress and wore a corsage of green cymbidium orchids.

The reception at the Circleville American Legion party room followed the ceremony. Hostesses were Miss Betsy Hamrick and Miss Betty Jo Montford.

The couple left for a cruise to the Bahamas and after Sept. 1st will be at home at 814 Village Lane, Winter Park, Fla.

The bride is a graduate of Monticello Junior College, Godfrey, Ill. and Ohio State University College of Home Economics. She is a member of Kappa Alpha Theta Sorority.

The bridegroom is a graduate of the Ohio State University College of Dentistry. He is a member of Delta Tau Delta fraternity and Psi Omega Professional Fraternity.

Mr. and Mrs. David McDonald hosted a rehearsal dinner for the bridal party at Pickaway Country Club.

Church Class Meet Open To Public

A meeting scheduled for 7 p.m. Monday at the Williamsport Church of Christ in Hand of Fellowship Class is open to the public.

Entertaining the class and friends will be Mr. and Mrs. Ronnie Walls at their home in Williamsport.

Stroh-Henderson Marriage Vows Exchanged In Richmond Heights

MRS. JERRY L. HENDERSON

The altar of Faith United Church of Christ in Richmond Heights was accented with arrangements of large white mums for the wedding of Miss Leslie D. Stroh and Mr. Jerry L. Henderson. Candelabra with white bows and mums tied in white bows marked the pews providing additional beauty.

The double ring ceremony was read by the Rev. Paul E. Roherbaugh 3 p.m. July 15th. Music for the occasion was provided by Mrs. K. Kessler of Cleveland Heights, organist, who played "Theme From The God Father," "Romeo and Juliet" and "Love Story."

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Edward D. Stroh, 498 Karl Drive, Richmond Heights, and the bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. James L. Henderson, 209 N. Scioto St., Circleville.

For her wedding, the bride given in marriage by her father, selected a formal length gown of white batiste and cluny lace. The fitted bodice featured a standup collar edged in tiny ruffles and bands of lace enhanced on the sleeves which flared at the elbow. A satin sash, tied at the front encircled the waistline. Matching lace trimmed the bride's chapel length train and she wore a picture hat of tulle and lace with a large bow at the back. She carried a cascade arrangement of phalaenopsis, white sweetheart roses, ivy and lilies-of-the-valley.

Mrs. John Ludwick of Lyndhurst, Ohio, served her sister as matron of honor. She wore a floor length brown and yellow wallpaper print voile gown and a white picture hat and carried a basket of yellow sweetheart roses, baby's breath, fern and yellow streamers.

Bridesmaids were Miss Lisa Henderson of Circleville, sister of the groom; Miss Marilyn Jacobs, Cleveland; Mrs. Cindy Stroh, Pittsburgh, Pa., sister-in-law of the bride and Mrs. Linda Bennett, Butler, Pa. They were dressed as the honor attendant and carried matching baskets of flowers.

Two long stemmed yellow roses were given by the bride to her mother as she reached the altar with her father in the processional.

Serving his brother as best man was Mr. Michael T. Henderson of Circleville. Ushers were Mr. Edward R. Stroh, Richmond Heights, brother of the bride; Mr. John Ludwick, Lyndhurst, brother-in-law of the bride; Dr. Kenneth W. Blissenbach, Mt. Lebanon, Pa., brother-in-law of the groom; Mr. John Hang, Baltimore, Md., cousin of the groom; Mr. James Wood, Circleville; Mr. George Bennett and Mr. Glenn Hutchinson, Butler, Pa.

The bride's mother was attired in a formal length gown of buttercup yellow crepe. The sleeveless form fitted bodice topped a finger pleated skirt and matching accessories completed her ensemble.

The bridegroom's mother wore a full length gown in the A-line design of orange ice silk organza trimmed in white lace with matching accessories. Corsages for both mothers were of white cymbidium orchids.

The reception was held at Ramada Inn in Wickliffe. Tables were decorated with white tapers and Bakers' fern.

The bride's table was centered with a four tiered cake decorated with yellow and white roses and lilies-of-the-valley and topped with a miniature of the bride's bouquet in a sugar cup with ivy and yellow sweetheart roses. Music was played by the Ambassadors of Cleveland throughout the evening.

Following a wedding trip the couple now resides at Nicholas Square Apartments in Circleville.

The new Mrs. Henderson is a 1971 graduate of Ohio University where she received a Bachelor of Science degree in elementary education. She will be teaching third grade at Atwater School beginning in September.

Mr. Henderson is a June graduate of Ohio University in pre-law. He is employed as a mortgage loan solicitor for the J. F. Zook Co. in Columbus.

Special guests at the wedding were the bride's two grandmothers, Mrs. Alena Purvis and Mrs. Alice Strawhecker of Cleveland.

Other guests were from Bay Village, Cleveland, Wickliffe, Lyndhurst, Cincinnati, Columbus, Dayton, Celina, Lancaster and Circleville, Ohio; Butler, Pa.; Kalamazoo, Mich.; Pittsburgh, Pa.; Mt. Lebanon, Pa. and Florida.

The rehearsal dinner was hosted by the groom's parents on Friday evening preceding the Saturday ceremony at Ramada Inn in Wickliffe for families, guests and members of the wedding party.

Foreigners Finding America Losing Sense Of Values

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
LONDON (AP) — "That cheerfulness, kindness and eager-beaver character...once so typical of American society, have now faded here in Washington."

The Washington correspondent of Japan's biggest newspaper, Asahi, sent that report to his paper.

"What strikes me after several years' absence are changes in the American people's way of working," Asahi's man reported. "A sulky, elderly woman behind a drugstore counter operates in a hasty manner, saying, 'Who's next? quickly, please.' When I pay my bill she does not even thank me."

RESOLUTION NO. 892
A RESOLUTION PROVIDING FOR THE AWARD OF AN ISSUE OF WATER LINE BONDS OF THE VILLAGE OF ASHVILLE, OHIO, AND DECLARING AN EMERGENCY.

WHEREAS, after notice duly published as required by law, bids have been received for the purchase of an issue of $33,000 Village of Ashville, Ohio, Water Line Bonds which have been duly authorized by Council and

WHEREAS, it has been determined that the bid of J. A. White & Company of Cincinnati, Ohio, said bonds with a premium of $99.00 and to bear an interest rate of 5 1/4 per centum per annum is the highest bid based upon the lowest rate of interest received at such rate:

NOW, THEREFORE, BE IT RESOLVED BY THE Council of the Village of Ashville, Pickaway County, Ohio:

Section 1. That the aforesaid Water Line Bonds of this Village be and they hereby are awarded and sold to J. A. White & Company in accordance with the terms of its bid, said bonds to bear the rate of interest provided in said bid and hereinafter recited.

Section 2. That said bonds, after being duly executed shall be delivered by the Clerk-Treasurer to said bidder upon payment of the sum provided in the bid aforesaid together with a true transcript of the proceedings.

Section 3. It is hereby certified that it is not expected that the proceeds of the issue of such bonds will be used in a manner that would cause such bonds to be arbitrage bonds under Section 103(d) of the Internal Revenue Code of 1954, as amended, and valid regulations thereunder; that all of the proceeds of such bonds are needed for the purpose for which they are hereby authorized to be issued; that the use of such bonds is not for the purpose of making any final payments, and any such proceeds will be invested or deposited only for a temporary period until needed for the purpose for which the bonds are issued; and that this certificate is based upon all the relevant facts and circumstances in existence, including those more particularly to be set forth in the certificate of the fiscal officer entitled "IRC Section 103(d) Certificate" which shall be incorporated in the transcript of proceedings pertaining to such bond and which certificate is adopted and incorporated herein by reference.

The Village of Ashville covenants to the purchasers of such bonds that it will make no use of the proceeds of such bonds under which, if such use had been reasonably expected on the date of issue of such bonds, would have caused them to be arbitrage bonds under Section 103 (d) of the Internal Revenue Code of 1954, as amended, and valid regulations thereunder; and that it will comply with the requirements of said Section 103 (d) and the requirements of any valid regulations thereunder, all to the extent as may be necessary, at the time of the use of such proceeds, so that such use will not cause such bonds to be arbitrage bonds under Section 103 (d) of the Internal Revenue Code of 1954, as amended.

Section 4. That the Clerk of this Council is hereby authorized and directed to deliver a certified copy of this resolution to the Auditor of Pickaway County.

Section 5. This resolution is hereby declared to be an emergency measure necessary for the immediate preservation of the public peace, health and safety of said Village, and for the further reason that the immediate sale and delivery of said bonds is required to provide funds to retire the outstanding note issued in anticipation thereof in order to protect the credit of this Village, wherefore, this resolution shall be in effect immediately upon its adoption.

The earliest animals on earth were animals without back bones.

"The American people's sense of values is fading," the Japanese newsmen concluded. Other foreign papers commented during the past week on such American topics as policy in Vietnam.

Noting the departure of the last U.S. combat ground troops from Vietnam, the Montreal Star said: "The United States still has not recognized this as a fight between Vietnamese.

The day after the last American ground combat mission ended, American B52 bombers carried out what the military command described as the heaviest raid of the war...

"The theory behind bombing is that it will end either an enemy's will or ability to fight. But five months after the resumption of the massive bombing, and four months after the sealing of harbors with mines, there has been little apparent effect on North Vietnam. Nor has it brought any closer the release of American prisoners, a precondition that President Nixon has set for peace."

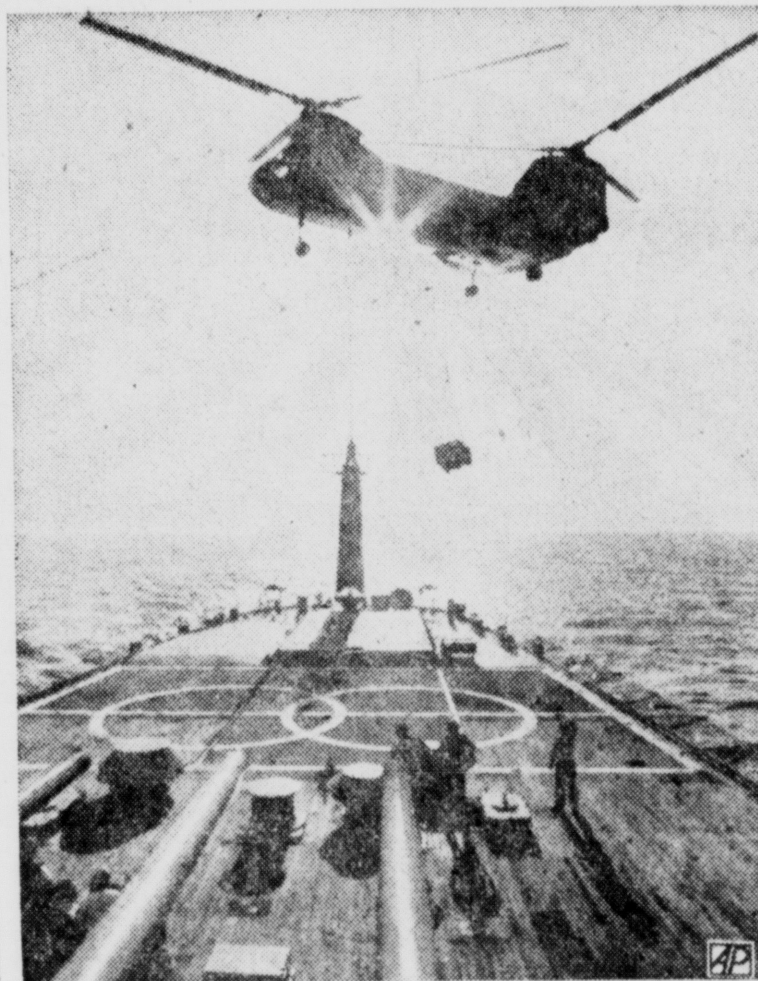

Commenting on the U.S. bombing, London's weekly Observer said: "A small country is being subjected to the kind of aerial holocaust suffered by Germany and Japan at the end of World War II...America's allies and especially the British government...should urge the President to show restraint in the interest of humanity."

Foreigners Finding America Losing Sense Of Values

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
LONDON (AP) — "That cheerfulness, kindness and eager-beaver character, once so typical of American society, have now faded here in Washington."

The Washington correspondent of Japan's biggest newspaper, Asahi, sent that report to his paper.

"What strikes me after several years' absence are changes in the American people's way of working," Asahi's man reported. "A sulky, elderly woman behind a drugstore counter operates in a hasty manner, saying, 'Who's next?' quickly, please. When I pay my bill she does not even thank me."

RESOLUTION NO. 892
A RESOLUTION PROVIDING FOR THE AWARD OF AN ISSUE OF WATER LINE BONDS OF THE VILLAGE OF ASHVILLE, OHIO, AND DECLARING AN EMERGENCY.

WHEREAS, after notice duly published as required by law, bids have been received for the purchase of an issue of $55,000 Village of Ashville, Ohio, Water Line Bonds which have been duly authorized by Council;

WHEREAS, it has been determined that the bid of J. A. White & Company of Cincinnati, Ohio, for said bonds with a premium of $9.00 and to bear an interest rate of 5 1/4 per centum per annum is the highest bid based upon the lowest rate of interest received at such rate;

NOW, THEREFORE, BE IT RESOLVED by the Council of the Village of Ashville, Pickaway County, Ohio:

Section 1. That the aforesaid Water Line Bonds of this Village be and they hereby are awarded and sold to J. A. White & Company in accordance with the terms of its bid, said bonds to bear the rate of interest provided in said bid and hereinbefore recited.

Section 2. That said bonds, after being duly executed shall be delivered by the Clerk-Treasurer to said bidder upon payment of the sum provided in the bid aforesaid together with a true transcript of the proceedings.

Section 3. It is hereby certified that it is not expected that the proceeds of the issue of such bonds will be used in a manner that would cause such bonds to be arbitrage bonds under Section 103(d) of the Internal Revenue Code of 1954, as amended, and valid regulations thereunder; that all of the proceeds of such bonds are needed for the purpose for which they are hereby authorized to be issued the project for which such bonds are to be issued has been carefully examined with due diligence, all available proceeds will be expended within the temporary period reasonably required through the exercise of due diligence to make any final payments, and any such proceeds will be invested or deposited only for a temporary period until needed for the purpose for which the bonds are issued, and that this certificate is based upon all the relevant facts and circumstances in existence, including those more particularly to be set forth in the certificate of the fiscal officer entitled "IRC Section 103(d) Certificate" which shall be incorporated in the transcript of the proceedings pertaining to such bond and which certificate is adopted and incorporated herein by reference.

The Village of Ashville covenants to the purchasers of such bonds that it will make no use of the proceeds of such bonds under which, if such use had been reasonably expected on the date of issue of such bonds, would have caused them to be arbitrage bonds under Section 103(d) of the Internal Revenue Code of 1954, as amended, as in effect on the date of such issue, and any valid regulations thereunder, and that it will comply with the requirements of said Section 103(d) and the requirements of any valid regulations thereunder, all to the extent as may be necessary, at the time of the use of such proceeds, so that such use will not cause such bonds to be arbitrage bonds under Section 103(d) of the Internal Revenue Code of 1954, as amended.

Section 4. That the Clerk of this Council is hereby authorized and directed to deliver a certified copy of this resolution to the Auditor of Pickaway County.

Section 5. This resolution is hereby declared to be an emergency measure necessary for the immediate preservation of the public peace, health and safety of said Village, and for the further reason that the immediate sale and delivery of said bonds is required to provide funds to retire the outstanding note issued in anticipation thereof in order to protect the credit of this Village, wherefore, this resolution shall be in effect immediately upon its adoption.

The earliest animals on earth were animals without back bones.

"The American people's sense of values is fading," the Japanese newsmen concluded.

Other foreign papers commented during the past week on such American topics as policy in Vietnam.

Noting the departure of the last U.S. combat ground troops from Vietnam, the Montreal Star said: "The United States still has not recognized this as a fight between Vietnamese. The day after the last American ground combat mission ended, American B52 bombers carried out what the military command described as the heaviest raid of the war."

"The theory behind bombing is that it will end either an enemy's will or ability to fight. But five months after the resumption of the massive bombing, and four months after the sealing of harbors with mines, there has been little apparent effect on North Vietnam. Nor has it brought any closer the release of American prisoners, a precondition that President Nixon has set for peace."

Commenting on the U.S. bombing, London's weekly Observer said: "A small country is being subjected to the kind of aerial holocaust suffered by Germany and Japan at the end of World War II. America's allies and especially the British government...should urge the President to show restraint in the interest of humanity."

Dear Abby: Love Needn't Wait For Appearances

By Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: I am very much in love with a very fine gentleman whose wife passed away about six months ago. She had been ailing for over a year.

This man and I have known each other for several years, but I give you my word nothing went on between us while he was still married although we have been attracted to each other since our first meeting.

We are both past middle fifties, but his is some wild love affair. He wants to marry me quietly and quickly. I want to marry him, too, but it has come back to me that many people think we had something going while his wife was still living. This is not true.

I have married children and so has he and I don't want any ugly talk. To be on the safe side, how long should we wait before marrying?

CLEAR CONSCIENCE

DEAR CON: If your conscience is clear, you have clear sailing. Why wait at all?

DEAR ABBY: I read the letter from "FORTY-EIGHT AND GETTING THERE" with some concern because as far back as I can remember, comedians have been portraying old folks.

Naturally, they come off a bit wobbly, and some don't hear too well, but it's all in fun, and I doubt if anyone sets out to ridicule them.

My wife and I have always enjoyed the Carol Burnett show, which includes skits showing the old couple in their rocking chairs.

My advice to "FORTY-EIGHT AND GETTING THERE" is to develop a sense of humor.

ALREADY THERE

DEAR ABBY: Our 22-year-old son has a 21-year-old girl friend who spends a lot of time at our home.

These two cannot seem to keep their hands off each other. The girl is always running her fingers through his hair, petting him, smoothing his side burns, massaging his shoulders and legs, sitting in his lap and giving him a hug around the waist. They often sit with their arms around each other, kissing frequently.

This goes on not only in the presence of the family, but before guests and neighbors as well.

My husband and I have told both that such behavior in public is in poor taste and to please cut it out, but they tell us that "love" is beautiful and they are not ashamed of it. Then we're told we are old fashioned.

Please tell me what you think of such carryings on?

HIS PARENTS

DEAR PARENTS: Love is indeed beautiful, but such exhibitions are out of place in public.

DEAR ABBY: Okay, go ahead and scold those who write thank-you notes and fail to sign their last names. Most people remember to whom they send gifts.

How about the chumps who send gifts (especially wedding gifts) and sign the card, "Mary, or 'From the Smiths'?" Or (are you ready for) "Love from both of us?"

Anyone who sends a gift and does not enclose a card with his full name, and a legible return address on the package deserves to be stuffed into a mail slot and canceled.

Nasty Letter To Grocers Retracted By McGovern

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — "Unauthorized and ill-advised" is the way Democratic presidential nominee George McGovern described a letter sent out by his office under his name to the executive director of the National Association of Retail Grocers.

LEGAL NOTICE

Case No. 72-CL-191

Lorraine K. Burkart whose last known address is 3530 Maryanne Place, Apartment A, Grove City, Ohio, otherwise whose place of residence is unknown and cannot be ascertained, will take notice that on the 23rd day of July 1972, the plaintiff Charles F. Burkart filed his complaint against you in the Court of Common Pleas of Pickaway County, Ohio, the same being Case No. 72-CL-191 in said Court, praying therein for an absolute divorce, exclusive custody of minor children, that any interest defendant may have in the property in said Township, Pickaway Co., Ohio, be extinguished and for any other and further relief to which plaintiff may be entitled in the premises. Defendant guilty of neglect of duty and extreme cruelty. Said cause will be heard on the 20th day of October, 1972, or as soon thereafter as meets the convenience of the Court.

Sara M. Dresbach, Clerk
Common Pleas Court
Pickaway Co., Ohio
Circleville, Ohio 43113
Attorney for Plaintiff:
Harry L. Margulis
Aug. 17, 24, 31, Sept. 7, 14, 21

Copies of the letter, dated June 1, and of McGovern's June 23 telegram refuting it have been circulating in Ohio recently. Where they are coming from, and why, has not been made public.

Frank Register of Oak Brook, Ill., executive director of the retail grocers association, said he wrote McGovern after he heard the South Dakota senator endorsed United Farm Workers leader Cesar Chavez' lettuce boycott.

Register asked the then-front-running Democratic presidential candidate to consider that stand carefully. He noted that "The pattern established in the grape boycott was one of damage and destruction to innocent third parties — in this instance retailers, who have no way of knowing who is right in a labor dispute many miles away."

The reply he received on McGovern's Senate stationery and bearing the senator's purported signature said, "I have competent legal advice... If you are suggesting that retail grocers are under any definition of the term 'innocent' I would be surprised."

"I am fully aware of the monopoly meat and other commodity pricing practices of the chain stores. I am also aware of the rate of return on your investment," the letter said.

It added, "You may be sure that when I am President, suits will no longer be brought by stockmen, egg producers and others, but by the attorney general of the United States.

Register said in a telegram he received three weeks later said, "The letter you received from my office... was unauthorized and ill-advised. I very much regret the concern it caused."

"The independent food stores are one of the last remaining bastions of private enterprise. It is true that I have in the past recommended that meat pricing practices from the farmer to the consumer be investigated. But this in no way lessens my concern or appreciation for the problem faced by your members."

Rail Pension Fund Reported In Danger

Could Go Broke By 1988, Special Study Discloses

WASHINGTON (AP) — A Congressional Commission predicts the federally-administered pension fund for railroad workers will go bankrupt by 1988 unless there are quick financial reforms.

The dispute already brewing over the question of who should bail the fund out of trouble may carry the seeds of serious labor unrest in the railroad industry within the next year or two.

Labor spokesmen have suggested that railroad management take over the main burden of financing the pension fund, now supported by almost equal contributions from management and employees.

Warning of the fund's jeopardy is the Commission on Railroad Retirement, established two years ago to examine the railroad pension system and the federal Railroad Retirement Board which administers it.

The report has not yet been published but the key chapter of conclusions and recommendations has been completed and was obtained by the Associated Press from a commission source.

The railroad pension system is the only federally administered pension plan for workers in private industry. The unique arrangement was created by Congress in 1935 to protect railroad pensions during the Great Depression.

In addition to providing an employer-employee contributory fund, the complex legal arrangement also provides railroad workers with a substitute for regular Social Security coverage.

The commission report said railroad employment has declined steeply over the past 25 years, while the number of pensioners is only now reaching its expected peak.

In addition, the report said, retirement benefits have been increased but employer and worker contributions have not kept pace.

"Unless corrective action is taken promptly there will be large cash flow deficits and the system will go broke in about 16 years," the report states.

Nasty Letter To Grocers Retracted By McGovern

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — "Unauthorized and ill-advised" is the way Democratic presidential nominee George McGovern described a letter sent out by his office under his name to the executive director of the National Association of Retail Grocers.

Copies of the letter, dated June 1, and of McGovern's June 23 telegram refuting it have been circulating in Ohio recently. Where they are coming from, and why, has not been made public.

Frank Register of Oak Brook Ill., executive director of the retail grocers association, said he wrote McGovern after he heard the South Dakota senator endorsed United Farm Workers leader Cesar Chavez' lettuce boycott.

Register asked the then-front-running Democratic presidential candidate to consider that stand carefully. He noted that "the pattern established in the grape boycott was one of damage and destruction to innocent third parties — in this instance retailers, who have no way of knowing who is right in a labor dispute many miles away."

The reply he received on McGovern's Senate stationery and bearing the senator's purported signature said, "I have competent legal advice . . . If you are suggesting that retailers are under any definition of the term 'innocent' I would be surprised."

"I am fully aware of the monopoly meat and other commodity pricing practices of the chain stores. I am also aware of the rate of return on my investment," the letter said.

It added, "You may be sure that when I am President, suits will no longer be brought by stockmen, egg producers and others, but by the attorney general of the United States."

Register said in a telegram he received three weeks later said, "The letter you received from my office . . . was unauthorized and ill-advised. I very much regret the concern it caused."

"The independent food stores are one of the last remaining bastions of private enterprise. It is true that I have in the past recommended that meat pricing practices from the farmer to the consumer be investigated. But this in no way lessens my concern or appreciation for the problem faced by your members."

Rat Contest Held To Publicize Movie

KUALA LUMPUR, Malaysia (AP) — To publicize the movie "Willard," about a plague of man killing rats, a local theater held a contest to find the longest rat in the city.

Chau Lai Chan won a year's pass for two Tuesday with an entry 11 inches long. That did not include the tail.

BEGIN SCHOOL BLUES — Benji Barker of Dallas took his first step toward obtaining an education when he entered first-grade at Longfellow Elementary School in Dallas, Texas. Unfortunately, Benji's recorded expression about the whole thing was less than excited. Photographer Lee Langum of Dallas Morning News showed the ho-hum reaction.

Sneek-A-Peek

By Pickaway County Library Staff

School time again means less leisure for fun reading. During the coming week, young people will want to try to read many of the newly arrived books. For highschoolers, Henrietta Buckmaster, who claims Cleveland, Ohio, as her birthplace, has written a new suspense novel, "The Walking Trip." Nineteen year old Madeline Sayer travels to London in response to her brother's urgent request. When she arrives, she discovers he is missing. She must trust her intuition to lead her to the truth through a maze of intrigue and betrayal.

"Canary Red" was written by Robert McKay while he served as inmate-custodian at the Ohio Penitentiary. The locale is "Blairsville"—forty miles from Columbus. Mason Campbell who has served fifteen years in prison returns home to a fifteen year old daughter whom he has never seen. It is the Red Canaries, bred during his imprisonment which help him adjust to freedom and family life once more. This book, though fiction, has some autobiographical details.

In "The Fortune Cake" by Hope Dale Jordan, Jenny discovers a threatening message intended for her father, a juvenile court judge. Fear, loneliness, and the pangs of first love give Jenny's summer a nightmarish quality. A menacing housekeeper begins a reign of terror in the home of a young English family in Joan Aiken's new novel, "Died on a Rainy Sunday."

For beginning readers, "Alligators and Crocodiles" by Herbert S. Zim gives accurate and interesting information. Did you know an alligator is one of the few reptiles with a voice? For somewhat older children, "Lizards as Pets" by Richard Headstrom will have appeal. There is a chapter on what a lizard is. The varieties of lizards are discussed. There are notes on housing and care. Mothers may be less than enthusiastic about the simple instructions for raising cockroaches, mealworms, mantids, and grasshoppers. Keep pet lizards well fed. A list of animal dealers and supply houses is included for the venturesome.

Michael H. Bevans is author and illustrator of "The Book of Reptiles and Amphibians." Reptiles and amphibians may be divided into six main groups: snakes, lizards, turtles, and crocodilians, frogs-and-toads and salamanders. General information is given about each group throughout the text. The appendix gives brief attention to reptiles and amphibians as pets. "The True Book of Reptiles" by Lois Ballards covers the subject accurately but with less detail for beginning readers.

Many new sports books have arrived on the shelves. "The Complete Book of Karting" by Dick Day and the Editors of Kart Magazine will interest older boys and adults. "Karting Challenge" by Edward Radlauer will appeal to younger readers. Both books are well illustrated with photographs. "Great Moments in Pro Football" compiled by Zander Hollander contains accounts of usually dramatic or record-breaking performances in NFL games. "Great Running Backs in Pro Football" by Phil Berger sketches the lives of fifty outstanding professional football players and the unique qualities that led to their fame. "Famous Pro Basketball Stars" by William Heuman is similar in format and contains twelve biographical sketches of basketball stars. New texts and pictures in "Road Racing, USA, Rev. Ed." by Robert Jackson will please racing buffs. "Stock Car Racing" by the same author portrays the men engaged in this sport, describes the rules of the sport, and tells how the cars themselves are modified into speed competitors.

Today In History

Today in History

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
Today is Thursday, August 24, the 237th day of 1972. There are 129 days left in the year.

Today's highlight in history:
On this date in 1814, British troops invaded Washington, D.C. and burned the Capitol and White House.

On this date:
In 79 A.D., an eruption of Mt.
Vesuvius in Italy buried the ancient cities of Pompeii and Herculaneum.

In 1777, Gen. George Washington led his Revolutionary War army into Philadelphia.

In 1862, a Confederate army under Gen. Braxton Bragg invaded Kentucky during the Civil War.

In 1891, Thomas A. Edison

In 1932, Amelia Earhart became the first woman to make a non-stop airplane flight across the U.S., flying from Los Angeles to Newark, N.J., in 19 hours, 5 minutes.

In 1939, Nazi Germany and the Soviet Union signed a 10-year non-aggression pact.

Ten years ago: The United Nations presented new proposals for ending Katanga's secession from the Congo.

Five years ago: Industrialist
Henry J. Kaiser died at the age of 85.

One year ago: Canada decided to abandon the nuclear-tipped Bomarc anti-aircraft missile used in North America's air defense.

Today's birthdays: Liberian diplomat Angie Brooks is 44.
Argentine poet Jorge Luis Borges is 73.

Thought for today: In the field of world policy, I would dedicate this nation to the polity of the good neighbor—President Franklin D. Roosevelt.

Great Lakes Work Costs Cause Worry

MILWAUKEE (AP) — The cost of Great Lakes anti-erosion projects might outweigh their economic, environmental or political benefits, the executive director of the Great Lakes Commission said Tuesday.

Leonard Goodsell said that, even if congressional approval was given his year to the principle of providing federal aid to private landowners for curbing erosion, the methods of undertaking such a project would have to be studied. He said it would take the commission at least three or four years to do this before Congress would be asked to allocate funds.

Reds Say Paris Only Site Where Peace Can Be Won

PARIS (AP) — The Viet Cong's chief delegate to the Paris peace talks declared today that President Nixon does not have to travel around the world to seek peace in Vietnam, "it can be found here in this conference and nowhere else."

Mrs. Nguyen Thi Binh, arriving for the 158th session of the conference, told newsmen that while President Nixon has traveled thousands of kilometers "the fact is that he has not moved a single millimeter from his position of aggressor and neocolonialist" in Vietnam.

She said in his speech to the Republican convention Wednesday night, Nixon "measured his desire for peace by the number of kilometers he said he had traveled during his term of office to seek a solution for the Vietnam war.

"But he was careful not to speak of the millions of tons of bombs and shells that, in the name of American peace, he has dropped on the Indochinese peninsula," she continued.

"He also did not speak of the tens of thousands of Americans killed and the hundreds of thousands wounded."

Nixon "repeated his old calumny that we want to impose a Communist regime in South Vietnam," Mrs. Binh continued, "while everyone knows it is the American administration itself that insists on imposing on the South Vietnamese people a fascist, warlike corrupt regime without equal."

She said that if the American government pursues its "erroneous policy," the Vietnamese people "will be obliged to continue their just struggle until they obtain their fundamental rights."

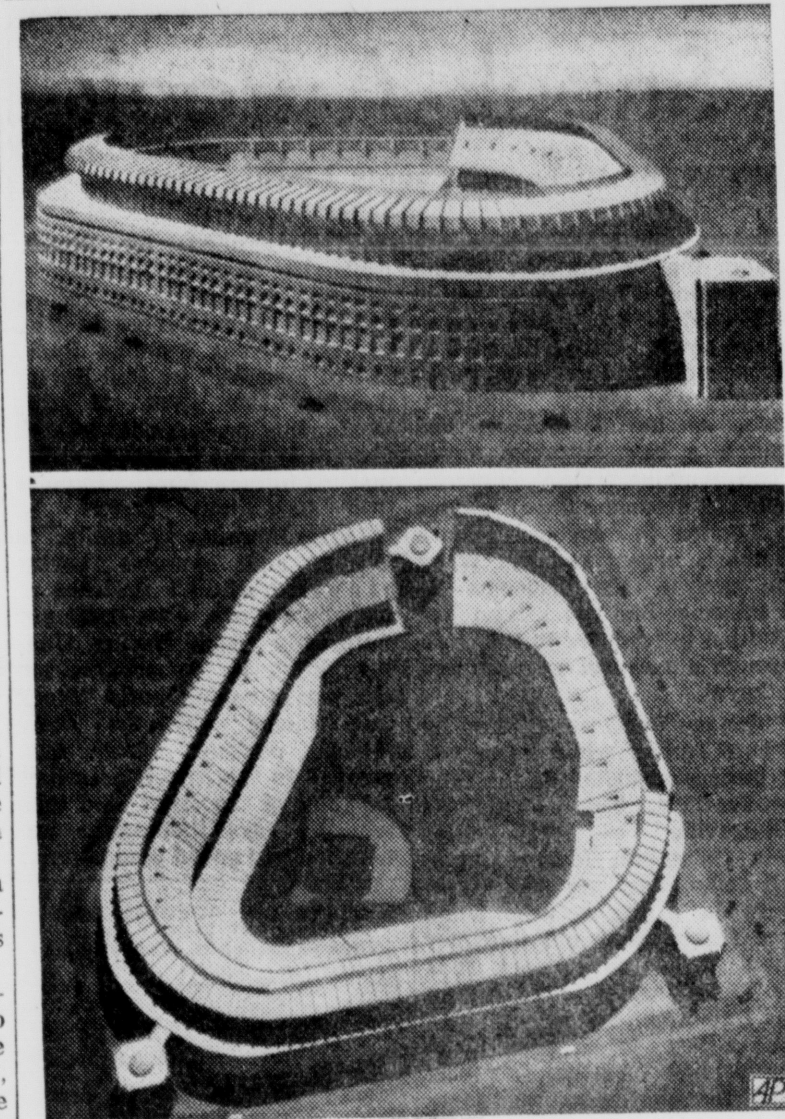

William J. Porter, the chief U.S. delegate, was away today on vacation, but his deputy, Heyward Isham, told the Communists at the session that their assertions that they want to settle the Vietnamese problem peacefully contrasted with an article in two Hanoi newspapers on Aug. 4.

He said the article was "a call, in the most categorical terms, for escalation of the fighting, regardless of cost, in pursuit of a military victory."

The American delegate again called for a cease-fire in accordance with President Nixon's proposal on May 7 and added:

"We agree with you that negotiations are the best way to stop the war and restore peace to Vietnam. The question is, are you prepared to end the dichotomy between your words and your actions, your words in Paris and your words elsewhere?"

NEW YANKEE STADIUM — This architect's model for the modernization of Yankee Stadium by 1976 was unveiled by New York City Mayor John Lindsay. Plans call for the renovation to begin at the end of the 1973 season and for the Yankees to play their 1974 and 1975 season games in Shea Stadium.

Shriver Draws Curious Crowd, But Little Applause

By PERRY SMITH
Associated Press Writer
CINCINNATI, Ohio (AP)—A crowd that seemed more curious than enthusiastic Wednesday heard Democratic vice presidential nominee R. Sargent Shriver predict the political demise of President Nixon.

Shriver, speaking to some 3,000 persons gathered in Cincinnati's Fountain Square during the evening rush hour, said Nixon had spent 1,402 days in office and only had "75 days left before he is defeated."

Shriver blasted Nixon for failing to end the Vietnam War, for failure to stop inflation and for failure to stop crime in the streets.

"He said he could end the war," Shriver said. "The war is still going on. He's not going to get any better peace today than he could have three and a half years ago. He has not kept any single one of all the promises he made."

The vice presidential nominee, an inlaw of the Kennedy family, said unemployment has doubled under Nixon and there is "no excuse for John Connally to get up and say we have to learn to live with 5 per cent unemployment."

"I say, John Connally go back to Texas—or go on unemployment yourself," he added.

Shriver said the 5 per cent unemployment figure was arrived at because the White House decided it was better than inflation.

"They produce both—unemployment and inflation," he said, and added that the Nixon dollar was 15 cents less valuable than that of the Lyndon Johnson administration.

Shriver arrived an hour and a half late for his outdoor rally and faced a subdued crowd, many of them obviously office workers on their way home.

How The Weather Looks

OHIO WEATHER SUMMARY
COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP)—Following is the Ohio weather summary from the National Weather Service:

Little change is expected in Ohio's weather for the next two days.

A low located over eastern Wisconsin and Lake Michigan, accompanied by a cold front trailing southwest through eastern Illinois this morning was not expected to begin moving toward the Buckeye State immediately.

The forecast calls for warm, humid weather with a possibility of showers and thunderstorms through Friday.

No rain was reported in the state overnight, but rainfall yesterday totaled as much as 1.34 inches in Columbus. That boosted the city's total for August to 7.6 inches, which broke a record of 7.16 inches for the month set in 1898.

Temperatures at dawn today ranged from 72 at Lunken Airport in Cincinnati to 66 at Youngstown and Findlay.

FORECASTS
Variable cloudiness, warm and humid with a chance of thundershowers tonight and Friday. Lows tonight from the mid 60s to low 70s. Highs Friday in the mid to upper 80s.

NORTHWEST INLAND — Variable cloudiness, warm and humid through Friday with a chance of showers and thundershowers. Lows tonight in the mid to upper 60s. Highs Friday in the mid 80s.

WEST CENTRAL, SOUTHWEST, CENTRAL, EAST CENTRAL, SOUTHEAST — Variable cloudiness, continuing warm and humid with a chance of showers or thundershowers through Friday. Lows tonight in the upper 60s and low 70s. Highs Friday in the mid to upper 80s.

No Peace Dividend, Laird Says

SACRAMENTO, Calif. (AP) — U.S. Defense Secretary Melvin Laird warns against expecting any future "peace dividend" at the end of the Vietnam war that could be channeled into domestic problems.

"We have used almost the total peace dividend from Vietnam," he said in a speech Tuesday.

Laird, who came to Sacramento to inspect community involvement programs at McClellan Air Force Base, said the decreased cost of U.S. involvement in Vietnam has been offset by increased salaries for military and civilian defense workers.

Critics of the Nixon administration have been urging the Defense Department to make big cuts in spending. But Laird said, "Those who advocate further massive defense cuts below present levels are simply not in tune with reality."

The Defense Department has already cut about five million persons from payrolls, he said. But at the same time, salaries for military and civilian defense workers have gone up by $16.6 million.

He said further massive cuts "would amount to unilateral disarmament and would gravely endanger our national security, dangerously impair the prospects for peace, and put an end to successful negotiation toward greater international stability."

Solon Wants To Defoliate Pentagon

WASHINGTON (AP) — Jokes aside, says a member of the House Armed Services Committee, it's time to defoliate the Pentagon's paper jungle.

There are 11,916 separate paper forms in use at the Pentagon, says Rep. Otis G. Pike, D-N.Y., most of which are seldom read but which consume "a fantastic amount of wasted time, effort and money."

In a letter Tuesday to Rep. F. Edward Hebert, D-La., they urged "a major investigation of the paper jungle which is costing both our military and our taxpaying citizens so very dearly."

He said the situation is so bad that it has given rise to such jokes as: "An aircraft carrier is ready to launch only when it weighs as much as the paper it took to build it," and, "No military plane has ever been built which could lift the paper it took to make it fly."

Pike cited the case of a prospective manufacturer of a simple felt washer who was given plans, specifications and forms which "weighed seven and one-half pounds, and some of them were on microfilm."

During committee hearings into military manpower needs, Pike said the Pentagon was asked to provide one copy of every standard form in use.

"The forms alone totalled 11,916, occupy nearly a hundred square feet and weigh more than 200 pounds," he said.

4 UMW Officials Indicted In Yablonski Murder Case

CLEVELAND, Ohio (AP) — Four United Mine Workers union officials were indicted Wednesday by a U.S. District Court jury here on charges of conspiring to influence witnesses to give false testimony in connection with the Dec. 31, 1969 slayings of UMW official Joseph A. (Jock) Yablonski and his family.

Indicted were Albert E. Pass, 53, of Middlesboro, Ky., William Prater, 53, of LaFollete, Tenn., Chester Philpot, 50, of Straight Creek, Ky., and Ernest Sutlis, 60, of Grimsley, Tenn.

Also named as coconspirators were Corwin E. Ross, George W. Hall, 64, of Harlan, Ky., and Noah Doss, 54, of Totz, Ky.

Pass and Prater are currently being held in Pittsburgh, Pa. on state and federal charges stemming from the death of Yablonski, his wife and their daughter. Yablonski had just lost a bid for the UMW presidency prior to his death.

Pass is secretary-treasurer of UMW District 19, and the others field representative for the district which includes eastern Kentucky and northwest Tennessee.

A Washington, D.C. federal grand jury also charged Doss and Hall with embezzling $1,135 in union funds. The grand jury indictment headed down here charged that the seven distributed $19,970 in District 19 checks to 23 UMW workers in the Sept.-Oct. 1969 period and told the recipients to cash the checks and give the money back.

The indictment also said Prater gave $15,000 in cash to UMW member Silous Hudleston, 62, of LaFollete, Tenn. in October and November, 1969. Hudleston has pleaded guilty to murdering the Yablonskis in the Clarkson, Pa. home and is awaiting sentencing.

The indictment charges that the seven told the 23 to ell a federal grand jury that they had earned and kept the money.

Hudleston's daughter, Mrs. Annette Gilly of Cleveland and Claude Vealey of Cleveland also have pleaded guilty to the slayings, while Paul Gilly and Aubran Martin, also of Cleveland were convicted of the murders. All await sentencing.

Reds Say Paris Only Site Where Peace Can Be Won

PARIS (AP) — The Viet Cong's chief delegate to the Paris peace talks declared today that President Nixon does not have to travel around the world to seek peace in Vietnam, "it can be found here in this conference and nowhere else."

Mrs. Nguyen Thi Binh, arriving for the 156th session of the conference, told newsmen that while President Nixon has traveled thousands of kilometers "the fact is that he has not moved a single millimeter from his position of aggressor and neocolonialist" in Vietnam.

She said in his speech to the Republican convention Wednesday night, Nixon "measured his desire for peace by the number of kilometers he said he had traveled during his term of office to seek a solution for the Vietnam war.

"But he was careful not to speak of the millions of tons of bombs and shells that, in the name of American peace, he has dropped on the Indochinese peninsula," she continued.

"He also did not speak of the tens of thousands of Americans killed and the hundreds of thousands wounded."

Nixon "repeated his old calumny that we want to impose a Communist regime in South Vietnam," Mrs. Binh continued, "while everyone knows it is the American administration itself that insists on imposing on the

How The Weather Looks

OHIO WEATHER SUMMARY

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP)—Following is the Ohio weather summary from the National Weather Service:

Little change is expected in Ohio's weather for the next two days.

A low located over eastern Wisconsin and Lake Michigan, accompanied by a cold front trailing southwest through eastern Illinois this morning was not expected to begin moving toward the Buckeye State immediately.

The forecast calls for warm, humid weather with a possibility of showers and thundershowers through Friday.

No rain was reported in the state overnight, but rainfall yesterday totaled as much as 1.34 inches in Columbus. That boosted the city's total for August to 7.6 inches, which broke a record of 7.16 inches for the month set in 1898.

FORECASTS

Variable cloudiness, warm and humid with a chance of thundershowers tonight and Friday. Lows tonight from the mid 60s to low 70s. Highs Friday in the mid to upper 80s.

NORTHWEST INLAND — Variable cloudiness, warm and humid through Friday with a chance of showers and thundershowers. Lows tonight in the mid to upper 60s. Highs Friday in the mid 80s.

WEST CENTRAL, SOUTH-WEST, CENTRAL, EAST CENTRAL, SOUTHEAST — Variable cloudiness, continued warm and humid with a chance of showers or thundershowers through Friday. Lows tonight in the upper 60s and low 70s. Highs Friday in the mid to upper 80s.

No Peace Dividend, Laird Says

SACRAMENTO, Calif. (AP) — U.S. Defense Secretary Melvin Laird warns against expecting any future "peace dividend" at the end of the Vietnam war that could be channeled into domestic programs.

"We have used almost the total peace dividend from Vietnam," he said in a speech Tuesday.

Laird, who came to Sacramento to inspect community involvement programs at McClellan Air Force Base, said the decreased cost of U.S. involvement in Vietnam has been offset by increased salaries for military and civilian defense workers.

Critics of the Nixon administration have been urging the Defense Department to make big cuts in spending. But Laird said, "Those who advocate further massive defense cuts below present levels are simply not in tune with reality."

The Defense Department has already cut about five million persons from payrolls, he said. But at the same time, salaries for military and civilian defense workers have gone up by $16.6 million.

He said further massive cuts "would amount to unilateral disarmament and would gravely endanger our national security, dangerously impair the prospects for peace, and put an end to successful negotiation toward greater international stability."

Forty-two persons attended the first meeting of the Circleville Band Booster, finalizing plans for the annual Band Preview in September.

Meeting in the high school auditorium with President Montie Kirkwood and other new officers, the Booster Club began the 1972-73 season with an optimistic and enthusiastic view.

Of the items of business transacted, the purchase of a new uniform for band director Gary Dean was approved as an expense. Ray Lucas, transportation chairman, discussed matters of carrying uniforms and instruments to all games and events. Transportation to the Ohio State Fair Aug. 24 was handled by Clarence Happeny.

Several money making projects were discussed. One of these will be the membership drive early in September.

Mr. and Mrs. Byron LeMay and Mr. and Mrs. Robert M. Johnson, project chairmen, presented the committee for the Band Preview:

Mrs. James Heacock, ticket chairman; Mrs. Richard Koch, publicity; Eugene Dowler, programs; Mrs. William Hoffman Jr., Mrs. Robert Scherer, foods booth; Robert Lucas and James Shank, parking of cars; Mrs. William Clifton and Mrs. William Stout, provide sloppy joe mixture for sandwiches.

Next meeting of the Boosters will be 7:30 p.m. Oct. 12 in the high school band room.

South Vietnamese people a fascist, warlike corrupt regime without equal."

She said that if the American government pursues its "erroneous policy," the Vietnamese people "will be obliged to continue their just struggle until they obtain their fundamental rights."

William J. Porter, the chief U.S. delegate, was away today on vacation, but his deputy, Heyward Isham, told the Communists at the session that their assertions that they want to settle the Vietnamese problem peacefully contrasted with an article in two Hanoi newspapers on Aug. 4.

He said the article was "a call, in the most categorical terms, for escalation of the fighting, regardless of cost, in pursuit of a military victory."

The American delegate again called for a cease-fire in accordance with President Nixon's proposal on May 7 and added:

"We agree with you that negotiations are the best way to stop the war and restore peace to Vietnam. The question is, are you prepared to end the dichotomy between your words and your actions, your words in Paris and your words elsewhere?"

Shriver Draws Curious Crowd, But Little Applause

By PERRY SMITH
Associated Press Writer
CINCINNATI, Ohio (AP)—A crowd that seemed more curious than enthusiastic Wednesday heard Democratic vice presidential nominee R. Sargent Shriver predict the political demise of President Nixon.

Shriver, speaking to some 3,000 persons gathered in Cincinnati's Fountain Square during the evening rush hour, said Nixon had spent 1,402 days in office and only had "75 days left before he is defeated."

Shriver blasted Nixon for failing to end the Vietnam War, for failure to stop inflation and for failure to stop crime in the streets.

"He said he could end the war," Shriver said. "The war is still going on. He's not going to get any better peace today than he could have three and a half years ago. He has not kept any single one of all the promises he made."

The vice presidential nominee, an inflow of the Kennedy family, said unemployment has doubled under Nixon and there is "no excuse for John Connally to get up and say we have to learn to live with 5 per cent unemployment."

"I say, John Connally go back to Texas—or go on unemployment yourself," he added.

Shriver said the 5 per cent unemployment figure was arrived at because the White House decided it was better than inflation.

"They produce both—unemployment and inflation," he said, and added that the Nixon dollar was 15 cents less valuable than that of the Lyndon Johnson administration.

Shriver arrived an hour and a half late for his outdoor rally and faced a subdued crowd, many of them obviously office workers on their way home.

Shriver predicted the political demise of President Nixon.

Nixon Lingers To Greet Delegates After Speech

MIAMI BEACH, Fla. (AP) — President Nixon added a surprise personal touch to his convention-capping speech Wednesday night by staying on for more than an hour to bask in the glow of victory and shake hands with hundreds of jubilant delegates.

Despite sporadic violence nearby, both the President and his wife and Vice President and Mrs. Spiro T. Agnew lingered past midnight in the hall, itself an island of festivity.

The delegates and guests roared their approval when Chairman Gerald Ford announced at the formal close of this 30th quadrennial gathering of the party that "The President would like to meet as many of you as he can." But no one dreamed he would stay so long, much to the anxiety of scores of security agents and the near exhaustion of Ray Bloch and his band. President and Mrs. Nixon stood on a specially built ramp wheeled in front of the convention rostrum, while Agnew and his wife Judy greeted well-wishers from the presidential box across the hall.

Nixon gripped so many eager palms that his physician, Dr. Walter Tkach, moaned that he dreads the prospect of examining the presidential right hand today.

Perhaps 200 persons were still waiting in line when the President eventually headed for his helicopter. One woman fainted in the final crush to reach him.

The wait for Agnew, meanwhile, was only about five minutes at any one time. Presidential aides began suggesting politely to those who had met Nixon that they might want to greet the vice president as well. No one could immediately recall when — if ever — the President had spent so long and had seen so many in a single reception line. But it wasn't a record, in any event, for Pat Nixon. She once shook 1,675 hands in a four-hour White House reception for the DAR.

At one point, Mrs. Nixon turned to her husband and asked: "Did you see how many kisses I got?" Then a woman not only gave her another kiss, but threw in a bear hug as well.

And while GOP Chairman Robert Dole enthused that "everything worked out just right," even the Secret Service saw a blessing in the hand-shaking session. "At least this'll keep the traffic down. Everyone won't be leaving at once."

Kentucky Prison Trouble Ends; Hostages Released

LOUISVILLE, Ky. (AP) — Five convicts, described by corrections officials as being under the influence of drugs, held three prison guards hostage for 12 hours at the hospital pharmacy at the Kentucky State Penitentiary, then released them unharmed early today.

Kentucky Corrections Commissioner Charles Holmes said two homemade knives were taken from the prisoners after they surrendered their hostages.

"They were under the influence of drugs," Holmes said. Holmes said that one convict, Joe Craig, was a patient in the hospital and that the other four entered from the prison yard during a shift change at 4 p.m. CDT Wednesday.

Holmes said that no promise of amnesty or other conditions were met prior to release of the hostages.

Prison officials talked to the inmates, barricaded behind the pharmacy's steel door, throughout the night in what appeared at times to be a fruitless effort to determine what they wanted.

"We're just waiting for some information on what their grievances are," William Lasey, an associate superintendent, said at one point during the night.

The Rev. Roy Planck, a prison chaplain, said he tried to talk with the inmates through the door and had not received any response he could make sense of.

Holmes said that prison officials talked to the five all through the night. "Finally, they became convinced that this (giving up) was the appropriate thing for them to do at the time. The inmates elected to release the hostages and return to their cells."

Holmes said the inmates had been asking to talk to him ever since they seized the hostages, but he said, "I wouldn't talk to them as long as they had hostages."

Ashbrook Likes Spiro

MIAMI BEACH (AP)—U.S. Rep. John Ashbrook is here this week, but says few of the Ohioans at the Republican National Convention are aware of it.

The conservative Ohio congressman said in a radio interview Wednesday he has not been in contact with leaders of the party's Ohio delegation.

"They seem to shy away from me now," he observed.

Ashbrook entered several Republican primaries earlier this year to call attention to conservatives' opposition to some of President Nixon's positions on foreign policy and domestic issues.

Ashbrook now is looking ahead to 1976. He said he will participate next year in forming a committee that will work at securing the Republican presidential nomination for Vice President Spiro Agnew.

Ashbrook said he believes Ag-

South Viet Losses Heavy In Offensive

SAIGON (AP) — South Vietnamese battle deaths in 20 weeks of the current North Vietnamese offensive exceed one-tenth of the acknowledged toll for more than a decade of the Indochina war.

The Saigon command reported Thursday that 617 government troops were killed in action last week and 2,311 were wounded, bringing the 20-week tolls to 15,610 dead and 50,909 wounded.

Authoritative American sources have estimated the actual death toll to be at least 3,000 higher than the official figures. In addition, thousands of civilians have been killed or wounded in fighting since Hanoi's offensive began.

Three Americans were reported killed in action last week, along with 21 wounded, eight missing and 11 dead from nonhostile action, the U.S. Command announced.

It was the lowest American combat death count in eight weeks, but delays in the reporting system prevent the weekly U.S. summary from accurately reflecting any single week's casualties.

The weekly average in the current offensive is more than eight Americans killed in action and more than 26 wounded.

The South Vietnamese command claimed 3,050 North Vietnamese and Viet Cong were killed last week and 79 were captured. That brought the claimed enemy death toll to 70,854 in the last 20 weeks.

The allied commands now have reported these total casualties for the war:

American — 45,850 killed in action, 1,659 missing or captured, 303,343 wounded in action, 10,264 dead from "nonhostile" causes.

South Vietnamese — 153,423 killed in action, 398,616 wounded.

Gilligan Faces Time Of Turmoil

LIMA, Ohio (AP) — A computer told Gov. John Gilligan Wednesday there is turmoil in his future and he should keep his poise, strength and self-confidence.

The Democratic governor, who works with a Republican legislature, had his handwriting analyzed during a quick tour of the Allen County fair.

The computer said Gilligan is excellent for social engagements, dynamic and intense in romance, and has a good sense of humor, but is personally sensitive.

new is the best candidate the Republicans have on the horizon.

Arrest 2 In Que Son Valley Loss

SAIGON (AP) — A South Vietnamese regimental commander and at least one of his battalion commanders have been arrested for their part in the loss of the Que Son Valley last weekend, military officials reported today.

The loss of the valley, a key access route from the mountains to the populous coastal region and Da Nang, was the worst setback for Saigon's forces since the fall of Quang Tri on May 1.

U.S. officials including Gen. Frederick C. Weyand, the U.S. commander in Vietnam, are known to regard Que Son as a debacle that could and should have been avoided.

Sources at the South Vietnamese army's northern headquarters said as many as 2,500 troops — regulars and militia — were still unaccounted for in the wake of the rout.

An unknown number of civilians also were casualties when they were caught in the fighting after the North Vietnamese attacked from the west and overran Fire Base Ross and the nearby town of Que Son, the district capital.

Although some units of the task force reportedly had driven as far as 15 miles, only light contact had been encountered so far, Neeld reported from Fire Base Baldy at the head of the valley.

Neeld also flew over Fire Base Ross in a helicopter and reported that it appeared deserted. But he said it was pitted by U.S. B52 strikes ordered in an effort to destroy artillery pieces and other equipment left behind by the fleeing defenders.

Vietnamese sources in Saigon said that perhaps as many as 300 wounded South Vietnamese soldiers also had been left behind and were "sacrificed" in the B52 raids. An American official said it was possible that this happened, but that the number "would be in tens, not in hundreds."

As the four-prong assault force drove inland from Highway 1, Communist troops extended their own attacks against government positions.

Viet Cong forces attacked government troops at Duy Xu, 15 miles south of Da Nang, and shelled Tam Ky, capital of Quang Tin province.

The U. S. Command reported that its fighter-bombers made more than 220 strikes against targets in North Vietnam Wednesday. But overcast skies confined most of the strikes to the southern half of the country.

U.S. B52 bombers attacked North Vietnamese troop concentrations and supply caches on both sides of the demilitarized zone and in the Que Son Valley.

Nixon Lingers To Greet Delegates After Speech

MIAMI BEACH, Fla. (AP) — President Nixon added a surprise personal touch to his convention-capping speech Wednesday night by staying on for more than an hour to bask in the glow of victory and shake hands with hundreds of jubilant delegates.

Despite sporadic violence nearby, both the President and his wife and Vice President and Mrs. Spiro T. Agnew lingered past midnight in the hall, itself an island of festivity.

The delegates and guests roared their approval when Chairman Gerald Ford announced at the formal close of this 30th quadrennial gathering of the party that "The President would like to meet as many of you as he can." But no one dreamed he would stay so long, much to the anxiety of scores of security agents and the near exhaustion of Ray

Bloch and his band.

President and Mrs. Nixon stood on a specially built ramp wheeled in front of the convention rostrum, while Agnew and his wife Judy greeted well-wishers from the presidential box across the hall.

Nixon gripped so many eager palms that his physician, Dr. Walter Tkach, moaned that he dreads the prospect of examining the presidential right hand today.

Perhaps 200 persons were still waiting in line when the President eventually headed for his helicopter. One woman fainted in the final crush to reach him.

The wait for Agnew, meanwhile, was only about five minutes at any one time. Presidential aides began suggesting politely to those who had met Nixon that they might want to greet the vice president as well. No one could immediately recall when — if ever — the President had spent so long and had seen so many in a single reception line. But it wasn't a record, in any event, for Pat Nixon. She once shook 1,675 hands in a four-hour White House reception for the DAR.

At one point, Mrs. Nixon turned to her husband and asked: "Did you see how many kisses I got?" Then a woman not only gave her another kiss, but threw in a bear hug as well.

And while GOP Chairman Robert Dole enthused that "everything worked out just right," even the Secret Service saw a blessing in the hand-shaking session. "At least this'll keep the traffic down. Everyone won't be leaving at once."

South Viet Losses Heavy In Offensive

SAIGON (AP) — South Vietnamese battle deaths in 20 weeks of the current North Vietnamese offensive exceed one-tenth of the acknowledged toll for more than a decade of the Indochina war.

The Saigon command reported Thursday that 617 government troops were killed in action last week and 2,311 were wounded, bringing the 20-week toll to 15,610 dead and 50,909 wounded.

Authoritative American sources have estimated the actual death toll to be at least 3,000 higher than the official figures. In addition, thousands of civilians have been killed or wounded in fighting since Hanoi's offensive began.

Three Americans were reported killed in action last week, along with 21 wounded, eight missing and 11 dead from nonhostile action, the U.S. Command announced.

It was the lowest American combat death count in eight weeks, but delays in the reporting system prevent the weekly U.S. summary from accurately reflecting any single week's casualties.

The weekly average in the current offensive is more than eight Americans killed in action and more than 26 wounded.

The South Vietnamese command claimed 3,050 North Vietnamese and Viet Cong were killed last week and 79 were captured. That brought the claimed enemy death toll to 70,854 in the last 20 weeks.

The allied commands now have reported these total casualties for the war:

American — 45,850 killed in action, 1,659 missing or captured, 303,343 wounded in action, 10,284 dead from "nonhostile" causes.

South Vietnamese — 153,423 killed in action, 398,616 wounded.

Gilligan Faces Time Of Turmoil

LIMA, Ohio (AP) — A computer told Gov. John Gilligan Wednesday there is turmoil in his future and he should keep his poise, strength and self-confidence.

The Democratic governor, who works with a Republican legislature, had his handwriting analyzed during a quick tour of the Allen County fair.

The computer said Gilligan is excellent for social engagements, dynamic and intense in romance, and has a good sense of humor, but is personally sensitive.

new is the best candidate the Republicans have on the horizon.

Arrest 2 In Que Son Valley Loss

SAIGON (AP) — A South Vietnamese regimental commander and at least one of his battalion commanders have been arrested for their part in the loss of the Que Son Valley last weekend, military officials reported today.

The loss of the valley, a key access route from the mountains to the populous coastal region and Da Nang, was the worst setback for Saigon's forces since the fall of Quang Tri on May 1.

U.S. officials including Gen. Frederick C. Weyand, the U.S. commander in Vietnam, are known to regard Que Son as a debacle that could and should have been avoided.

Sources at the South Vietnamese army's northern headquarters said as many as 2,500 troops — regulars and militia — were still unaccounted for in the wake of the rout.

An unknown number of civilians also were casualties when they were caught in the fighting after the North Vietnamese attacked from the west and overran Fire Base Ross and the nearby town of Que Son, the district capital.

Meanwhile, a South Vietnamese task force with fresh reinforcements pressed a counter-offensive into the Que Son Valley, and the commander of the operation, Brig. Gen. Pham Hoa Hiep, told Associated Press correspondent Dennis Neeld: "I hope to recapture Que Son by today or tomorrow."

Although some units of the task force reportedly had driven as far as 15 miles, only light contact had been encountered so far, Neeld reported from Fire Base Baldy at the head of the valley.

Neeld also flew over Fire Base Ross in a helicopter and reported that it appeared deserted. But he said it was pitted by U.S. B52 strikes ordered in an effort to destroy artillery pieces and other equipment left behind by the fleeing defenders.

Vietnamese sources in Saigon said that perhaps as many as 300 wounded South Vietnamese soldiers also had been left behind and were "sacrificed" in the B52 raids. An American official said it was possible that this happened, but that the number "would be in tens, not in hundreds."

U.S. B52 bombers attacked North Vietnamese troop concentrations and supply caches on both sides of the demilitarized zone and in the Que Son Valley.

As the four-prong assault force drove inland from Highway 1, Communist troops extended their own attacks against government positions.

Viet Cong forces attacked government troops at Duy Xu, 15 miles south of Da Nang, and shelled Tam Ky, capital of Quang Tin province.

The U. S. Command reported that its fighter-bombers made more than 220 strikes against targets in North Vietnam Wednesday. But overcast skies confined most of the strikes to the southern half of the country.

Kentucky Prison Trouble Ends; Hostages Released

LOUISVILLE, Ky. (AP) — Five convicts, described by corrections officials as being under the influence of drugs, held three prison guards hostage for 12 hours at the hospital pharmacy at the Kentucky State Penitentiary, then released them unharmed early today.

Kentucky Corrections Commissioner Charles Holmes said two homemade knives were taken from the prisoners after they surrendered their hostages.

"They were under the influence of drugs," Holmes said.

Holmes said that one convict, Joe Craig, was a patient in the hospital and that the other four entered from the prison yard during a shift change at 4 p.m. CDT Wednesday.

Holmes said that no promise of amnesty or other conditions were met prior to release of the hostages.

Prison officials talked to the inmates, barricaded behind the pharmacy's steel door, throughout the night in what appeared at times to be a fruitless effort to determine what they wanted.

"We're just waiting for some information on what their grievances are," William Lasey, an associate superintendent, said at one point during the night.

The Rev. Roy Planck, a prison chaplain, said he tried to talk with the inmates through the door and had not received any response he could make sense of.

Holmes said that prison officials talked to the five all through the night.

"Finally, they became convinced that this (giving up) was the appropriate thing for them to do at the time. The inmates elected to release the hostages and return to their cells."

Holmes said the inmates had been asking to talk to him ever since they seized the hostages, but he said, "I wouldn't talk to them as long as they had hostages."

Ashbrook Likes Spiro

MIAMI BEACH (AP)—U.S. Rep. John Ashbrook is here this week, but says few of the Ohioans at the Republican National Convention are aware of it.

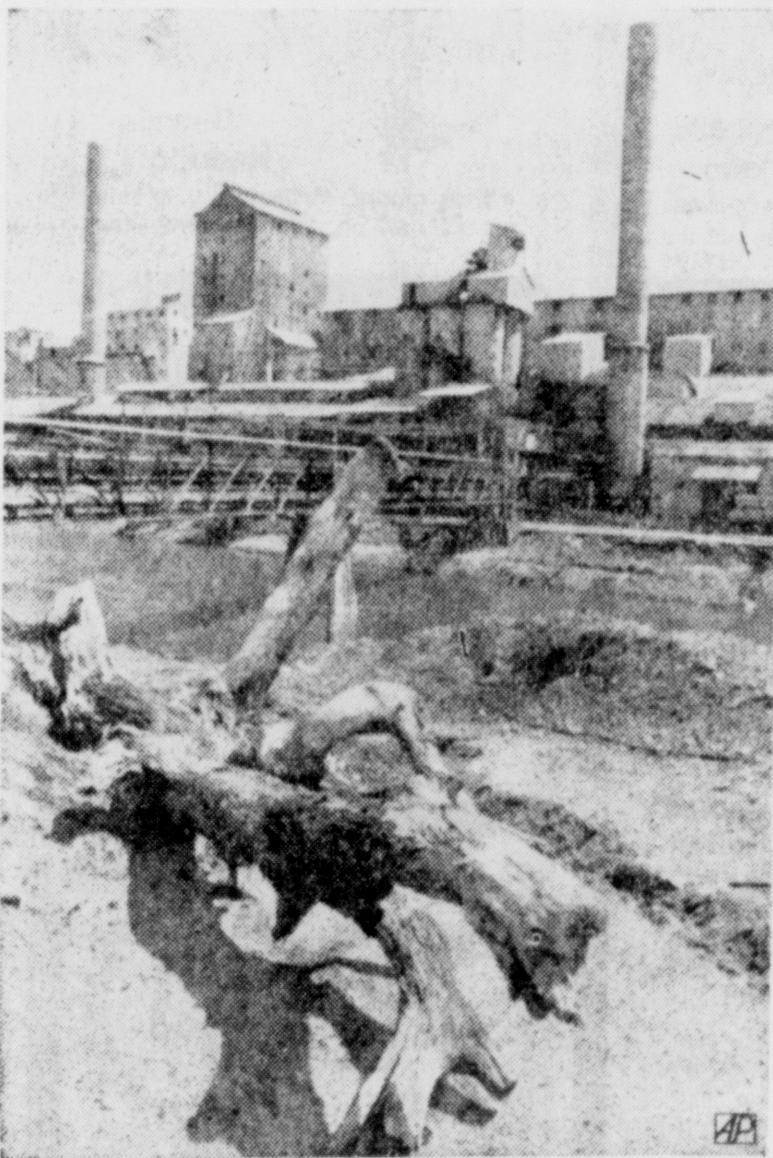

The conservative Ohio congressman said in a radio interview Wednesday he has not been in contact with leaders of the party's Ohio delegation.

"They seem to shy away from me now," he observed.

Ashbrook entered several Republican primaries earlier this year to call attention to conservatives' opposition to some of President Nixon's positions on foreign policy and domestic issues.

Ashbrook now is looking ahead to 1976. He said he will participate next year in forming a committee that will work at securing the Republican presidential nomination for Vice President Spiro Agnew.

Ashbrook said he believes Ag-

The Cost Of Cleaning Up; Who Will Pay?

EDITOR'S NOTE: Somebody will pay for the efforts being made to clean the nation's environment. But there will be some financial benefits as well, and at least one group believes the effort will mean a net savings because of decreased damage from pollution. AP environmental writer Stan Benjamin tells about it in the final installment of a four-part series on The Cost of Cleaning Up.

By STAN BENJAMIN
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — "The American people are not going to let people tell them they got to start driving one car instead of two without there being a revolution."

G. John Lambillotte, manager of a Barborton, Ohio, chemical plant doomed by anti-pollution enforcement, was arguing that "people who don't know what makes the economy tick are playing with it" for the sake of clean air and water. "The clean-up will cost some body," he added, "but it means our standard of living will decrease."

Lambillotte will get an argument from government and citizen environmentalists to all but one point.

They all agree that cleaning up "will cost somebody." Government economists have estimated it may cost some $72 billion or more over the next five years to combat air and water pollution.

They say the costs, as unemployment or price increases, will hit industries, workers and communities throughout the nation.

The impact already has hit places like Saltville, Va.; Barborton, Grafton, Mass.; Marietta, Ohio; Alloy, W. Va., and dozens more.

But economics includes benefits as well as costs.

The President's Council on Environmental Quality estimates that air pollution itself costs the nation more than $16 billion each year in damage to human health, plants, materials and property values.

Building upon that estimate, the National Wildlife Federation estimated that air and water pollution together were costing the nation almost $29 billion a year.

If so, five years of pollution damage would total $145 billion, outweighing even the impressive cost of reducing it.

The Wildlife Federation figured the antipollution investment would show little return for the first five years.

But by 1979, as pollution damage is reduced, the nation would save enough to get back its early investments, and by 1980 it would be reaping net savings—"plus having a cleaner environment."

Beyond material damages, life values that have no price tag: natural beauty, waters fit to swim in, days that really are clear enough to see for miles.

Not long ago British citizens collected $1 million to buy back one beautiful painting from U.S. oilman J. Paul Getty and keep it in their country.

Such treasures, in museums, are exposed only to a carefully controlled and filtered atmosphere.

Meanwhile, in the unprotected churches of Italy, the frescoed and sculptured faces of Madonnas and saints, treasured for centuries, are being eaten away by the chemical leprosy of air pollution.

American conservationists worry that the same fate may await the natural rock formations of the West.

Americans pay millions yearly to enjoy scenic beauty and natural recreation sites.

As Congress passes one environmental law after another, the public seems willing to pay for a clean environment.

It even seems willing, at this point, to sand still for some restrictions on its darling, the automobile.

The Environmental Protection Agency has already required big cities, as part of state pollution control plans, to find ways of reducing downtown auto traffic.

On balance, then, the benefits of environmental clean-up may well outweigh the costs even in terms of hard cash. But the costs and the benefits do not fall evenly.

During interviews in im-pollution must stop but the cleanup was hurting them badly.

They needed government help in readjusting to an anti-pollution economy but were not getting it.

There's little help to be had. A Commerce Department spokesman said its only potential instrument of aid to business was the Economic Development Agency, whose $261 million fund for grants and loans is geared to economic stimulation, not the rescue of pollution casualties.

The Environmental Protection Agency began last March to send "early warnings" to the Labor Department of environmental actions that might cause layoffs.

Asked the fate of four companies on the list, a Labor Department spokesman said in June: "We're not following it."

In another interview, Leonard Burchman, the department's director of interagency relations, admitted that "early warning" was bogged down in papershuffling and communication delays.

He said EPA and Labor have revised the system to make it work more swiftly.

Once department regional offices are advised, he said, they send representatives to impacted areas to advise workers of benefit entitlements and make job lists available.

Scientists and technicians laid off in defense cutbacks can get Labor Department funds for job-hunting travel and relocation.

But for employment casualties of the war on pollution, Burchman said, "We don't have such funds and it's unfortunate."

In fact, he said, "They're cutting corners and dollars in a lot of our programs. Of course, supplementals (more money) can be brought up real quick."

As Lambillotte put it, while planning the shutdown of his chemical plant: "Sooner or later it comes out of your pocket. How much are people willing to pay?"

OU Jury Dispute Aired

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — An Ohio Supreme Court justice has given Athens County officials until Sept. 8 to prove that students at Ohio University have not been barred from serving on juries.

Justice Lloyd Brown signed the order, which delays the trials of 75 persons charged in last spring's anti-war sit-ins at the university.

Defense attorneys argued that young people were prevented from sitting on the jury because of voter registration restrictions. County officials deny the charge.

Brown acted after Athens Municipal Judge Franklin Sheeter last week turned down a similar defense plea.

Defense attorneys specifically requested that a new jury list, including students not registered in 1971, be ordered by the court.

Report Progress In Mine Safety

PITTSBURGH (AP) — A spokesman for the U.S. Bureau of Mines says the federal agency has made remarkable progress in reducing the rate of fatal mining accidents and has developed new programs aimed at further reducing the rate.

"Our critics say we're doing a bad job," Donald P. Schlick, deputy director of health and safety for the bureau, said Tuesday. "But there has been substantial progress and there will be more progress in the future."

Record Earnings Bared By Firestone

AKRON, Ohio (AP) — Record 9-month sales of $1.9 billion and record earnings of $91 million have been reported by Firestone Tire & Rubber Co. for the period ended July 31.

Firestone's earnings were up 4.2 per cent over the $87.4 million of a year ago which included a one-time profit of $6.7 million from sale of an interest in a foreign company.

200 New Freshmen Apply For OSU Slots

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — After issuing a call for 400 more freshmen and transfer students, Ohio State University has received requests for admission applications for half the goal.

Edward E. Rhine, director of admissions, said it was too early to determine if the university will be able to attract 400 applications by the Sept. 8 deadline.

WASHINGTON (AP) — "The American people are not going to let people tell them they got to start driving one car instead of two without there being a revolution."

G. John Lambilliotte, manager of a Barborton, Ohio, chemical plant doomed by anti-pollution enforcement, was arguing that "people who don't know what makes the economy tick are playing with it" for the sake of clean air and water.

"The clean-up will cost some body," he added, "but it means our standard of living will decrease."

Lambilliotte will get an argument from government and citizen environmentalists to all but one point.

200 New Freshmen Apply For OSU Slots
COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP)—After issuing a call for 400 more freshmen and transfer students, Ohio State University has received requests for admission applications for half the goal.

Edward E. Rhine, director of admissions, said it was too early to determine if the university will be able to attract 400 applications by the Sept. 8 deadline.

They all agree that cleaning up "will cost somebody."

Government economists have estimated it may cost some $72 billion or more over the next five years to combat air and water pollution.

They say the costs, as unemployment or price increases, will hit industries, workers and communities throughout the nation.

The impact already has hit places like Saltville, Va.; Barborton; Grafton, Mass.; Marietta, Ohio; Alloy, W. Va., and dozens more.

But economics includes benefits as well as costs.

The President's Council on Environmental Quality estimates that air pollution itself costs the nation more than $16 billion each year in damage to human health, plants, materials and property values.

Building upon that estimate, the National Wildlife Federation estimated air and water pollution together were costing the nation almost $29 billion a year.

If so, five years of pollution damage would total $145 billion, outweighing even the impressive cost of reducing it.

The Wildlife Federation figured the antipollution investment would show little return for the first five years.

But by 1979, as pollution damage is reduced, the nation would save enough to get back its early investments, and by 1980 it would be reaping net savings—"plus having a cleaner environment."

Beyond material damages, lie values that have no price tag: natural beauty, waters fit to swim in, days that really are clear enough to see for miles.

Not long ago British citizens collected $4 million to buy back one beautiful painting from U.S. oilman J. Paul Getty and keep it in their country.

Such treasures, in museums, are exposed only to a carefully controlled and filtered atmosphere.

Meanwhile, in the unprotected churches of Italy, the frescoed and sculptured faces of Madonnas and saints, treasured for centuries, are being eaten away by the chemical leprosy of air pollution.

American conservationists worry that the same fate may await the natural rock formations of the West.

Americans pay millions yearly to enjoy scenic beauty and natural recreation sites.

As Congress passes one environmental law after another, the public seems willing to pay for a clean environment.

It even seems willing, at this point, to sand still for some restrictions on its darling, the automobile.

The Environmental Protection Agency has already required big cities, as part of state pollution control plans, to find ways of reducing downtown auto traffic.

On balance, then, the benefits of environmental clean-up may well outweigh the costs even in terms of hard cash.

But the costs and the benefits do not fall evenly.

During interviews in impacted communities, people hardest hit seemed unanimous on two points:

—Pollution must stop but the cleanup was hurting them badly.

— They needed government help in readjusting to an anti-pollution economy but were not getting it.

There's little help to be had.

A Commerce Department spokesman said its only potential instrument of aid to business was the Economic Development Agency, whose $261 million fund for grants and loans is geared to economic stimulation, not the rescue of pollution casualties.

The Environmental Protection Agency began last March to send "early warnings" to the Labor Department of environmental actions that might cause layoffs.

Asked the fate of four companies on the list, a Labor Department spokesman said in June: "We're not following it."

In another interview, Leonard Burchman, the department's director of interagency relations, admitted that "early warning" was bogged down in papershuffling and communication delays.

He said EPA and Labor have revised the system to make it work more swiftly.

Once department regional offices are advised, he said, they send representatives to impacted areas to advise workers of benefit entitlements and make job lists available.

Scientists and technicians laid off in defense cutbacks can get Labor Department funds for job-hunting travel and relocation.

But for employment casualties of the war on pollution, Burchman said, "We don't have such funds and it's unfortunate."

In fact, he said, "They're cutting corners and dollars in a lot of our programs. Of course, supplementals (more money) can be brought up real quick."

As Lambilliotte put it, while planning the shutdown of his chemical plant: "Sooner or later it comes out of your pocket. How much are people willing to pay?"

OU Jury Dispute Aired

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — An Ohio Supreme Court justice has given Athens County officials until Sept. 8 to prove that students at Ohio University have not been barred from serving on juries.

Justice Lloyd Brown signed the order, which delays the trials of 75 persons charged in last spring's anti-war sit-ins at the university.

Defense attorneys argued that young people were prevented from sitting on the jury because of voter registration restrictions. County officials deny the charge.

Brown acted after Athens Municipal Judge Franklin Sheeter last week turned down a similar defense plea.

Report Progress In Mine Safety

PITTSBURGH (AP) — A spokesman for the U.S. Bureau of Mines says the federal agency has made remarkable progress in reducing the rate of fatal mining accidents and has developed new programs aimed at further reducing the rate.

"Our critics say we're doing a bad job," Donald P. Schlick, deputy director of health and safety for the bureau, said Tuesday. "But there has been substantial progress and there will be more progress in the future."

Record Earnings Bared By Firestone

AKRON, Ohio (AP) — Record 9-month sales of $1.9 billion and record earnings of $91 million have been reported by Firestone Tire & Rubber Co. for the period ended July 31.

Firestone's earnings were up 4.2 per cent over the $87.4 million of a year ago which included a one-time profit of $6.7 million from sale of an interest in a foreign company.

United Methodist Church service each Sunday at 10:30 a.m. with Rev. Carl Wetherell in the pulpit. At the door Aug. 27 will be Mrs. Kathryn Neff and Rhonda, with Mrs. June Duvall and Kelly in charge of the nursery.

The United Methodist Men will meet Aug. 30 at the Beckman residence. Bring fishing equipment and swim trunks to enjoy the lake.

Our appreciation to all the men with trucks for hauling; and with tractors and equipment for leveling the gravel; to Mrs. Vivian Dountz for the gravel; to Billy Huffman for filling the tractors with gas. Now the parking lot is ready for use. Thanks also to the ladies of the church who provided lunch for 31 hungry men.

Rev. and Mrs. Carl Wetherell spent Monday at the Lancaster Campgrounds, for a much needed day of rest.

Faith Baptist Church service each Sunday at 10:30 a.m. with Pastor Hohmann bringing the morning message.

At 5:45 p.m. — Youth Choir practice; 6:15 p.m. Jr. and Sr. High Youth meetings; Evening service 7 p.m.

Mr. and Mrs. Ed Pretzer, and four children of Mt. Clemens, Mich. arrived last Tuesday to spend several days with Mr. and Mrs. James Hastings and children.

Dr. and Mrs. Robert Glover of Evanston, Ill. visited last week with Mr. and Mrs. Harold Wilson. The last of the week Mrs. Nila Farmer, of Birmingham, Mich., visited several days with Ipha and Harold.

Mr. and Mrs. Don Montgomery (Donna Linder) 8303 Hoover Rd., are the proud parents of a son born Aug. 16 at Mt. Carmel Hospital.

Approximately 70 ladies of Pickaways County enjoyed the luncheon of the Christian Women's Club at Pickaway Arms in Circleville last Wednesday.

The next luncheon will be September 20 and feature, Addie Lockard's Flower Arrangements, with music by Geneva Ullman. Speaker will be Jane Schoonover.

Invite a friend and make reservations before Sept. 18. Call Jane Schneider, 474-4839.

Mrs. Leroy Barr arrived home on the 10:30 flight Sunday night, after spending two weeks in California.

Mr. and Mrs. Amos Jarrell, Mike and Joe vacationed last weekend in Cleveland. On Tuesday they went to Pike Lake near Chillicothe, and spent several days.

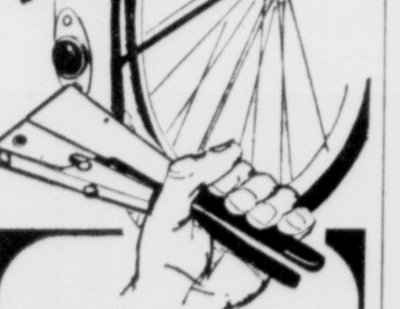

Mrs. Fern Carfrey visited last week at the home of her son Alva in Grove City, while Alva and Jo were vacationing at Indian Lake.

Ned and Rusty Wilson, and children, Bob and Margaret Glover, of Evanston, Ill. Elbert Evans of Dublin, Jack Daum of Marion, and Harold and Elpha Wilson enjoyed a lovely dinner at the Desert Inn in Columbus Friday evening.

Saturday evening at 7:30 p.m. wedding bells were ringing in our town when Miss Jill Dountz became the bride of Mr. Richard Riddle at the United Methodist Church. A reception was held in the social rooms following the wedding. After a short trip to Niagara Falls, they will be at home to their friends on West Street.

Freddy Myers went home with his sister Becky Merrill and Lori to Maryland last Sunday and visited for a week. Freddy returned home Sunday by plane — quite an adventure for him. He got along fine and really enjoyed the plane ride.

The air was filled with excitement and a lot of homesick people, both on the ground, and in the air Sunday night when the plane carrying the Teays Valley high band, Director and chaperons set down on the runway at Port Columbus. Many, many people were there to greet the girls and boys. Huge welcome signs had been erected and the junior high band, plus some high school and graduated band players, and the junior high and high school majorettes were there. The band played several pieces under the direction of Drexel Poling.

I believe that channel ten must have lost their way to Port Columbus when we checked with Mr. Papar, news director, on Saturday he assured us he would be there. Superintendent Benis Lutz welcomed Mr. Brobst and the band back and presented them with a telegram from Gov. Gilligan congratulating them on their fine performances in Europe. The band won second place overall. They brought home a huge trophy and a bronze plaque.

The Lawless reunion was held Aug. 20 at Winsor Park in Grove City. Many attended and brought lots of good food.

Sympathy is extended to the Durrett family in the death of Virgil (Bunch) Durrett of Jenkins Ave. Survived by wife Virgie; daughters, Mrs. Tom (Thelma) Rohr, Mrs. Tom (Lois) Bivens; sons, Frank (Gene), Richard (Dick); seven grandchildren and one brother William.

Virgil (Bunch) as we have always known him, lived in our community all his life until the last few years. Services were held Wednesday. Interment Beckett Cemetery. Rev. Carl Wetherell officiating.

The National Tractor Pull was held last weekend at Bowling Green. Mr. and Mrs. James Hastings and family, Mr. Jim Finch and Bobby attended over the weekend. Others from here were Mr. and Mrs. Walter Writsel, Mr. and Mrs. Harold Gulick and Jan, Bill Rush, Bus and Irene Redman, Jay Writsel, Jeff and Sheila Writsel. She is the 1972 Tractor Queen.

Matt Hastings, son of Jim and Patsy Hastings was champ in the five years of age Pedal Tractor races. Matt won first and came home with a John Deere Pedal Tractor. He was really a proud little boy.

Mrs. Ed Davie, Darlene Finch and Ms. Keith (Linda) Reese and Cindy motored to Fort Polk, La. where Keith is stationed. Linda and Cindy will be staying with her husband while stationed there. Betty and Darlene boarded a plane and flew to New Orleans, then changed flight on to Atlanta, Ga. They arrived in Columbus Airport just in time to welcome the Teays Valley band home from Europe. Darlene's daughter Betsy was with the group.

Mr. and Mrs. Carl Drake, Mr. and Mrs. Jim Storer and Candy have returned from a two weeks vacation. They spent three days at Niagara Falls and touring Canada. They enjoyed the beautiful flowers on the Canadian side which were all in bloom in all bright colors.

They visited points of interest in Pennsylvania, New York, New Hampshire, Vermont and Maine, and reported good fishing for trout and salmon in Rangely Lake. This is a beautiful lake between two mountains where the water is very clear and cold. The family had a wonderful trip and great weather to tour the country side.

Onida Holshue of Akron is visiting with Mr. and Mrs. Robert Holshue.

With the Sick
Fred Dountz is recuperating at home after spending some time at Riverside Hospital. Dwight Bethards is at Grant Hospital in fair condition. Kerr Myers is a patient at Cleveland Clinic for surgery.

Snow Hits Colorado, Wyoming

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
Showers and thunderstorms stretched across the nation from Texas to Maine today and snow blanketed parts of the Colorado Rockies.

The Colorado state patrol said Trail Ridge Road, the nation's highest continuous highway, was closed by heavy snow and snow pack. The road is the scenic route through the top of Rocky Mountain National Park.

The high country of Grand Teton National Park in northwestern Wyoming also was blanketed with snow.

High winds accompanying a thunderstorm struck in the vicinity of Saugatuck, Mich., late Wednesday night, knocking down a fruit storage building and turning over a 45-foot trailer and a small truck. No injuries were reported.

A band of showers and thunderstorms dampened the northern and central Rockies. Funnel clouds were sighted near Bristol, Colo., but did not touch down.

Woman Republican Delegate Recalls 1920 Convention

By JACKI KING
Associated Press Writer

LAGUNA BEACH, Calif. (AP) — Her wrinkled face becomes animated as she remembers the sizzling, smoke-filled Chicago auditorium where she cast one-half vote in the selection of the Republican presidential nominee.

Mrs. Byron Coon, 91, was an Iowa delegate to the first Republican National Convention that admitted women.

Mementos from that 1920 convention include patched newspaper clippings with faded headlines like "Women get taste of real politics," a brittle black book personally inscribed by the vice-presidential nominee Calvin Coolidge, worn banners and buttons which picture candidates with tightly-slicked hair, stiff collars and bow ties.

Mrs. Coon is confined to a wheelchair now with a slow-mending broken hip and she is partially blind, but her memories of that convention are vivid.

"The men looked at us askance, they really did," she recalls. "But, the women delegates didn't go into that smoke-filled room where the men were. You could hardly breathe in there. We didn't have to do any of that drinking and sweating to make a decision."

The 25 women delegates each were given one-half vote. "Can you imagine that?"

Ohio Delegate Bus Attacked

MIAMI BEACH, Fla. (AP) — Demonstrators hurled rocks and curses at a bus carrying Ohio delegates to the Republican National Convention Wednesday night, but the delegates arrived safely.

One window was smashed by a rock and one tire flattened. An estimated 50 or 75 demonstrators attacked the bus as it waited in traffic. The driver reportedly prevented them from disabling the vehicle by jockeying it back and forth as they attempted to get at its ignition and fuel system.

Among those on the bus were Cleveland Mayor Ralph Perk.

New York City Sets Record For Homicides

NEW YORK (AP) — There were more homicides Monday than in any other 24-hour period in the city's recorded history, the chief medical examiner says. Thirteen men died.

There were four murders in Brooklyn, one in the Bronx, four in Mahattan and four in Queens, including the triple slaying of Brooklyn teen agers on a deserted beach.

OU, Other Colleges Face Cuts

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Ohio, Toledo and Ohio State universities may receive reduced student subsidies as a result of lower than expected autumn quarter enrollments, an official of the Ohio Board of Regents says.

Duane Rogers, systems officer for the regents, said Wednesday, "All indications are that we will have an increase in the statewide university system, but there are several institutions not coming up to expectations." He named Ohio State, Toledo and Ohio universities.

Funds are appropriated to state universities based on school enrollment and the type of courses offered. The subsidy ranges from $480 per student per year for general studies to $1,530 for students in high-cost programs, like medicine and engineering.

Rogers said universities with enrollments lower than anticipated will have subsidies reduced. He said schools with higher enrollments may get an upward adjustment.

The exact enrollment at each institution will be known until December.

"If we do have institutions with lower enrollments, we will definitely recommend that the effect be softened," he said. Instead of a university losing the full amount of the subsidy for persons not enrolled, the school will lose only part of the amount, he said.

Rogers said the recommendation will be taken to the Ohio Controlling Board, which will make the final decision.

Snow Hits Colorado, Wyoming

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
Showers and thunderstorms stretched across the nation from Texas to Maine today and snow blanketed parts of the Colorado Rockies.

The Colorado state patrol said Trail Ridge Road, the nation's highest continuous highway, was closed by heavy snow and snow pack. The road is the scenic route through the top of Rocky Mountain National Park.

The high country of Grand Teton National Park in northwestern Wyoming also was blanketed with snow.

High winds accompanying a thunderstorm struck in the vicinity of Saugatuck, Mich., late Wednesday night, knocking down a fruit storage building and turning over a 45-foot trailer and a small truck. No injuries were reported.

A band of showers and thunderstorms dampened the northern and central Rockies. Funnel clouds were sighted near Bristol, Colo., but did not touch down.

Woman Republican Delegate Recalls 1920 Convention

By JACKI KING
Associated Press Writer

LAGUNA BEACH, Calif. (AP) — Her wrinkled face becomes animated as she remembers the sizzling, smoke-filled Chicago auditorium where she cast one-half vote in the selection of the Republican presidential nominee.

Mrs. Byron Coon, 91, was an Iowa delegate to the first Republican National Convention that admitted women. Mementos from that 1920 convention include patched newspaper clippings with faded headlines like "Women get taste of real politics," a brittle black book personally inscribed by the vice-presidential nominee Calvin Coolidge, worn banners and buttons which picture candidates with tightly-slicked hair, stiff collars and bow ties.

Mrs. Coon is confined to a wheelchair now with a slow-mending broken hip and she is partially blind, but her memories of that convention are vivid.

"The men looked at us askance, they really did," she recalls. "But, the women delegates didn't go into that smoke-filled room where the men were. You could hardly breathe in there. We didn't have to do any of that drinking and sweating to make a decision."

The 25 women delegates each were given one-half vote. "Can you imagine that?"

Ohio Delegate Bus Attacked

MIAMI BEACH, Fla. (AP) — Demonstrators hurled rocks and curses at a bus carrying Ohio delegates to the Republican National Convention Wednesday night, but the delegates arrived safely.

One window was smashed by a rock and one tire flattened.

An estimated 50 or 75 demonstrators attacked the bus as it waited in traffic. The driver reportedly prevented them from disabling the vehicle by jockeying it back and forth as they attempted to get at its ignition and fuel systems.

Among those on the bus were Cleveland Mayor Ralph Perk.

New York City Sets Record For Homicides

NEW YORK (AP) — There were more homicides Monday than in any other 24-hour period in the city's recorded history, the chief medical examiner says. Thirteen men died.

There were four murders in Brooklyn, one in the Bronx, four in Manhattan and four in Queens, including the triple slaying of Brooklyn teen-agers on a deserted beach.

Saturday September 2 will be Teddy Van Horn Day in the Kingston Municipal Park, sponsored by the Kingston American Legion Post 291. Proceeds will go to a fund to aid this young man with the expenses of a kidney transplant which he estimates will go as high as $18,000.

The operation will take place on Aug. 31 in University Hospital and the donor is his 19-year-old brother, Phillip Van Horn. They are the sons of Mr. and Mrs. William H. Van Horn of Kingston.

Teddy is 23 years old, a 1967 graduate of Zane Trace High School and served 19 months with the First Infantry Division in Germany where he met his wife, Christa, who has worked as a nurses aide in Berger Hospital the past two years. Teddy and Phillip are employed by Cole Nursery on Old Route 23. Teddy goes to Columbus three times a week for treatment on the dialysis machine.

There will be an all day fish fry on Saturday, baseball games, a concert by the Adelphi Band and round and square dancing in the evening with the Blue Grass Pioneers furnishing the music.

All proceeds will go into the fund. Contributions may also be made to the First National Bank in Kingston or deposited in containers marked for this purpose in most of the business establishments here. Blood may also be donated in Teddy's name when the blood mobile is in Chillicothe on Aug. 25.

Mrs. Robert Mackal, Mrs. Olive Glover and Mrs. Clark Gibson and son, Garry came two weeks ago and took Mrs. Orsie E. Gibson back to Wellsville for a ten day visit with her son, Clark Gibson and family. Three days were spent at Lake Guilford where she witnessed boat races and also saw the boats go out to welcome the Delta Queen to East Liverpool.

The 'Tubby Tomatoes,' a weight reducing club for young girls between the ages of 10 and 16 was organized last Tuesday at the Community Action Center with two mother advisors, Mrs. Carl Dearth and Mrs. Mervil Keeton. Officers elected were Kathy Keeton, president; Teresa Lewis, vice president; Sherry Snyder, secretary and Melody Vincent, treasurer. Until school begins, meetings will be at 2 p.m. at the center and change to 3:30 after Sept. 6. New members in the 10-16 age group are urged to come to meetings. The ladies group 'Flabby Action' is also looking for more members.

Mr. and Mrs. Neal Thomas (Susan Wyman) are parents of an 8-pound 3 3/4-ounce son, John Boyd Thomas, born Aug. 16 in Grant Hospital, Columbus. Grandparents are Mr. and Mrs. John B. Thomas, Kingston and Mr. and Mrs. Alton B. Wyman, 632 Garden Drive, Chillicothe.

Mr. and Mrs. Gregg Reisinger (Leesa Stokes) are announcing the birth of a son, Bret Michael, Sunday in Chillicothe Hospital. He weighed 8-pounds, 8-ounces. The grandparents are Mr. and Mrs. Jack Reisinger of Kingston and Mr. and Mrs. Wilby Stokes of Chillicothe, Mr. and Mrs. Fred B. Orr.

Mrs. Celia Hinton and her brother and sister-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Chaffin visited their brother, Arlie at his home in Kenova, W. Va., on Sunday

He had been discharged from the hospital after 12 days of medical attention.

They came home by way of Gallipolis and had supper at Bob Evans restaurant at his home near there. On Saturday Mrs. Hinton attended the annual Black family reunion at Ted Lewis Park in Circleville.

Two properties in the estate of the late David Adams that sold at public auction Saturday were sold to J. L. Maxwell, who bought the residence at Fourth and Walnut St. The house at Fourth St. and Woodlawn Ave. was sold to Mr. and Mrs. Orlie B. Shanton, Chillicothe, Route 1.

Guests of Mr. and Mrs. Clifford Davis Monday night to celebrate his birthday were Mr. and Mrs. Paul Ankrom and daughter, Becky, Mr. and Mrs.

A. Houser and son, Tod, Mr. and Mrs. J. T. Reagon, Shelly Immell, Morrow Georgia and Susie Davis. It was a surprise party and refreshments were ice cream and cake.

A number of the members of the Kingston Chapter of the Order of Eastern Star and friends had a night out at London's dinner theater, The Red Barn, and saw, "The Last Of The Red Hot Lovers." Among those who went from Kingston were Mrs. Donald Carroll, Mrs. Ed Jones, Ed Jones Jr., Mr. and Mrs. Bill Meadows, Mr. and Mrs. Sherman Edler, Mr. and Mrs. Raymond Davis, Mrs. Herbert Lemley, Miss Joann Lemley, Mrs. Gwen Rhoades, Mrs. Elizabeth Bennett, Mrs. Dwight Williams, Miss Becky Williams, Mrs. Deb Carmean, Mrs. Harry Edwards, Mr. and Mrs. Larry Kerns, Mrs. Marie Cloud, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Graves, Mrs. Charles Wood and Miss Mary Kay Wood.

Van Buskirk, Mrs. Gary Courtright and son, Aaron, Mr. and Mrs. Ted Herron, Mr. and Mrs. George Roll, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Roll and daughters, Mr. and Mrs. Guy Norman and Jeff, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Haneline and sons and Mr. and Mrs. Roy E. Roll.

Mr. and Mrs. Irwin Dresbach and sons, Tony, Tracy and Terry camped a few days last week at Lake Pymatuning and Salt Fork Lake in Eastern Ohio. They enjoyed a visit in the Amish communities and Schoenbrunn Village, the first settlement in Ohio.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Betz and son, Casey have returned from a vacation in Clearwater, Fla. where they visited his sister and family, Mr. and Mrs. Jack Donahue, Jackie and Marc and Mr. and Mrs. David An-person and children.

Mr. and Mrs. Rex Dye and daughter have returned from a two week camping trip in Florida. They visited St. Augustine, Key West, Tallahassee, Tampa and Disney World and stopped at Myrtle Beach on the way home. On Friday Mrs. Dye's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Merle Wolfe, formerly of Kingston, observed their 46th wedding anniversary. They visited Mr. Wolfe in Chillicothe Hospital where he is in serious condition following a stroke.

Mr. and Mrs. Sherman Edler, and Mr. and Mrs. Carl Phillips were camping at Rocky Fork Lake over the weekend.

Zane Trace Schools will open on Sept. 6 with all day sessions. The teachers meeting will be on Sept. 5 at the High School.

Social Security Answers

Q. When I recently became 62, I was told by the people at the social security office that I needed one more quarter of work to be eligible for monthly payments. I now have an opportunity to work in a friend's store, but the work will only last for 4 weeks. Do I have to work a full 3-month calendar quarter to get the credit I need?

A. No. As long as you are paid at least $50 in wages in any part of a calendar quarter, you get credit for the whole quarter under social security.

Q. My wife worked in a department store for nearly four years before she died recently. Our only child has been in a home for the mentally retarded since she was 15. She is now 27. Could our daughter get social security checks on my wife's work record?

A. It's quite possible that your daughter can get checks. Call any social security office and ask about benefits for a disabled adult child.

Q. My husband died three years ago. I'll be 60 in a few months and I want to apply for monthly social security widow's payments. Must I wait until I'm 60 to apply?

A. No. You should apply two or three months before you reach 60. You'll need proof of your age, proof of your marriage, and your husband's social security number when you apply. If you have a social security number of your own, you'll need that number as well. But you should not delay filing your application because you don't have all of the items listed above. The people at the social security office may be able to help obtain them.

Q. I'm a 19-year-old student getting social security benefits. Since I'm not sure whether I'll stay in school after this year, how should I complete the student reporting card I get in the mail?

A. Indicate on the report that you will not attend school next year. This will prevent any possible overpayment to you. If you decide to return to school, get in touch with any social security office as soon as you know you will start attending full time again.

Van Buskirk, Mrs. Gary Courtright and son, Aaron, Mr. and Mrs. Ted Herron, Mr. and Mrs. George Roll, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Roll and daughters, Mr. and Mrs. Guy Norman and Jeff, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Haneline and sons and Mr. and Mrs. Roy E. Roll.

Mr. and Mrs. Irwin Dresbach and sons, Tony, Tracy and Terry camped a few days last week at Lake Pymatuning and Salt Fork Lake in Eastern Ohio. They enjoyed a visit in the Amish communities and Schoenbrunn Village, the first settlement in Ohio.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Betz and son, Casey have returned from a vacation in Clearwater, Fla. where they visited his sister and family, Mr. and Mrs. Jack Donahue, Jackie and Marc and Mr. and Mrs. David Anderson and children.

Mr. and Mrs. Rex Dye and daughter have returned from a two week camping trip in Florida. They visited St. Augustine, Key West, Talahassee, Tampa and Disney World and stopped at Myrtle Beach on the way home. On Friday Mrs. Dye's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Merle Wolfe, formerly of Kingston, observed their 46th wedding anniversary. They visited Mr. Wolfe in Chillicothe Hospital where he is in serious condition following a stroke.

Mr. and Mrs. Sherman Edler and Mr. and Mrs. Carl Phillips were camping at Rocky Fork Lake over the weekend.

Zane Trace Schools will open on Sept. 6 with all day sessions. The teachers meeting will be on Sept. 5 at the High School.

Social Security Answers

Q. When I recently became 62, I was told by the people at the social security office that I needed one more quarter of work to be eligible for monthly payments. I now have an opportunity to work in a friend's store, but the work will only last for 4 weeks. Do I have to work a full 3-month calendar quarter to get the credit I need?

A. No. As long as you are paid at least $50 in wages in any part of a calendar quarter, you get credit for the whole quarter under social security.

Q. My wife worked in a department store for nearly four years before she died recently. Our only child has been in a home for the mentally retarded since she was 15. She is now 27. Could our daughter get social security checks on my wife's work record?

A. It's quite possible that your daughter can get checks. Call any social security office and ask about benefits for a disabled adult child.

Q. My husband died three years ago. I'll be 60 in a few months and I want to apply for monthly social security widow's payments. Must I wait until I'm 60 to apply?

A. No. You should apply two or three months before you reach 60. You'll need proof of your age, proof of your marriage, and your husband's social security number when you apply. If you have a social security number of your own, you'll need that number as well. But you should not delay filing your application because you don't have all of the items listed above. The people at the social security office may be able to help obtain them.

Q. I'm a 19-year-old student getting social security benefits. Since I'm not sure whether I'll stay in school after this year, how should I complete the student reporting card I get in the mail?

A. Indicate on the report that you will not attend school next year. This will prevent any possible overpayment to you. If you decide to return to school, get in touch with any social security office as soon as you know you will start attending full time again.

Cards Face Houston Oilers Despite Death Of Drulis

By MICHAEL A. LUTZ

Associated Press Sports Writer

HOUSTON (AP) — The St.

Louis Cardinals, shocked by the sudden death of defensive coach Chuck Drulis, try to concentrate on football in the Astrodome tonight against the Houston Oilers in an exhibition football game.

Drulis collapsed and died

Wednesday on the charter flight from St. Louis to Houston. The plane landed at Little Rock, Ark., where Drulis was pronounced dead.

Drulis was attended on the plane by team physician Dr.

Fred Reynolds.

The game will feature quarterbacks for both teams trying to nail down starting bethrs.

Cardinal Coach Bob Holloway will open with either Gary

Cuzzo or veteran Cardinal Jim Hart. Cuzzo, who came to the Cards in a trade from Minnesota, has started all three St.

Louis games.

Houston Coach Bill Peterson is expected to counter with second year quarterback Lyn

Dickey, who is challenging Dan

Pastorini, also a second-year man, for the starting Oiler job.

Holloway also has Tim Van

Galder took command with St.

a starting quarterback. Van

Galder took command with St.

Louis trailing 13-0 against Denver and produced 17 second half points for a 17-13 victory.

Elsewhere, Jerry Shay, a former defensive tackle with three

NFL teams, signed Wednesday with the Edmonton Eskimos of the Canadian Football League.

Shay was drafted by Minnesota in 1966, then was traded to Atlanta and later to the New York Giants.

The Washington Redskins announced the activation of four players for their Friday night exhibition against the Detroit

Lions. The four, formerly on the injured list, are defensive end Jimmy Jones, running back Jeff Jordan, linebacker

Rocky Rosema and offensive tackle George Starke.

The 'Skins also asked waivers on linebackers Steve Furrughelli and Glyn Tucker and running back Willie Lewis.

And in Cleveland, the Browns announced the signing of a 10-year contract—renewable every two years—to play at Municipal Stadium.

Ron Woods, making a rare

start against a right-handed

three-run homers to help Mon-

teal bury Cincinnati.

"It's unusual for me to hit

said Woods, shaking his head in disbelief over his performance.

"I'm not trying to do anything different—I'm just trying to make contact when I go up."

Jim Barr pitched a two-hitter

out and Willie McCovey blasted a two-run homer to lead San Francisco over Pittsburgh.

Four straight hits, including

Tomy Helms' two-run single, highlighted a five-run fourth inning that carried Houston over

New York. Larry Dierker scat-

nine Mets to notch his 12th victory in 19 decisions this year.

Willie Davis had three singles and knocked in a run to back

the four-hit pitching of Bill

Singer as Los Angeles defeated

St. Louis. Billy Williams drove in three runs and Joe Pepitone and Paul Popovich had two

RBI apiece to pace Chicago over San Diego.

"Last night (Tuesday) it was

Tommy McCraw, tonight it was my turn and tomorrow it'll be somebody else.

"I don't like to talk much about winning the championship," said Bell, "because I

popping off or anything like that. And I don't want to jinx us.

But let's face it. We're playing for the pennant, not to finish second or third. Heck, if you finish even second, you don't win and you might as well be last. Winning is the only thing. And if we keep knocking off the big clubs like

Detroit and Baltimore, as we have been doing, then anything can happen.

Bell's big blow came after

Cleveland had loaded the bases on Ray Fosse's double. Del Un-

walk to McCraw. Reliever

Wayne Granger came in and

Bowa Wants Trade As Braves Top Phils, 9-6

By KEN RAPPOPORT

Associated Press Sports Writer

Play me or trade me, insists shortstop Larry Bowa of the Philadelphia Phillies. Don't press your luck, says Manager

Paul Owens.

The player and his boss took verbal swings at each other following Wednesday night's 9-6 loss to the Atlanta Braves.

"I think I'm going to be traded," said Bowa, who claims he's in Owens' dog house. "Nobody appreciates anything I do."

Would Owens trade possibly

baseball.

"Certainly I would," said

Owens. "If I could help the club, I would. Nobody's untouchable here. But I wouldn't

trade."

Bowa was particularly irked

after Owens pulled him out of

sixth inning in favor of Terry

Harmon.

"He told me I needed a rest," said the 26-year-old defensive star who set a major league fielding record for shot-stops last season. "There's no way I can buy that. Who needs a rest when there is a day off

Owens responded to Bowa's acid remarks with fire.

"Tell him to go bleep in his hat," said the manager. "Some people aren't smart enough to understand anything. His trouble is that he's happy when he gets two hits and we lose

... but he's burned up when he gets shut out and we win."

While tempers exploded in

in Montreal as the Expos crushed the West-leading Cin-

hit attack in another National League baseball game.

Elsewhere, the San Francisco

Giants clobbered the East-leading Pittsburgh Pirates 8-0; the Houston Astros defeated the

New York Mets 7-4; the Los

the St. Louis Cardinals 3-0 and the Chicago Cubs clipped the San Diego Padres 7-5.

The clash between Bowa and Owens apparently reflected the pressures of a losing team. Felix Millan banged three hits and Dusty Baker ripped a home run as the Braves handed the Phillies their 74th loss in 117 games, the worst record in baseball.

start against a right-handed

pitcher, responded with two,

three-run homers to help Mon-

teal bury Cincinnati.

"It's unusual for me to hit

one home run, let alone two,"

said Woods, shaking his head in disbelief over his performance.

Bell, Tribe Rip Twins, Win Tilt, 5-1

CLEVELAND, Ohio (AP) — "This is unbelievable," said Cleveland Indians rookie outfielder Buddy Bell Wednesday night after he clubbed a three-run double in the seventh inning that triggered the Tribe's 5-1 victory over the Minnesota Twins.

The victory gave Cleveland a three-game sweep of the series and was their fifth triumph in a row. They remain just 6 1/2 games out of first place in the American League East with 38 games to play.

"It's unbelievable how there's always somebody else coming through to pick up this team," said the 20-year-old long-haired rookie.

"Last night (Tuesday) it was Tommy McCraw, tonight it was my turn and tomorrow it'll be somebody else."

"I don't like to talk much about winning the championship," said Bell, "because I don't want to sound like I'm popping off or anything like that. And I don't want to jinx us."

Dual Tourney Marks A 1st For Golfdom

PINEHURST, N.C. (AP) — Pro golf's first doubleheader, with two separate and distinct tournaments being played at the same time on the same course, got underway today with only one thing certain:

The man who leads the $100,000 Liggett and Myers Open after 36 holes has absolutely no chance of winning. In fact, he won't even be allowed to compete for the $20,000 first prize.

He'll have to shift over to the $150,000 U.S. Professional Match Play Tournament—with the possibility of facing Jack Nicklaus or Lee Trevino or Arnold Palmer head-to-head in his first match.

Both tournaments are on the 6,953-yard, par 72 Country Club of North Carolina course. The L&M is a regular 72-hole stroke play event. It runs through Sunday with one round of 18 holes each day.

On the weekend, the match play tournament will be held. It's straight match play, he only one on the pro schedule this year, in which one player goes head-to-head with his opponent. Two rounds are scheduled both Saturday and Sunday.

Eight players including Nicklaus, Trevino, Palmer and defending match play champion DWitt Weaver, are exempt. They won't play until the weekend. Eight more will come out of the L&M to serve as their opponents in the first round of match play.

The eight will come from the top of the standings after 36 holes of the L&M. They will become ineligible for further competition in the stroke play event—whether they want to continue or not—and must compete in the first round of the match play against one of the eight exempt players.

Old Guard On Way Out In Olympics

MUNICH (AP) — They're changing guard in the Olympic movement and a hint of new ideas is in the air.

Lord Killanin, elected Wednesday to succeed Avery Brundage as president of the International Olympic Committee, indicates he will not be a diehard champion of amateurism during his eight-year term.

"I don't believe in open Olympics," he said in an interview. "I don't believe in professional Olympics. But I do think we have to realize that we are about to enter the last quarter of the 20th Century."

Killanin, 59-year-old Irish nobleman who has been a journalist, author and movie producer, does not take over as president until the end of the Munich Games Sept. 10. Until the Olympic torch is extinguished, Brundage, who has refused to budge an inch on amateurism and the eligibility rule for the last 20 years, remains in office.

"I will make no policy statements for the moment," Killanin said. "I do not wish to say anything which might be interpreted as being in conflict with the president—not that there is any conflict between us."

But Killanin's remarks on amateurism followed significantly on those of Willi Daume, 59-year-old president of the West German National Olympic Committee, at the formal opening of the IOC session last weekend.

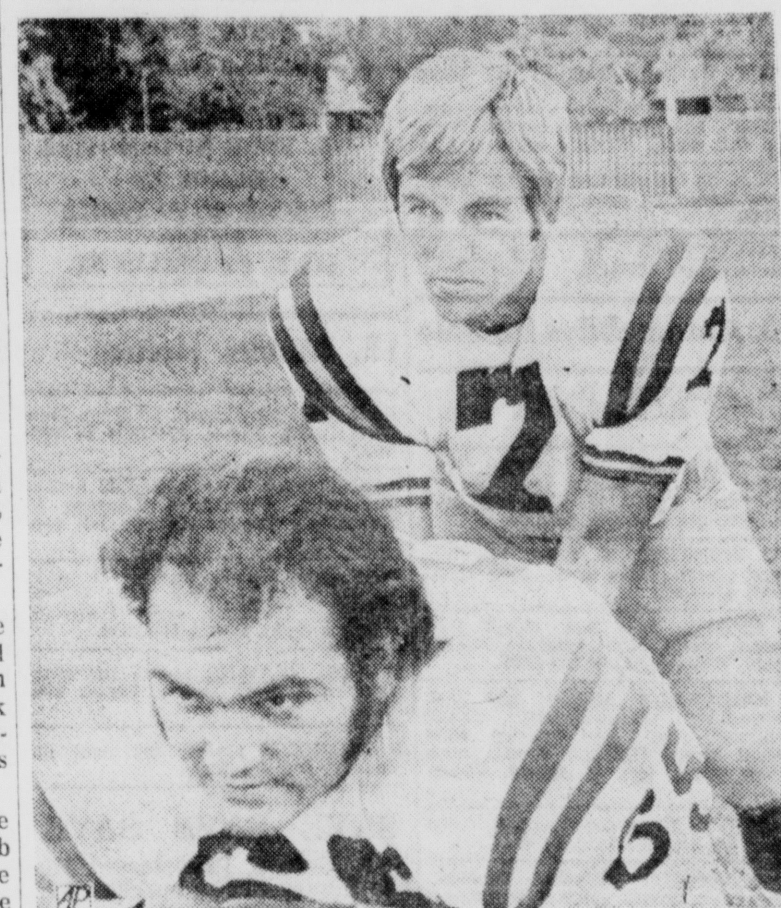

Daume said then that the high Olympic standards of today "can no longer be achieved by amateurism in the usual sense of the word."

New Licensing Requirements Sought

WASHINGTON (AP) — Highway safety requirements demand licensing of drivers according to the level of their ability. Franklin M. Kreml, president of the Automobile Manufacturers Association, told a Transpo '72 conference recently.

In addressing the International Vehicle and Highway Safety Conference, Kreml advocated the issuing of licenses for limited purposes such as "Daylight Driving Only," "Automatic Transmission Vehicles Only" or "Non-Freeway Driving."

Another recommendation was that of offering classes of licenses such as "Elementary," "It is no longer adequate to issue a single license for operation of all private cars under all conditions," said Kreml. "For safer highway travel we must improve the skill of drivers even as we produce safer vehicles and better roads," he said.

Montreal Expos Trample All Over Cincy Reds, 11-0

MONTREAL (AP) — The Cincinnati Reds were shutout by the Montreal Expos 11-0 Wednesday night, their worst defeat of the year.

No team had scored more than 10 runs against Cincinnati this year and it was only the fourth time this season the Western Division leaders of the National League were shut out.

Claiming the victory was Montreal's Balor Moore, 5-6.

Cincinnati starting pitcher Wayne Simpson was lifted in the third inning after giving up a three-run homer to Ron Woods, who hit another in the sixth. Simpson was tagged for a solo homer to Ron Woods, who hit another in the sixth. Simpson was tagged for a solo homer in the first inning by Kent Singleton.

"I was in command of my breaking pitch," said winner Moore afterwards. He struck out 13 Reds, walked one and allowed only four hits in the effort.

Moore said he went into the game intending to make the Reds "hit the ball," but discovered early that his fast ball was "moving a lot."

Findlay Probe Of Police Slated

FINDLAY, Ohio (AP)—The Civil Service Commission rejected Wednesday motions to dismiss charges against former police Chief Morris Frankhouser and his administrative assistant, Lt. Warren Cornelious.

The commission named a three-member board to begin hearings Sept. 11 on charges ranging from incompetence to insubordination lodged against the two by Mayor John Sausser.

Sausser brought the charges July 21, when he demoted Frankhouser to lieutenant and Cornelious to patrolman. He named Capt. Woodrow Ziegler acting chief.

Cleveland Browns Dream Of Stadium

CLEVELAND, Ohio (AP) — Within five years, Cleveland Browns football fans may be watching their favorite team in a new 80,000 stadium.

Browns owner Art Modell revealed Wednesday that during the past two months he has been discussing the feasibility of building a new stadium on city-owned land in suburban Warrensville Township or still another location in the southwest suburb area of Cuyahoga County.

Du Pont Edged 1-0 In Tourney

Pickaway DuPont was edged out of the Chillicothe Tournament when the Chillicothe Merchants won 1-0 at the Scioto Valley Little League park Wednesday evening.

Tony Crist hurled the ball for Pickaway DuPont striking out seven walking two and giving up two hits.

Lynn Strehle rapped the only hit for the DuPonters — a single.

Doug Cousins went the first six innings on the mound for the Chillicothe merchants giving up no hits, walking three and striking out ten. Toby Wallingford came on in the seventh to strikeout one and allowed one hit.

Wallingford and Bonner were the two hitters for the Merchants each with a one bagger.

The Chillicothe Merchants will go on to play the loser of the Londonderry-Richmond Dale game tonight and then the winner will have to win twice in the championship games to win the tournament.

Pickaway DuPont finished fourth in the Chillicothe Tournament out of the 24 teams that started, winning six and losing two. The DuPonters were undefeated in their league with a 12-0 record and out of the 35 games Pickaway DuPont has played this season they have won 29.

Hull Files Suit Over Reserve Clause

CHICAGO (AP) — Superstar Bobby Hull has filed suit against his former team, the Chicago Black Hawks, perhaps forcing a legal showdown between the long-established National Hockey League and the new World Hockey Association.

The suit, filed Wednesday in U.S. District Court, challenges the NHL's "reserve clause," contending that it violates the Sherman Anti-Trust Act and monopolizes professional hockey.

Ross, who is executive director of the Urban Educational Coalition most of the year, turns sculptor when it's Ohio State Fair time.

This year he recreated a life-size figure of the "Golden Bear" golfer that he first produced for fairgoers in 1967. There's no question that Ross' work is in good taste. Instead of using clay or rock, he sculpts from butter.

His "studio" is a giant glass-front refrigerator at the American Dairy Association of Ohio display building at the fair, which opens Thursday. His raw material is half ton of butter from local creamery.

"It's about the same as clay, as long as the temperature is around 48 degrees," Ross says. He doesn't mind the chilly working conditions, noting "I just wear a jacket. It's nice and cool."

Keeping Nicklaus company in this year's dairy display are full-size figures of a Guernsey cow and calf. Ross, who lives in Worthington, says he worked eight hours a day for over a week to complete the sculptures.

Grand American Pace Changes Today

VANDALIA, Ohio (AP)—The pace changed today in the 73rd annual Grand American Trapshooting Tournament as the first of the world's two largest handicap events was scheduled. Officials of the Amateur Trapshooting Association said they expected a record field of 2,400 to take part in the Preliminary Handicap and as many as 3,100 in the Grand American scheduled Friday.

Pearl City Beats USAF Independents

WILLIAMSPORT, Pa. (AP) —When a baseball team has nine solid hitters, who does the manager pick to bat last?

Albert Serion, manager of the Pearl City, Hawaii, entry in the Little League World Series, chose his son, Ross, for the ninth spot. He responded with a home run and a double Wednesday, pacing his team to an easy 11-2 victory over U.S. Air Force.

"I can't argue with coach Brown," he said at the Bengals' Wilmington College training camp. "I'll just have to wait and see. I'm certainly not conceding anything."

"I've really... it's exhibition season... and I'm really not wanting to make any statement."

Pressed for a reason he hasn't been able to move the Bengals' offense, Carter responded: "I don't want to be rude about it, but it doesn't make any sense to make statements about it until I've thought about it and seen the films."

"I really don't want to go into it," he said.

Carter, 26, a Brigham Young University product who came to Cincinnati from Buffalo in 1970 and led the club to a National Football League Central Division title, noted the Bengals have tried to keep check on emotions this summer. Last year the Bengals won five of their six pre-season games, but lost 10 of their 14 regular season contests.

Elderly Delicatessen Owner 'Mother' To Johnny Bench

CINCINNATI (AP)—Pia Battaglia has found John Bench's weaknesses—a special dish of lasagna, and a meal of steak with mushrooms and eggs.

Mrs. Battaglia, in her 70s, runs a delicatessen about three blocks from Bench's home and the 24-year-old Cincinnati Reds catcher frequently eats there, but not just because of the good food.

"She's been like a mother to me," said Bench, a bachelor from Einger, Okla. "She simply can't do enough for me."

Bench said he takes his time eating and enjoys chatting with Mrs. Battaglia who is the mother of former Reds trainer Al Battaglia.

Bench said Mrs. Battaglia has been a delicatessen for about 20 years.

"She has a heart problem, and I have to get on her not to work too hard and make her take a nap in the afternoon once in awhile," he said.

Bench recalled that he bought Mrs. Battaglia a pot of flowers for Mother's Day. He said she placed them on the counter of the store in a quickly noticed spot.

"See what Johnny brought me," he said she pointed out to customers.

ONE OUT OF 10 LITTLE CARS HAS ALL THIS. VEGA'S THE ONE.

Each front wheel of a Vega sports a big standard 10-inch disc brake for steady stops.

Each seat is full foam cushioned and contour molded to fit your legs and back, softly.

A bigger engine than most little cars have makes Vega respond quicker, more fun to drive.

You get a coil spring at each wheel (same as you do on a big car) to smooth the ride.

A power ventilation system keeps air moving through the car, even when it isn't moving.

Battery terminals are on the side and sealed, so they shouldn't corrode and stop you from starting.

Did you know that The Vega Drive Is On? It's not something you give to, it's something you get at your Chevrolet dealer's: a chance to test drive, test handle, test enjoy Vega's better ways.

Lord Killanin, elected Wednesday to succeed Avery Brundage as president of the International Olympic Committee, indicates he will not be a diehard champion of amateurism during his eight-year term.

"I don't believe in open Olympics," he said in an interview. "I don't believe in professional Olympics. But I do think we have to realize that we are about to enter the last quarter of the 20th Century."

Killanin, 59-year-old Irish nobleman who has been a journalist, author and movie producer, does not take over as president until the end of the Munich Games Sept. 10. Until the Olympic torch is extinguished, Brundage, who has refused to budge an inch on amateurism and the eligibility rule for the last 20 years, remains in office. "I will make no policy statements for the moment," Killanin said. "I do not wish to say anything which might be interpreted as being in conflict with the president—not that there is any conflict between us."

But Killanin's remarks on amateurism followed significantly on those of Willi Daume, 59-year-old president of the West German National Olympic Committee, at the formal opening of the IOC session last weekend.

Daume said then that the high Olympic standards of today "can no longer be achieved by amateurism in the usual sense of the word."

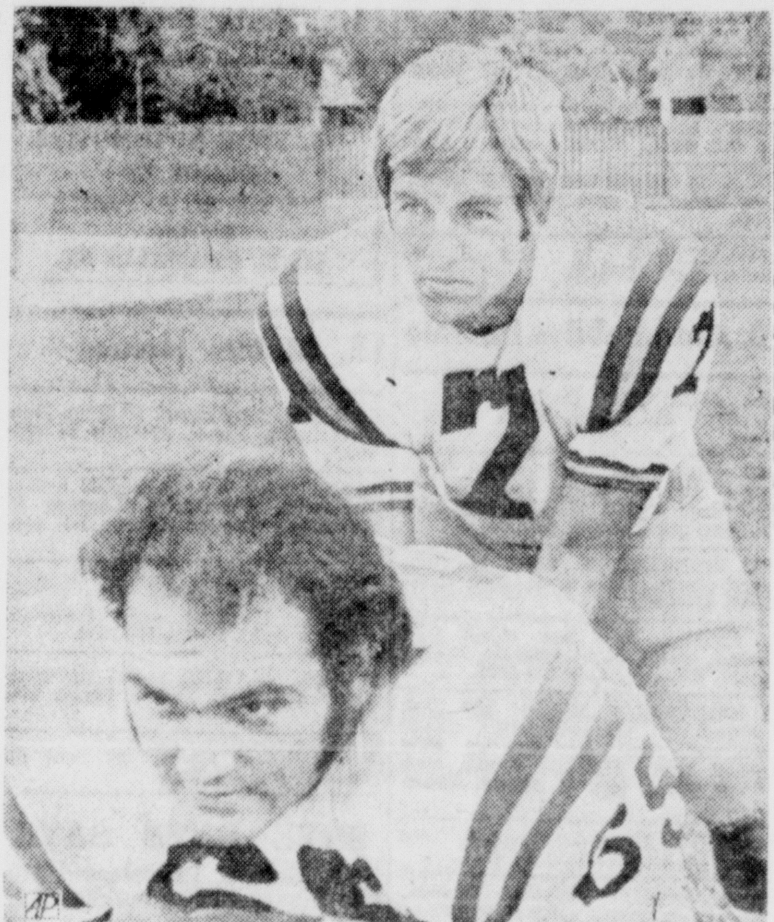

New Licensing Requirements Sought

WASHINGTON (AP) — Highway safety requirements demand licensing of drivers according to the level of their ability, Franklin M. Kreml, president of the Automobile Manufacturers Association, told a Transpo '72 conference recently.

In addressing the International Vehicle and Highway Safety Conference, Kreml advocated the issuing of licenses for limited purposes such as "Daylight Driving Only," "Automatic Transmission Vehicles Only" or "Non-Freeway Driving."

Another recommendation was that of offering classes of licenses such as "Elementary."

"It is no longer adequate to issue a single license for operation of all private cars under all conditions," said Kreml. "For safer highway travel we must improve the skill of drivers even as we produce safer vehicles and better roads," he said.

Montreal Expos Trample All Over Cincy Reds, 11-0

MONTREAL (AP) — The Cincinnati Reds were shutout by the Montreal Expos 11-0 Wednesday night, their worst defeat of the year.

No team had scored more than 10 runs against Cincinnati this year and it was only the fourth time this season the Western Division leaders of the National League were shut out.

Claiming the victory was Montreal's Balor Moore, 5-6.

Cincinnati starting pitcher Wayne Simpson was lifted in the third inning after giving up a three-run homer to Ron Woods, who hit another in the sixth. Simpson was tagged for a solo homer to Ron Woods, who hit another in the sixth. Simpson was tagged for a solo homer in the first inning by Kent Singleton.

"I was in command of my breaking pitch," said winner Moore afterwards. He struck out 13 Reds, walked one and allowed only four hits in the effort.

Moore said he went into the game intending to make the Reds "hit the ball," but discovered early that his fast ball was "moving a lot."

Findlay Probe Of Police Slated

FINDLAY, Ohio (AP)—The Civil Service Commission rejected Wednesday motions to dismiss charges against former police Chief Morris Frankhouser and his administrative assistant, Lt. Warren Cornelious.

The commission named a three-member board to begin hearings Sept. 11 on charges ranging from incompetence to insubordination lodged against the two by Mayor John Sausser.

Sausser brought the charges July 21, when he demoted Frankhouser to lieutenant and Cornelious to patrolman. He named Capt. Woodrow Ziegler acting chief.

Cleveland Browns Dream Of Stadium

CLEVELAND, Ohio (AP) — Within five years, Cleveland Browns football fans may be watching their favorite team in a new 80,000 stadium.

Browns owner Art Modell revealed Wednesday that during the past two months he has been discussing the feasibility of building a new stadium on city-owned land in suburban Warrensville Township or still another location in the southwest suburb area of Cuyahoga County.

Virgil Carter Won't Talk About Lack Of Success

WILMINGTON, Ohio (AP) — Virgil Carter, outwardly unperturbed by his lackluster pre-season performances for the Cincinnati Bengals, says he's "not conceding anything" in his fight for a starting assignment.

"I really haven't sat down and thought about it," Carter said Tuesday night of his role in the Bengals' 1-2 record in pre-season games. He's thrown 19 passes and completed only seven for 80 yards, but says he's not worried yet.

"I think there are some circumstances that have prevailed," he said, but he declined to elaborate.

Reminded of head coach Paul Brown's statements Tuesday that quarterback Ken Anderson, a solid performer in pre-season games thus far, would see increasing amounts of playing time, Carter was mum.

"I can't argue with coach Brown," he said at the Bengals' Wilmington College training camp. "I'll just have to wait and see. I'm certainly not conceding anything."

"I've really... it's exhibition season... and I'm really not wanting to make any statement."

Pressed for a reason he hasn't been able to move the Bengals' offense, Carter responded: "I don't want to be rude about it, but it doesn't make any sense to make statements about it until I've thought about it and seen the films."

"I really don't want to go into it," he said.

Carter, 26, a Brigham Young University product who came to Cincinnati from Buffalo in 1970 and led the club to a National Football League Central Division title, noted the Bengals have tried to keep check on emotions this summer. Last year the Bengals won five of their six pre-season games, but lost 10 of their 14 regular season contests.

Hull Files Suit Over Reserve Clause

CHICAGO (AP) — Superstar Bobby Hull has filed suit against his former team, the Chicago Black Hawks, perhaps forcing a legal showdown between the long-established National Hockey League and the new World Hockey Association.

The suit, filed Wednesday in U.S. District Court, challenges the NHL's "reserve clause," contending that it violates the Sherman Anti-Trust Act and monopolizes professional hockey.

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Golf may mean bread and butter to Jack Nicklaus, but Nicklaus means just plain butter to Dick Ross.

Ross, who is executive director of the Urban Educational Coalition most of the year, turns sculptor when it's Ohio State Fair time.

This year he recreated a life-size figure of the "Golden Bear" golfer that he first produced for fairgoers in 1967.

There's no question that Ross' work is in good taste. Instead of using clay or rock, he sculpts from butter.

His "studio" is a giant glass-front refrigerator at the American Dairy Association of Ohio display building at the fair, which opens Thursday. His raw material is half ton of butter from local creamery.

"It's about the same as clay, as long as the temperature is around 48 degrees," Ross says. He doesn't mind the chilly working conditions, noting "I just wear a jacket. It's nice and cool."

Keeping Nicklaus company in this year's dairy display are full-size figures of a Guernsey cow and calf. Ross, who lives in Worthington, says he worked eight hours a day for over a week to complete the sculptures.

Each front wheel of a Vega sports a big standard 10-inch disc brake for steady stops.

Each seat is full foam cushioned and contour molded to fit your legs and back, softly.

Vega is the only little car with a guard beam in every door for added protection in the event of side impact.

For strength, two steel roofs—not just one. For quiet, the inner roof acts like acoustical tile.

You can go 50,000 miles under normal driving conditions, before Vega's engine air filter needs replacing.

A bigger engine than most little cars have makes Vega respond quicker, more fun to drive.

Vega has rocker panels that actually clean themselves of salt, dirt and other rust causers.

Grand American Pace Changes Today

VANDALIA, Ohio (AP)—The pace changed today in the 73rd annual Grand American Trapshooting Tournament as the first of the world's two largest handicap events was scheduled. Officials of the Amateur Trapshooting Association said they expected a record field of 2,400 to take part in the Preliminary Handicap and as many as 3,100 in the Grand American scheduled Friday.

Pearl City Beats USAF Independents

WILLIAMSPORT, Pa. (AP) —When a baseball team has nine solid hitters, who does the manager pick to bat last?

Albert Serion, manager of the Pearl City, Hawaii, entry in the Little League World Series, chose his son, Ross, for the ninth spot. He responded with a home run and a double Wednesday, pacing his team to an easy 11-2 victory over U.S. Air Force.

Elderly Delicatessen Owner 'Mother' To Johnny Bench

CINCINNATI (AP)—Pia Battaglia has found John Bench's weaknesses—a special dish of lasagna, and a meal of steak with mushrooms and eggs.

Mrs. Battaglia, in her 70s, runs a delicatessen about three blocks from Bench's home and the 24-year-old Cincinnati Reds catcher frequently eats there, but not just because of the good food.

"She's been like a mother to me," said Bench, a bachelor from Binger, Okla. "She simply can't do enough for me."

"She can't wait until I have a day off and I can't wait either because she wants to fix me my favorite—lasagna," Bench continued. "Her favorite menu for me no matter what time I come in is steak with mushrooms and eggs."

Bench said he takes his time eating and enjoys chatting with Mrs. Battaglia who is the mother of former Reds trainer Al Battaglia.

Bench said Mrs. Battaglia has been a the delicatessen for about 20 years.

"She has a heart problem, and I have to get on her not to work too hard and make her take a nap in the afternoon once in awhile," he said.

Bench recalled that he bought Mrs. Battaglia a pot of flowers for Mother's Day. He said she placed them on the counter of the store in a quickly noticed spot.

"See what Johnny brought me," he said she pointed out to customers.

State Fair Under Way

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP)—A 40 per cent chance of rain and the loss of 105 hours of live television programming from the grounds hadn't dampened officials' hopes of record crowds as the Ohio State Fair began its 119th run today.

Officials remained optimistic that "Expo '72" would attract 2.5 million people during the 12 days the big exhibition is on.

Following the official opening at dawn with ribbon-cutting ceremonies by Gov. John Gilligan, accompanied by music from the All-Ohio Boys Band, highlights of today's "Lancaster Day" activities included a marching band festival, amateur boxing tournament and two grandstand shows by country-western singer Glen Campbell.

To fill the void created when Aveo Broadcasting television shows were canceled because of labor troubles, additional grandstand shows have been put on the fair schedule.

Fair Manager Vic Lucas said some of the county's top barbershop and Gospel quartets have been lined up for Monday morning country singer Donna Fargo will appear Tuesday and Mae Davis has agreed to do shows Thursday, expanding his appearance here to three days.

West Virginia Prisoner Jailed Here

Pickaway County Sheriff Dwight Radcliff, following up a routine investigation of Aug. 18, discovered that a passenger in a car with stolen license plates driven by a West Virginia man was an escaped prisoner.

The sheriff said the men were arrested when Deputy Jim Deal discovered their car's tail lights were not working. He found, that license tags on the car were stolen from West Virginia and the men were carrying a concealed weapon in the auto.

The passenger, who gave his name as Donald Clark was actually Gary Wayne Miller, according to Radcliff.

He told Radcliff that he walked away from Fairmont Emergency Hospital, in West Virginia, July 20, where he had been hospitalized for a broken shoulder.

He was sent to the hospital from Huttonsville Correctional Center where he was being confined on a breaking and entering charge.

Lancaster PD Arrests Man Wanted Here

Ervin C. Dressing, 42, Lancaster, wanted by Circleville Police for auto larceny was apprehended by Lancaster Police 3 a.m. Wednesday.

Dressing was released from the Chillicothe Correctional Institute on parole May 15 after serving a prison term of 11 years. He served his first ten years at the Ohio State Pen before he was transferred to the Chillicothe Correctional Institute.

August 16 Dressing went to the Mount of Praise Camp Grounds for the camp meeting. He broke into the room of Mr. and Mrs. Darryl K. Kuhns, Ono, Pa., at the dormitory located on the campgrounds. Dressing took five dollars and a set of car keys from Mrs. Kuhns' purse and then he broke into the room of Gary Cunningham where he took a suit case.

August 18, Dressing was driving the auto in Fairfield County when he lost control of the car and crashed into a bridge demolishing the vehicle. Dressing was uninjured in the accident.

Dressing was sleeping in a railroad box car in Lancaster when he rode to New Lexington on the train. There he broke into a house and took a gun and clothes.

At 3 a.m. Wednesday the Lancaster police noticed the man walking along a railroad track picked him up and turned him over to the Circleville Police. Dressing is wanted in New Lexington for burglary.

Sergeant and Mrs. Ronald Kennedy (Vickie Whaley) Tacoma, Washington, are the parents of an 8-pound 8½-ounce son born 5 p.m. Wednesday.

When the gavel finally fell at 11:17 p.m. and the delegates spilled from the littered hall out into the humid night, many wept from the lingering aftermath of tear gas. Rubbing red eyes, the hundreds whose cars were still ringing from the ovens for Nixon beheld streets swept empty of all but an 800-yard cordon of police. The officers stood quietly, 10 feet apart, wary of interlopers.

Protesters had tried to block the delegates from entering the hall five hours earlier. The plan called for peaceful sit-ins at the gates and milling crowds in the surrounding streets.

But when the demonstrators arrived, they found their path cluttered by bumper-to-bumper buses. The buses, some so old they had to be towed into place, hugged the gates and created a dilapidated corridor for other vehicles carrying delegates into the Convention Hall compound. "We were defeated tactically before we even began," said Marsha Monestersky, a member of the Stuen for Democratic Society.

Striking quickly, the protesters grabbed trash baskets, park benches and newspaper vending machines to fashion makeshift intersection barricades, as traffic ground to a halt, the young protesters dashed in to slash tires, fling open hoods and yank distributors.

Close behind the barricade builders came 100 state troopers. Then 100 more. As their ranks swelled, elderly citizens cheered from hotel balconies.

Some demonstrators were hit with clubs and two motorcycle officers were shoved from their machines as the law enforcement officers and protesters clashed amidst the noise of squawking police radios and flying rocks and bottles.

Many demonstrators raced away. But others who had refrained from violence sat in the streets. They waited to be arrested, and they were. Poet Allen Ginsberg and Yippie leader Jeff Nightbyrd were arrested in one group.

site's entrances. Standing just outside, they lobbed still more tear gas into the suddenly darkened park. A few officers knocked over demonstrators' motorcycles and smashed headlights and tail lights with night sticks.

Authorities marshaled about 2,000 men to handle the police-estimated crowd of 1,500 demonstrators who took to the streets.

About 4,000 demonstrators had been in town for the convention, but all did not participate in the disturbance.

With the convention session starting and most delegates finally inside, protesters regrouped in the streets beside the hall. Tardy delegates were pelted with eggs, sprayed, painted, harangued and jostled.

"I think they should issue every delegate and alternate and everybody else who wants one a submachine gun," fumed LeRoy Stocks, a delegate from Whiteville, N.C.

Platoons of city police, Dade County deputies, state troopers and Marine Patrol officers took to the streets.

As the uniformed skirmish lines advanced, the crackle of tear gas canisters split the air. Hundreds of grenades containing CS gas — a riot-control agent that stings eyes and skin — drove back the demonstrators. Riot sticks pushed and prodded, but seldom were raised to strike with force.

As the night wore on, 33 persons required hospital treatment for injuries. Three were policemen. Medics dispatched from protest groups swabbed the swollen eyes and burning faces of tear gas victims.

For three hours, police and protesters forayed through the brightly lit streets. Then the demonstrators retreated to their Flamingo Park campsite.

There some leaders urged them to halt their protests. But some 200 demonstrators rearmored with bottles, stones and sticks for yet another convention hall barrage.

But their would-be assault was crushed before it ever began when state troopers swooped down on the camp

State Fair Under Way

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP)—A 40 per cent chance of rain and the loss of 105 hours of live television programming from the grounds hadn't dampened officials' hopes of record crowds as the Ohio State Fair began its 119th run today.

Officials remained optimistic that "Expo '72" would attract 2.5 million people during the 12 days the big exhibition is on.

Following the official opening at dawn with ribbon-cutting ceremonies by Gov. John Gilligan, accompanied by music from the All-Ohio Boys Band, highlights of today's "Lancaster Day" activities included a marching band festival, amateur boxing tournament and two grandstand shows by country-western singer Glen Campbell.

To fill the void created when Avco Broadcasting television shows were canceled because of labor troubles, additional grandstand shows have been put on the fair schedule.

Fair Manager Vic Lucas said some of the county's top barbershop and Gospel quartets have been lined up for Monday morning country singer Donna Fargo will appear Tuesday and Mac Davis has agreed to do shows Thursday, expanding his appearance here to three days.

West Virginia Prisoner Jailed Here

Pickaway County Sheriff Dwight Radcliff, following up a routine investigation of Aug. 18, discovered that a passenger in a car with stolen license plates driven by a West Virginia man was an escaped prisoner.

The sheriff said the men were arrested when Deputy Jim Deal discovered their car's tail lights were not working. He found, that license tags on the car were stolen from West Virginia and the men were carrying a concealed weapon in the auto.

The passenger, who gave his name as Donald Clark was actually Gary Wayne Miller, according to Radcliff.

He told Radcliff that he walked away from Fairmont Emergency Hospital, in West Virginia, July 20, where he had been hospitalized for a dislocated shoulder.

He was sent to the hospital from Huttonsville Correctional Center where he was being confined on a breaking and entering charge.

Lancaster PD Arrests Man Wanted Here

Ervin C. Dressing, 42, Lancaster, wanted by Circleville Police for auto larceny was apprehended by Lancaster Police 3 a.m. Wednesday.

Dressing was released from the Chillicothe Correctional Institute on parole May 15 after serving a prison term of 14 years. He served his first ten years at the Ohio State Pen before he was transferred to the Chillicothe Correctional Institute.

August 16 Dressing went to the Mount of Praise Camp Grounds for the camp meeting. He broke into the room of Mr. and Mrs. Darryl K. Kuhns, Ono, Pa., at the dormitory located on the campgrounds. Dressing took five dollars and a set of car keys from Mrs. Kuhns' purse and then he broke into the room of Gary Cunningham where he took a suit case.

August 18, Dressing was driving the auto in Fairfield County when he lost control of the car and crashed into a bridge demolishing the vehicle. Dressing was uninjured in the accident.

Dressing was sleeping in a railroad box car in Lancaster when he rode to New Lexington on the train. There he broke into a house and took a gun and clothes.

At 3 a.m. Wednesday the Lancaster police noticed the man walking along a railroad track picked him up and turned him over to the Circleville Police. Dressing is wanted in New Lexington for burglary.

As President Nixon spoke inside the packed Convention Hall Wednesday night, Secret Service agents hovered at the gates outside cradling axe handles. Just blocks away, riot-ready state troopers contained roving bands of protesters.

When the gavel finally fell at 11:17 p.m. and the delegates spilled from the littered hall out into the humid night, many wept from the lingering aftermath of tear gas. Rubbing red eyes, the hundreds whose ears were still ringing from the ovations for Nixon beheld streets swept empty of all but an 800-yard cordon of police. The officers stood quietly, 10 feet apart, wary of interlopers.

Protesters had tried to block the delegates from entering the hall five hours earlier. The plan called for peaceful sit-ins at the gates and milling crowds in the surrounding streets.

But when the demonstrators arrived, they found their path cluttered by bumper-to-bumper buses. The buses, some so old they had to be towed into place, hugged the gates and created a dilapidated corridor for other vehicles carrying delegates into the Convention Hall compound. "We were defeated tactically before we even began," said Marsha Monestery, a member of the Students for Democratic Society.

Small bands of protesters fanned out into the streets toward the hotels where most delegates waited to go to the hall.

Striking quickly, the protesters grabbed trash baskets, park benches and newspaper vending machines to fashion makeshift intersection barricades, as traffic ground to a halt, the young protesters dashed in to slash tires, fling open hoods and yank distributors.

When a few residents tried to kick over the barricades, the demonstrators set several garbage cans afire.

Close behind the barricade builders came 100 state troopers. Then 100 more. As their ranks swelled, elderly citizens cheered from hotel balconies.

Some demonstrators were hit with clubs and two motorcycle officers were shoved from their machines as the law enforcement officers and protesters clashed amidst the noise of squawking police radios and flying rocks and bottles.

Many demonstrators raced away. But others who had refrained from violence sat in the streets. They waited to be arrested, and they were. Poet Allen Ginsberg and Yippie leader Jeff Nightbyrd were arrested in one group.

"This city is taking a trash-ing, property is being damaged, people are being injured," said Police Chief Rocky Pomerance. "They talk about peace in Vietnam. It seems obvious they are not for peace in this community."

Authorities marshaled about 2,000 men to handle the police-estimated crowd of 1,500 demonstrators who took to the streets.

About 4,000 demonstrators had been in town for the convention, but all did not participate in the disturbance.

With the convention session starting and most delegates finally inside, protesters regrouped in the streets beside the hall. Tardy delegates were pelted with eggs, sprayed, painted, harangued and jostled.

"I think they should issue every delegate and alternate and everybody else who wants one a submachine gun," fumed Leroy Stocks, a delegate from Whiteville, N.C.

Platoons of city police, Dade County deputies, state troopers and Marine Patrol officers took to the streets.

As the uniformed skirmish lines advanced, the crackle of tear gas canisters split the air. Hundreds of grenades containing CS gas — a riot-control agent that stings eyes and skin — drove back the demonstrators. Riot sticks pushed and prodded, but seldom were raised to strike with force.

As the night wore on, 33 persons required hospital treatment for injuries. Three were policemen. Medics dispatched from protest groups swabbed the swollen eyes and burning faces of tear gas victims.

For three hours, police and protesters forayed through the brightly lit streets. Then the demonstrators retreated to their Flamingo Park campsite.

There some leaders urged them to halt their protests. But some 200 demonstrators rearmored with bottles, stones and sticks for yet another convention hall barrage.

But their would-be assault was crushed before it ever began when state troopers swooped down on the camp-
